Maintenance Workers Strike at Fairlington; Both Sides Stand Pat

Union Recognition Is Chief Issue; Project Houses 14,000 Persons

By Adrienne Tassler
Post Reporter

AFL maintenance workers at the giant Fairlington housing development in nearby Virginia struck early yesterday and promised last night to continue their walkout today.

Officials of Local 82, Building Service Employes Union, predicted essential services at the project would be sharply curtailed, probably beginning today. No evidence of a slackening was apparent yesterday.

However, owners of the project, which houses more than 14,000 persons, insisted that full service will be maintained through the use of substitute workers. They said other workers had already been hired to replace the strikers and additional numbers would be employed "as the need arises."

Management Stands Pat

Michael Lucas, secretary treasurer of Local 82, said 170 workers at the project struck shortly after 8:30 a. m., to protest management's "persistent" refusal to recognize the union and bargain with it. J. B. Howell, assistant manager of the development, said that less than 170 employes walked out but refused to make an estimate of the number.

Lucas made plain that the union planned to maintain the strike "until the management meets with us." Charles Prins, public relations representative of Fairmac Corp., the project's owner, emphasized that management had no intention of meeting with the union.

Workers voted overwhelmingly in favor of continuing the strike at a rally last night at Elks Hall, 227 N Henry st., Alexandria. International Union Vice President John Goodman said. As was the case yesterday, pickets will march at about 40 spots on the project today, principally in front of boiler buildings, he added.

Employes Involved

Employes involved in the work stoppage include janitors, trash and garbage collectors, firemen responsible for maintaining heat and hot water, gardeners, general maintenance crews and flue cleaners, according to the union.

Groundwork for the dispute was laid early in October when the union, newly organized at Fairlington, served notice that it would like to meet with the Fairmac Corp. to discuss terms of a contract. A meeting was held November 15, after Samuel Levine, counsel for the union, announced that the "action of the Fairmac Corp. in continuing to ignore the union's repeated efforts to obtain a conference would be a direct cause for a strike."

At the conference, the union submitted its demands—including a 20 cents hourly boost in wages, time and a half for overtime and two weeks' vacation with pay.

Demands Called Unreasonable

William Ziegler, general manager of Fairmac, called the demands "unreasonable — even fantastic—" and said that they would, "if granted, create intolerable featherbedding conditions and a dangerous deterioration of maintenance standards while we are seeking to improve service to Fairlington tenants."

He claimed that "Fairlington maintenance workers are admittedly the highest paid of any employes of developments in this area." Janitors, he said, receive $1850 a year, trash collectors $2180 annually and firemen operating automatic equipment $2275.

Ziegler pointed out that shortly after the union submitted its demands the corporation announced a "labor program" giving workers new wage benefits, including a guaranteed annual wage, free life insurance coverage and higher hourly wages. The benefits, he said,

Church and State Issue

Supreme Court Urged to Ban Public School Bible Classes

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

The Supreme Court yesterday debated whether religious classes in public schools break down the wall between church and state.

They do, said Attorney Walter F. Dodd—for Mrs. Vashti McCollum, a Freethinker—as he urged the justices to outlaw Bible classes held once a week in the Champaign, Ill., schools.

They do not, said Attorney John L. Franklin—for the State of Illinois—as he waved a small coin at the court. He said if the judges struck down the Champaign plan they ought to strike "In God We Trust" off of our money.

Justice Jackson put the question before the court this way:

"Under the Constitution, can the State compel citizens to give up part of their time—by making them go to school—and then give some of it back, on condition they go to religious classes?"

The Champaign plan came before the high court a little more than seven years after it was adopted. The school board in the Illinois town allows the local Council of Religious Education to hold classes in the schools once a week. Pupils whose parents ask it, go to these classes instead of to the ordinary school classes. The religious courses are run, and their teachers are paid by the religious council. All the board provides is the building and—at their parents' request—the children.

The plan differs from the released time program in use in many States, under which children are let out of school early if their parents want them to go to religious classes.

Mrs. McCollum, whose husband is a professor at the University of Illinois, went to court to have the plan outlawed. Her father is Ar-

City Manager Plan Favored By Washington

First President Quoted in Drive For Home Rule

George Washington was enlisted last night in the drive to bring home rule to the Nation's Capital.

Dr. George B. Galloway, staff director for the House Subcommitte on District Reorganization and Home Rule, told Washington's Central Suffrage Conference meeting in the Interior Department that America's first President had indorsed the city manager idea with these words:

"It has always been my opinion, and still is so, that the administration of the affairs of the Federal city ought to be under the immediate direction of a judicious and skillful superintendent . . . one in whom is united knowledge of men and things, industry, integrity, impartiality and firmness; and that this person should reside on the spot."

A city manager, appointed by a locally elected city council, is a key feature of the Washington home rule plan being sponsored by the House subcommittee, headed by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.). Under the home rule plan, to be presented in legislation to Congress early next year, initiative in local affairs would be transferred to the residents, acting through their elected council, but veto powers would be reserved to Congress and the President.

He called the present District Government a "patchwork setup" developed by a process of "drift and neglect," and still governed under the "antiquated" charter of 1878.

He said 125 local and Federal agencies now perform services in the District.

"Authority over District affairs is divided among many independent boards and commissions.

"A dozen agencies share the ordinance-making power.

"Executive authority is likewise hopelessly splintered.

Big 4 Opens 3d Week in Bitter Discord

Little Hope Seen For Agreement on German Problem

By Walter Kerr

London, Dec. 8 (NYHT).—The Council of Foreign Ministers opened its third and decisive week at Lancaster House this afternoon with a meeting charged with the heavy atmosphere of basic and bitter disagreement.

No progress on the German problem was made or seemed possible on a day which recorded these developments:

First, it became known that Secretary of State George C. Marshall, Ernest Bevin, the British Foreign Secretary, and George Bidault, the French Foreign Minister, held a private dinner at the American Embassy residence, last evening.

It marked the first time during any session of the council that the three men have talked together in the absence of Viacheslav M. Molotov, the Soviet foreign minister.

Second, Mr. Molotov walked into the meeting this afternoon with a written statement which amounted to a blistering attack on the Marshall Plan.

Third, he issued another statement containing his views on the economic principles that should govern Germany. They are the same as they were last spring at the council's Moscow session. They ask for 10 billion dollars worth of reparations from Germany.

Fourth, Lord Pakenham, speaking for Mr. Bevin, who was ill today, said the Molotov attack on the Marshall Plan contained many "allegations which are contrary to fact." He went on to say the British government would not accept the 10-billion-dollar reparations demand.

Fifth, Secretary Marshall refused to answer the Molotov assault.

The day's work found the four ministers discussing economic principles for Germany, the goal being

Stopgap Bill Survives 1st House Test

'Nullifying' Proviso Narrowly Defeated; Creation of Special Aid Agency Barred

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The 590 million dollar stopgap foreign relief bill yesterday weathered its first serious test in the House, but faced more rough going and a possible cut before final passage today.

A "Deep South" amendment, banning shipment from the United States in short supply here, gave the program an unexpectedly close call.

The amendment was rejected by a 109 to 135 division count after bill managers bluntly warned it would "kill" the program.

Wheat, fertilizer and virtually all other items needed to keep western Europe in food, fuel and clothing through the winter, would have been held up by the change.

GOP Split Kills Proposal

Representative W. M. Wheeler (D., Ga.) proposed the ban and nearly a score of Southern Democrats voted for it. The amendment failed when House Republicans split down the middle on it.

Representative Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.) tried again with an amendment banning shipping of fertilizer. Minnesota's Carl Anderson (R.) moved to add American farm machinery and petroleum to the proscribed list. The House postponed overnight a vote on this second coalition attempt to limit shipments.

The bill thus emerged from the first day of voting without any crippling restrictions. It has yet to face, however, a barrage of GOP-sponsored moves to slash the amount. The most threatening will be offered by Representative Lawrence H. Smith (R., Wis.). Smith will try to cut back the program to 500 million dollars. As reported to the House the bill already cuts relief to France, Italy and Austria by 67 million dollars but adds 60 million dollars for China. The proposed Smith amendment would retain China relief provisions but slice at least another 90 million dollars aid to western Europe.

Final Passage Assured

Final House passage by an overwhelming bipartisan majority was taken for granted. The big questions remaining were how much of a cut and how many restrictive amendments will be voted first. House Rules Chairman Leo E. Allen (R., Ill.), an outspoken foe of the bill, predicted it would be finally passed by a six to one margin.

The only limitation written into the bill yesterday was sponsored by Representative Francis Case (R., S. Dak.) Adopted 132 to 117, it required the President to channel aid through existing Government

Truman Returns From Key West; Had 'Fine Rest'

President Truman returned to the Capital yesterday after a five-day vacation in Florida.

He arrived at the National Airport at 2:57 p. m. (EST) after a flight of 4 hours and 27 minutes from Key West aboard the White House plane, the Sacred Cow.

And last night he saw Bobby Clark cavort in the musical comedy, "Sweethearts," at the National Theatre.

The President sat in the orchestra, accompanied by Mrs. Truman, Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder, and the latter's daughter, Miss Edith Cook Snyder.

Smiling and well-sunned, Mr. Truman told reporters as he stepped from the plane that he would soon have ready for Congress his message on the Marshall Plan for long-range European recovery.

It's not quite ready, Mr. Truman added.

He was greeted by a group of Cabinet officers including Secretary of Defense Forrestal, Attorney General Tom Clark, and Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach.

Mr. Truman said he had had a good trip and a fine rest.

Everybody had a good time, he added—at least he said he didn't hear any complaints.

French Order All Strikers Back to Work

Deadline Is Set Tomorrow; Cabinet Backs Ultimatum By Show of Force

Paris, Dec. 8 (AP).—Premier Robert Schuman's government handed an ultimatum to the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor tonight, demanding that French workers return to their jobs by Wednesday, and quickly backed up its order with a strong show of force.

The central national strike committee, a solidly Communist group of federation members functioning independently, indicated, however, it would attempt to defy the government by declaring that its strike order still stood.

As the government put its demand before the Labor Confederation (CGT), it also began using its powers under the new strike control law against strike inciters, saboteurs and persons preventing nonstrikers from working. Eighteen men were arrested at Montpellier under the law and were charged with obstructing workers at an automobile plant.

Soldier Clear Mines

Another hint of what might happen if the unions refused the terms of the ultimatum was demonstrated today in the northern coal mining region where soldiers cleared strikers from railroads and mines at Douai, Bethune and Valenciennes. Reports from the region said non-strikers following the troops began entering the mines immediately.

The use of troops to clear strikers from strike-bound properties was one of the strongest displays of force employed by the government since the strike wave, which left more than two million workers idle at one point, began a month ago.

Socialist Labor Minister Daniel Mayer, who outlined the government's ultimation tothe Labor Confederation (CGT) tonight, told newsmen after the meeting:

"These propositions constitute the ultimate points of concession on the part of the government.

Cost-of-Living Premium

Schuman's cabinet, which said the strikers would receive no pay for days lost during the walkout, offered to pay a cost-of-living premium of $13 monthly, retroactive to November 13, for those workers back at their jobs by the Wednesday deadline, and said it would not attempt to prosecute strikers except those guilty of sabotage, violence preventing nonstrikers from working or otherwise violating the drastic new strike control law.

The government handed its terms to the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor (CGT) as that central labor body was shaken by a rank-and-file revolt and the apparent failure of its attempt to increase the paralysis in France with a 48-hour walkout of public service workers.

Less than 10 per cent of the workers answered the confederation's strike call. Union leaders themselves admitted the setback.

In Paris the subway and bus workers union called off its share of the projected gigantic walkout only a little more than two hours after it had begun. There was hardly any interruption in service.

Throughout the Nation there was an ebbing of the strike tide which at its height had left two million workers idle. Clearly the Government took this into account as it demanded that workers return to their jobs while requests for pay increases are studied.

Railroad operations were nearly normal throughout France except for the Mediterranean coastal region which remained strike-bound. Troops still were unloading freight in most ports.

For the third successive day only minor violence or sabotage was reported.

Plane Lands Pilot, Solos Nearly 3 Hrs., Alights Out of Gas

Tyler, Tex., Dec. 8 (AP).—A runaway, pilotless plane which threw its pilot and soared off into the blue was reported aground about 65 miles southeast of Tyler about 1 p. m. today.

The wayward craft had spent 2 hours and 40 minutes on its solo jaunt.

Trammell Malloy, Timpson newspaperman, reported to Pounds Field here that the plane received only slight damage to the landing gear and the wings. Malloy said it had run out of gas.

W. B. Myers, pilot, suffered a sprained back when he was thrown from the plane after landing.

Immediate Steps For Military Action Decreed by League At Cairo Session

Sword Is 'Speaking'

Cairo, Dec. 8 (AP).—The Arab League announced tonight it was taking "immediate measures" for military and other action to prevent creation of a Jewish state in Palestine.

Representatives of Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Syria, Trans-Jordan, Iraq and Yemen met there and issued a communique which said:

"The leaders and representatives of the Arab countries met tonight to carry out immediate measures in regard to the Arab League council decisions taken at its meeting in Lebanon."

The league at that meeting drew up plans for military action to safeguard the borders of Palestine, and agreed to supply the Palestine Arabs with weapons, money and other assistance."

The exiled mufti of Jerusalem, spiritual leader of Palestine's more than one million Arabs, arriving from Lebanon, told newsmen:

"When the sword speaks, everything else must be silent."

Continues to "Speak"

The sword continued to "speak" since the United Nations announced its decision to set up separate Jewish and Arab states, the death toll in the Middle East has passed 200. In Aden revised estimates of the toll in last week's rioting said 79 Jews, 43 Arabs and two police were killed.

The Egyptian Senate called on its government to fight partition "by every possible means."

Sabit el Bibi Pasha, Trans-Jordan Premier, said "the whole Arab world is volunteering to save Palestine."

His remark took on added significance in view of reports from Amman that King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan has canvassed his Ministers on the idea of accepting partition and annexing the Arab portion of Palestine.

Rejected by Ministers

Abdullah's Ministers turned down the idea, and a crisis was precipitated which was solved by intervention of Premier Saleh Bey Jabr of Iraq, Arab informants said.

Saleh Bey reportedly told Abdullah that unless he joined the other Arab nations on the Palestine issue he would lose his throne. The Iraq Premier was reported to have asked Abdullah for

Jews Beat Off Attack By Machine Gunners

Jerusalem, Dec. 8 (AP).—Taxi-borne Jewish volunteers beat off a two-hour attack by Arab machine gunners and grenadiers in Tel Aviv tonight and then took the offensive in the fiercest battle between the two racial contenders since the United Nations voted November 29 to partition Palestine.

For a time, as the spearhead of Arab fighters knifed into the Hatikva sector of the all-Jewish city, wild panic gripped Tel Aviv and its residents fled from their houses in blind confusion.

Hundreds of Jews responded to the cries of motorcycle couriers who raced through the streets shouting "Hatikva is in danger. Send help." One courier halted a motion picture performance with his alarm and sent hundreds hurrying out to the embattled quarter.

Volunteers and fighting squads of Hagana, the Jewish defense army, commandeered taxicabs and sped to Hatikva in time to beat off the furiously fighting Arabs, who drove a wedge into the quarter from the border zone which separates Tel Aviv from the all-Arab city of Jaffa.

Flee Bomb-Tossing

Eyewitnesses aid that as Hatikva residents fled, the Arabs began tossing bombs into houses.

The battle which began in the Tel Aviv-Jaffa "no man's land" mounted as violence throughout the Holy Land boosted the unofficial nine-day death toll over the 100 mark. The fighting began November 29, the day on which the

U. S. Attache's Home Combed By Romanians

Other Affronts Related In Senate Seen Hinting Possibility of Break

Senator Knowland (R., Calif.) told the Senate yesterday that an American diplomat recently was searched at gunpoint by police in Communist-dominated Romania and that the homes and automobiles of other Americans there had been searched.

Denouncing such "police state" methods, Knowland said in a speech: "I hope that the State Department will take vigorous action against this type of thing."

He added that the American minister in Bucharest, Rudolf E. Schoenfeld, had protested the use of firearms against the American official—whom he identified as "Mr. Ferguson, secretary of the American legation."

"No reply has been reported to date," Knowland said.

C. Vaughan Ferguson of Schenectady, N. Y., is listed by the State Department as second secretary and vice consul in Bucharest.

Knowland said Ferguson's car, bearing an American flag, was stopped by police last November 4 and that Ferguson was searched at gunpoint. Later, the Senator said, Ferguson was questioned by Romanian authorities and accused of helping a Romanian citizen evade the police, a charge that the diplomat denied.

Knowland said this and other "incidents" came to his attention during his recent trip to Europe as a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

On September 11, the Senator said, the chauffeur of a U. S. military car was stopped and searched for food supplies, while on June 28 two men in civilian clothes assaulted the chauffeur of an American Army sergeant.

Knowland told reporters earlier that "secret police" twice searched the home of a captain attached to the American military staff although the officer protested that his wife was expecting a child and should not be disturbed.

The Senator said the homes of a sergeant and a lieutenant on the military staff also were searched.

Taft Expects Resumption of Meat Rationing

May Come in Spring, He Says; Hits Truman Price-Fixing Program

New York, Dec. 8 (NYHT).—Meat may be rationed by April, Senator Robert A. Taft said here today, giving the first indication that part of President Truman's anti-inflation program is winning the approval of Republican leaders in Congress.

The Ohio Senator, a candidate for the Republican nomination for President in 1948, said he "hated" the idea of reimposing Nation-wide controls, but he said a "great shortage" of meat was expected in the spring. He expressed unrelenting opposition, however, to the President's request for price-fixing powers. If rationing of meat is resumed, Taft said he preferred the British system of limiting weekly purchases by money value, rather than by points.

Would Extend Rent Controls

Addressing 1500 persons at a lecture at Town Hall here, Taft said he also favored a year's extension of Federal rent controls, which expire February 29, on the ground that the country cannot supply its housing needs for at least three years.

Senator Taft, who heads his party's policy committee in the Senate, said the Republicans would "certainly" back up the Administration plan for a campaign to stimulate individual savings as a means of curbing the demand for commodities which has boosted prices.

But he insisted that the Administration curb exports, limit consumer credit and reduce administrative expenditures drastically as steps toward the same end.

How Public Can Help

Although he characterized the Administration's voluntary meat and grain-saving campaign as a failure, he prescribed a general appeal to business to sell for less, to wage earners to demand less and produce more, and to everyone to spend less, eat less and waste less as public contributions to the anti-inflation fight.

Cotton Pests Seem Doomed By New Spraying Mixture

By The Associated Press

Boll weevils and every other cotton pest are doomed—if experiments by the Department of Agriculture pan out like it thinks they will.

Benzene hexachloride, mixed with DDT, gave "outstanding control of heavy infestations" of practically every known cotton pest in experiments at Waco, Tex., the Bureau of Entomology reported today.

Its new mixture, 5 per cent DDT combined with benzene hexachloride containing 3 per cent gamma isomer, killed boll weevils, pink boolworms, cotton aphids, leaf worms, flea hoppers, tarnished and rapid plant bugs, thirps, loopers, stink bugs, webworms and army worms, the bureau said.

"These benzene hexachloride mixtures gave a much quicker kill of the boll weevil and longer protection against the cotton leaf worm than did calcium arsenate (the standard boll weevil poison)," the bureau stated.

It reported that another new poison, chlorinated camphene, "gave promising results" against practically all types of cotton insects in laboratory experiments, adding that fields treated with it produced 46 per cent more cotton than those treated with calcium arsenate.

Cautioning that the use of its new mixtures still are "in the experimental stage," the buerau said that "they are not yet recommended as substitutes for calcium arseagencies and denied him power to create any new setup to do the job.

The amendment removed from the bill language permitting the President to establish credit accounts in this country to be spent for relief goods at his direction. Case told reporters he thought existing agencies should be used and the President didn't need a relief "kitty."

County Agent Plan Beaten

Only other change voted yesterday was a strengthening amendment making the program retroactive to December 1. Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio), in charge of the bill, said omission of the December 1 date was an oversight. Without it, he said, France would have to divert to relief purposes capital required for other expenses.

Two proposed amendments were defeated. One, by Representative Edwin A. Hall (R., N. Y.), would have sent 100 to 500 county agents to Europe to assist in the program, failed on a voice vote. Another, by Representative Frederic R. Coudert, jr. (R., N. Y.), would have banned shipment of tobacco, utensils and other proposed "incentive goods" to encourage western Europe workers to produce. Coudert's amendment was rejected, 145 to 132.

Among the hurdles in the bill's path today is a proposal by Representative August H. Anderson (R., Minn.), limiting the amount of relief food that can be sold abroad for local currency to one third of the food made available. The balance would be distributed free to low-income consumers through the Red Cross and approved charitable and church organizations.

290-Million Cut Sought

A 290-million-dollar cutback in the aid amount will be asked by Representative Bartel J. Jonkman (R., Mich.). A similar amendment by Jonkman failed in the House Foreign Affairs Committee. The more modest reduction asked by Smith may rally more support.

During debate under the "five-minute rule" House Democratic Whip John W. McCormack (Mass.) said Congress and this Government must act now "to prevent the world from being dominated by an atheistic, Communist government."

Across the Capitol, meanwhile, the State Department's Dallas W. Dort said it was a "good inference" that Communist-inspired strikes in France might be intended to discourage Congress from voting emergency relief. Dort told the Senate Appropriations Committee late reports indicated the French strike wave wasn't "out of hand."

Ban Held Too Sweeping

Senators Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.) and William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) said they thought French Communists were trying to make things look black in that country in hope Congress would abandon the program. Dort agreed.

The amendment banning shipment abroad of any items in short supply here was first offered by Representative John Bell Williams (D., Miss.). He withdrew this in favor of an only slightly modified amendment by Wheeler making plain that the ban applied only to goods actually purchased in this country for shipment abroad.

Wheeler and Williams argued requirements of American consumers should be "protected" and have first consideration.

One by one, proponents of the program on both side of the aisle pointed out the sweeping effect of the amendment.

GOP Sub-Leaders for Ban

Representative A. S. (Mike) Monroney (D., Okla.) said that since wheat was one of the commodities in short supply, it would be impossible under the amendment to provide bread to feed western Europe's hungry.

Vorys said the proposal would "effectively hamstring the whole program" and Representative Helen Gehagan Douglas (D., Calif.) told the House: "If you approve this amendment, we might as well pack up and go home now."

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) said the proposal illustrated the "growing concern that these purchases out of short supply will drive prices higher and higher." But Halleck agreed the amendment would "defeat the program" and said for that reason he wouldn't support it.

A number of GOP subleaders, however, including House Appropriations Chairman John Tabor (N. Y.) and Representative Clarence Brown (Ohio), joined the large body of Republicans voting for the change.

Soviet Film Leaders Accuse U. S. Counterparts of Bigotry

Moscow, Dec. 8 (AP).—Leaders in the Soviet film world called today on their American counterparts to fight Hollywood's efforts at propagandizing the notorious Truman Doctrine and so-called Marshall Plan—programs of beastly malice and hatred toward humanity and the stronghold of peace—the Soviet Union."

The appeal was contained in a letter published by the Literary Gazette, which assailed Hollywood as the source of the "principal sermons of world bigotry."

The article dealt harshly with Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Pictures Association of America; Paramount Pictures and the Warner Brothers; the producers Darryl F. Zanuck and Louis B. Mayer; and Louella Parsons, movie columnist—for the Hearst organization.

Letter Signed by Many

The letter was signed by many names in the Soviet film industry, including directors Sergius M. Eisenstein, Alexandrov and Pudovkin, and the actress Orlova.

The letter criticized the recent hearings of the United States House of Representatives Committee on un-American Activities involving Hollywood personalities, and said:

"The police terror of American reactionaries against the foremost leaders of American culture in the movie art is merely part of a campaign of American reaction against world progress.

"Could it be that you are not going to rebel against the warmongers?" the letter asked. "Are you not going to feel a surging need to show humanity and the American people first of all who is foe and who is friend, with whom to associate and whom to be on guard against?"

The Gazette declared Johnston had received orders from the House Committee on Un-American Activities to produce films showing the "horrors of communism." It said Zanuck "picked up the cry, taking upon himself the task of producing 'The Iron Curtain.'"

Louella Parsons was attacked as the "author of supreme slanders of delirium against the Soviet Union."

Battles Rage At Tel Aviv

United Nations voted for partition of the Holy Land.

Unofficial reports said that in the first hour of fighting after the Arabs renewed their attack on Tel Aviv, five Arabs and three Jews were killed and about two dozen persons were wounded. It also was reported that after the first concerted Arab rush and the Jewish counterattack, the pandemonium and excitement which engulfed the city died.

Five Jews had been killed in the borderland area in fighting during the day. A British soldier was killed while escorting a convoy of civilian workers from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem and the day's toll from stabbings and stonings and gunfire brought to 96 the deaths in nine days.

Yehoshua Bloberman, officer in Hagana, was killed when his motor convoy was attacked after police searched the convoy for arms.

Tel Aviv Commander

(The United Press identified Bloberman as commander in chief of all Hagana forces in the Tel Aviv area.)

Both Jews and Arabs accelerated their manpower mobilization in apparent expectation of any showdown that might result from decisions taken at the Arab League meeting in Cairo.

The Jewish agency began a manpower census for determining the potential defense strength and special capabilities for manning posts in the proposed Jewish state. The first age group, 17 to 25, was scheduled to register throughout the land tomorrow.

Big Four Still Stalemated economic unity and the problem being agreement as to the means to achieve it.

When the Soviet paper on economic principles was presented the council was able to resume where it left off Saturday when Mr. Molotov refused to accept a British paper as the basis of discussion and was unprepared to introduce a paper of his own.

So it was agreed to discuss them simultaneously and that is what is happening now. At least all views have now been tabled and, though they are the same as they were seven months ago, it is always possible that negotiation may produce some changes.

But the foreign ministers here have more on their minds than German or Austrian questions. The Marshall Plan and the Molotov plan which opposes it are more important and both are injected into the talks at frequent intervals.

There are eight points in the Soviet economic proposals as they were presented in Moscow last spring and again today. First is the establishment of central German administrative agencies. This is agreed upon by the entire council, though Mr. Molotov insists each zonal commander shall have the right to veto within his zone any directive by the agencies.

Second is a level of German industry with allowed steel production of 10 to 12 million tons. This is agreed to by all. Third is the removal of inter-zonal barriers, providing for the free flow of goods, but not of persons. Fourth is quadripartite control of the Ruhr, which the United States and Great Britain oppose.

All are in agreement there should be financial and monetary reform and that exports should be encouraged. Decartelization has been accepted in principle, though not the Soviet proposal that concerns involved should be turned over to the ownership of the German state.

Next on Mr. Molotov's list came a demand for dissolution of the Anglo-American bi-zonal agreement. This will not be accepted unless there is final agreement on German unity. Last, and most important of all, came the reparations clauses.

The Soviet delegation asked again for 10 billion dollars worth for itself and Poland. As sources for reparations it listed factories, German foreign assets and goods from current productoin. It added another item under the heading of "various services" which presumably means human labor as mentioned in the Yalta protocol.

The 10 billion dollars, according to Mr. Molotov, would be paid from the above sources over a period of 20 years from the conclusion of the 1945 Potsdam agreement.

Reparations, he said, must come first, and then it would be possible to increase production for German domestic consumption and German foreign trade.

The western delegates hold that foreign trade must come first to enable Germany to pay for the food imports it needs. At present these imports are paid for by the United States and Great Britain.

Secretary Marshall said today our occupation costs have come 600 million dollars and that at present the United States and Great Britain were paying out 700 million dollars a year. They are determined to stop this before agreeing to further reparations than the factory removals authorized by the Potsdam agreement, and they do not believe the German economy can bear more.

Mr. Marshall asked Mr. Molotov today whether acceptance of the 10-billion-dollar figure was a condition of Soviet agreement to economic unity and central administrative agencies but the Soviet Minister merely replied he believed both should be studied at the same time.

permission for Iraq troops to go through Trans-Jordan to take positions on the Palestine frontier. Abdullah withheld an answer pending the decisions taken at the league meeting here.

(The United Press reported Azzam Pasha said "before this ends, you will see fighters from Morocco to Afghanistan and beyond fighting in Palestine."

(A high Arab source said Palestine Arabs will attack each area evacuated by the British and handed tot he Jews, thus blocking creation of a Jewish state. Action will not wait final evacuation, but will take place as each region is left open, this source said.)

Taking Fight to Council

Lake Success, Dec. 8 (AP).—Two Arab nations gave notice tonight that they planned to carry the Moslem world's fight against partition of Palestine into the United Nations Security Council, starting tomorrow.

Egypt and Lebanon, both members of the Arab League and leaders in the bitter fight against the U. N. Assembly's November 29 decision to split up the Holy Land, submitted simultaneous requests to Secretary General Trygve Lie for the right to participate in tomorrow's 3 p. m. (EST) Council meeting on the Palestine question.

The U. N. administration decided today neither Jews nor Arabs would be barred from serving on the U. N. secretariat staff which will go to Palestine with the five-nation commission set up to supervise partitioning of the Holy Land.

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, chief of the staff assigned to a five-nation U. N. Palestine Commission, said the personnel would be selected "without regard to race or religion."

Senate Votes 72 to 1 For Defense Treaty

Pact Drawn Up in Rio de Janeiro During Summer Assures Mutual Aid of Americas

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

By an unprecedented vote of 72 to 1, the Senate yesterday ratified the Inter-American Defense Treaty signed at Rio de Janeiro last summer.

A quick search of the records showed it to be the only major treaty in American history to be ratified with but a single dissenting vote.

The dissenter was Senator Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.), who feared the treaty would permit two thirds of the American Republics to commit the United States against its will to a break in diplomatic relations or an economic embargo.

Embargo Held War Cause

"All history shows that an embargo is a frequent cause of war," Millikin explained afterward.

But Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) argued during the brief debate that the two-thirds rule was a good one.

"There is no paralyzing veto upon any of these peaceful sanctions," said Vandenberg. "One recalcitrant, one noncooperator, cannot nullify the loyalties of the others. It cannot even stop the others from using collective force.

"We are building upon mutual trust, in a true partnership which represents the greatest advance ever made in the business of collective peace. These two coordinated continents thus will offer no hospitality to alien aggressors who, following the usual pattern, might seek to 'divide and conquer.'"

The treaty, said Vandenberg, "is sunlight in a dark world."

"With scrupulous regard for the United Nations—acting strictly within Articles 51 to 54 of the United Nations Charter—we have demonstrated how like-minded, peace-loving members of the United Nations can make so-called regional arrangements which build peace and security for themselves and for the world, regardless of confusion in higher U. N. councils."

Describing the treaty as "a supplement and not a substitute for the United Nations," Vandenberg called it "cheerful, encouraging and happy news in a war-weary world which is groping, amid constant and multiple alarms, toward the hopes by which men live."

Called Object Lesson

Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.) who followed him, called the treaty "a great object lesson to all the peoples of the world."

"It will set a pattern," he said, "for other regional agreements in other areas looking to the attainment of peaceful processes and the preservation of the peace of the world under the objectives and methods of the United Nations."

The treaty was never a subject of partisan controversy from the moment the Rio conference was summoned. It is the most far-reaching of the "regional arrangements" yet made under the United Nations Charter.

As Vandenberg summarized it in yesterday's debate, it provides:

1. "An armed attack by any state against an American state shall be considered as an armed attack against all of them;"

2. An inter-continental "security zone," stretching from Cape Horn to Greenland, is set up as an area of "special protection;"

3. Within this zone an armed attack will be met by individual and collective self-defense; any aggression, armed or otherwise, will produce immediate consultation among the signatories; nonmilitary sanctions can be imposed by a two thirds vote, with the provision that "no state shall be required to use armed force without its consent."

4. Aggression outside the zone, affecting the peace or safety of the Americas, will produce immediate consultation of the American nations; and

5. Disputes within the Americas must be settled by peaceful means.

With the Senate's action yesterday the United States became the third of the 19 signers to ratify the treaty. Mexico and the Dominican Republic had done so previously; the treaty will become operative when two thirds of the signers have ratified it.

China Lays Plans For Added U. S. Army Advisers

Nanking, Dec. 8 (AP).—It was learned reliably today that preliminary planning was under way both in Nanking and Washington for expansion of the small U. S. military advisory groups in China in the event the United States should decide to give large-scale assistance to the government armies.

Best estimates were that a staff of about 560z American officers and men would be required, compared with the present 716.

4000 Chinese Reds Being 'Annihilated'

Nanking, China, Dec. 8 (U.P.).—Government dispatches claimed today that Gen. Liu Po-chen's Communist forces were trapped in their mountain headquarters in central China and that 4000 of his men who tried to break through the Nationalist cordon were being "annihilated."

UMW Board to Pick Vice President Today

United Mine Wokers (AFL) executive board will begin a regular meeting here today at which the members are expected to fill the vacancy of vice president.

The post has been vacant since the death of John J. O'Leary in San Francisco October.

Leading candidates for the position include A. D. Lewis, brother of Union President John L. Lewis. Several district presidents have also been mentioned.

RAF Officer Fired In Billet Scandal Over Waitress

Hornchurch, England, Dec. 8 (U.P.).—Pilot Officer William James Cavendish-Bentinck, 23, son of the former British Ambassador to Poland, was dishonorably discharged from the Royal Air Force today after a court-martial found him guilty of playing host to a scantily clad RAF waitress in his billet.

Cavendish-Bentinck, a godson of Queen Elizabeth, "behaved in a scandalous manner" with Aircraftwoman First Class Mavis Bannister, 20, pretty and auburn-haired, in the morning hours of November 12, the court said.

His father, Victor Cavendish-Bentinck, was dismissed from diplomatic service last September after a sensational separation case in which he admitted having had three mistresses and indulging in other extramarital adventures.

State Manual To Be Streamlined In Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 8 (AP).—Dr. Morris L. Radoff, State archivist, and Dr. Horace E. Flack, head of the department of legislative reference, were named today by Governor Lane to streamline the state manual.

The manual is the Maryland guide to State government including information regarding State officials in the various departments and institutions as well as historical data.

The manual was last issued in 1945 when Governor O'Conor was the incumbent.

Because of the many changes in the State government since then Bertram L. Boone, secretary of State, recently had printed a roster of the various departments.

Radoff and Flack will see to the revision of the present manual which has not had a re-editing job for 30 years and is full of errors as well as inessential information.

In streamlining the manual an attempt will be made to bring it completely up to date

73 Railroads Get Passenger Rate Hike Approval

By The Associated Press

Seventy-three railroads yesterday received Insterstate Commerce Commission authority to increase further their passenger fares, as the ICC heard final testimony on the general railroad plea for a 30 per cent boost in freight rates.

The permits for passenger fare raises went to 72 Western carriers operating pricipally west of the Mississippi River, and to the New York, New Haven & Harfford Railway Co., operating in New England.

The western carriers were authorized to increase their basic one-way passenger fares in sleeping and parlor cars by 6.06 per cent, with proportionate increases in round-trip charges.

This will raise their one-way basic fare for standard Pullman travel from 3.3 to 3.5 cents per mile, and the one-way basic fare for travel in tourist sleepers from 2.75 to 3 cents per mile. No change was asked in basic coach fares in the West.

The carriers estimated the new rates would yield additional annual revenue of approximately $7,133,390.

City Third-Place Rivals Point to Big Baby Crop

Philadelphia, Dec. 8 (AP).—Los Angeles and Philadelphia wrangled today over which is the Nation's third largest city. Los Angeles' health director George M. Uhl announced that 1947 will register a bumper crop of 40,000 babies. Philadelphia's rejoinder: It's birth total for 1947 will be 50,000.

International Brigade Urged For Partisans

Rome, Dec. 8 (AP).—For the second time in two days, Italian Leftists conducted a massive parade today as their leaders threatened Premier Alcide de Gasperi's government with a general strike in the capital area.

The body of Giuseppe Tanas, 20-year-old riot victim, was carried almost the length of the city. An estimated 50,000 marchers surrounded the body with red flags and placards, some of which read: "Enough of dead."

Communist Maro Scoccimarro was quoted in Turin dispatches as declaring that 1948 "would be the year of the Communist offensive."

Addressing the provincial congress of the Communist Party in Turin, Scoccimarro, former minister of finance, said: "In this new phase (of the fight against De Gasperi's government) we can even be pushed to a position wherein the last word will be that of arms."

Rome, Dec. 8 (U.P.).—Gen. Sidor Kovpak, vice president of the Soviet Ukraine and delegate to the Italian Partisan Congress in session here, declared today an international brigade is indispensable in Europe to "consolidate the conquests of Partisans."

Italian, Yugoslav and Czechoslovak Partisan leaders quickly seconded the suggestion. Immediately, open agreement among Communists led observers to view the proposal as possibly the first step toward a militant arm for the new, nine-nation Cominform.

The chain-smoking Russian reference. Answering a Communist's question about an international brigade, Kovpak replied.

"Russia is not against such an organization. Such a movement is indispensable, especially for those countries where conquests of Partisans were not consolidated—such as in Greece."

Francesco Scotti, vice secretary of the Italian Partisan Association, said the plan will be discussed at the congress of 1400 Italian Partisance hero spoke at a press contisans and 10 foreign delegations here.

Nun's 50th Anniversary Is Observed at Mass

Los Angeles, Dec. 8 (AP).—Sister Mary Rose McNeal's fiftieth anniversary as a nun was observed today with a solemn high mass conducted by Bishop Thomas J. Manning.

Sister Mary Rose left her Baltimore family in 1897 to join the order of the Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul at Emmitsburg, Md. She later came to Keokuk, Iowa, San Francisco and Los Angeles. For the past six years she has been at St. Vincent's Hospital here.

Austin Calls Red Atom Plan World Fraud

Richmond, Va., Dec. 8 (AP).—Warren R. Austin, chief American delegate to the United Nations, tonight called Russia's plan for control of the atomic bomb "a fraud on the peoples of the entire world." He said it might take years to bring together the United States and the Soviet Union on atomic and other world issues.

Austin told the Richmond Council on Adult Education that all members of the 12-nation U. N. Atomic Energy Commission except Russia and Poland believe the Soviet proposals are "completely inadequate." Declaring Moscow wants to keep most of the atomic control in national rather than international hands, Austin added:

"Obviously they (the Russian proposals) are based on the concept of predominantly national control of what is generally recognized as the most dangerous field of activity in the world today. They provide just enough of an appearance of control to delude the uninformed, and give rise to a false sense of security.

"Such a situation is far more dangerous than the honest, though grim, acceptance of the fact that no international control exists. No responsible statesman or government can honestly participate in such a fraud, not only on the people of the United States, but on the peoples of the entire world."

'In-Between' Blue Is Chosen For New Air Force Uniforms

Air Force officials neared a final decision yesterday on a new uniform for the newly independent fighting arm, with one important element—the color—apparently settled.

Military tailors staged a style show at the Pentagon for a select audience—the top generals of the USAF. The corridors near the showing looked like a meeting of the UnitedNations Military Committee, with models wearing a wide variety of "foreign-looking" garb.

All of those seen by spectators were various shades of bright blue, something like the uniforms worn by RAF officers or American postmen.

"There seems to be general agreement on the color," said Maj. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, Air Force information chief. "It's a kind of in-between blue, something like the RAF wears.

"Chief matters still to be decided are the type of insignia and headgear."

490 Millions More Asked for Occupation

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Army Secretary Royall asked Congress yesterday for an additional 490 millions to take care of Germany and Japan this year—raising the occupation costs to the "thought-provoking sum" of 1.1 billions for fiscal '48.

He told the Senate Appropriations Committee that Great Britain's dollar crisis—forcing the British to stop paying half of the cost of feeding western Germany—will raise United States expenditures this year by 237 millions.

Cites Other Factors

Other factors requiring the deficiency appropriation, Royall testified, are German and Japanese crop failures, boosts in American food prices, and the fact Congress cut occupation relief funds last session.

Some time ago Britain ceased buying food for Germany with dollars and limited its purchases to areas where the pound sterling was expendable—a limited market. Negotiations have been under way for months between British and American officials looking toward a new basis for financing food imports for the Reich.

Yesterday Royall told the committee that Britain had tentatively agreed to give some of its remaining dollars to Germany in exchange for British currency received from the export of German products. The United States agreed to try to limit this "convertibility" of German-held sterling to 40 million dollars a year.

Is "Thought-Provoking"

In formally presenting the Administration's request for 490 million dollars more for relief and military government costs in conquered areas, Royall said he fully realized that the 1.1 billion total for the years was a "thougho-provoking amount."

"Yet a careful study of our task," he added, "has convinced me that it is a necessary sum. I am deeply interested in economy, but I believe there is no true economy in the semi-starvation of Germany and Japan. The funds we have asked are the minimum required to prevent this, and to enable these people to work."

Perilously Close

Royall added that he did not consider it economical to "feed these people an amount which is not enough to live on but is too much to die on." During the past two years we have "come perilously close to doing just this," he said.

Winter freeze followed by a drought cut the estimated German crop by 1,400,000 tons of food, while Japan's crop shrinkage was over 700,000 tons, Royall testified.

The additional 490 millions requested by Royall is separate from the 597 millions which Congress has been asked to vote for stop-gap relief for France, Italy and Austria. Secretary of State Marshall told Congress some time ago that approximately a half billion dollars more for taking care of conquered nations would be required.

Methodist Group Moves to Abolish Race Segregation

Buck Hill Falls, Pa., Dec. 8 (AP).—Abolishment of the principle of racial segregation in the Methodist church was recommended today by the woman's division of Christian service, the policy making group for 1,303,452 women.

The recommendation will be placed before the church's general congress next April in Boston. It strikes at the organization of the Methodist Church which set up a separate jurisdiction for Negroes when the Northern and Southern churches were unified in 1939. The Negro jurisdiction—designated the central jurisdiction—is one of six. The other five jurisdictions, however, are based on geographic boundaries.

2-Ocean Towing Trip Starts From Seattle

Seattle (U.P.).—The longest towing operation ever conducted from the Pacific Northwest began here when a tug left Seattle towing a barge which carried six steel Army tugs destined for Buenos Aires, Argentina.

The barge Island Yarder was expected to make the 10,000-mile trip in 50 days, arriving around December 1.

The six tugs were placed aboard the barge in an unusual loading operation which attracted attention all over the country.

The barge was submerged and the tugs were floated over her. Likewise, in Buenos Aires, the tugs will be unloaded in drydock by floating them off.

Brick Apartment House To Make Journey

New York (U.P.).—Thirty-five families will get a ride across a highway in their own house soon.

The city announced plans to move a four-story brick apartment building to make way for new road work

The trip across the highway probably will take several days, with the building moving four feet in about two minutes and then standing still for an hour or two while workmen reset the more than 1000 steel rollers on which it will move forward.

The tenants will continue to have electric light, plumbing, water and heat, through flexible fixtures.

Unbreakable Dishes Promised by Potters

East Liverpool, Ohio (U.P.).—The American dinnerware industry promises to make the quarrelsome neighbors upstairs a little less noisy.

Potters are perfecting unbreakable dinnerware, according to W. A. Betz, secretary-treasurer of the United States Potters Association.

It will mean that being hit by a flying saucer will be just as painful, but the dish won't make so much noise when it hits the wall

Betz said the new dinnerware would be especially useful in hotels and restaurants, where the rate of breakage is high.

Sees Danger of Racket In European Relief

New York (U.P.).—"Begging" letters from persons in Europe should be turned over to relief agencies unless the writers are known to the recipient, Dr. Robbins W. Barstow, executive associate of Church World Service, Inc., warns.

Barstow said such letters may constitute a new racket playing on the sympathies of Americans.

"Church World Service," he said, "has had referred to it many identical letters, 13 in one instance from the same writer. Obviously, if even a fraction of the letters bring returns, the writer will be disproportionately helped, or perhaps even set up a stock of goods for black market operations."

Train Chef Saves Day for Admiral Byrd

Chicago (U.P.).—Military regulation for uniforms can SNAFU even a rear admiral.

Exploring the South Pole doesn't faze Richard E. Byrd. But en route by train to Ames, Iowa, he had to call for help.

He didn't have any black shoes. Even a boot knows you can't wear tan oxfords with gold-braid blues.

The train crew volunteered all the black shoes they could find. Mike Bies, the chef, saved the day. His fit the admiral perfectly.

"Now I can follow in the admiral's footsteps," he quipped.

Tribe's Spokesman Asks U. M. to Act On Togolands

Lake Success, Dec. 8 (AP).—Sylvanus Olympio, representing the Ewe tribesmen of Africa, appeared before the United Nations trusteeship council today to plead for the unification of French Togoland and British Togoland under one administration.

It marked the first time the council ever had granted an oral hearing to a petitioner and Olympio became the first African from a trust territory to plead personally. No decision was made and the council adjourned until tomorrow.

Olympio said the case of the Ewes was "the simple request of a tribe of one million people to be allowed to live together under one roof and one government so that they can achieve peace and prosperity."

Oklahoma Governor Urges War on Rats

Oklahoma City (U.P.).—Gov. Roy J. Turner has asked Oklahoma farm youths to declare war on rats. Declaring a rat can eat $5 worth of grain a year without half trying, the governor said that by rubbing out thousands of the rodents, the Sooner State could make a big contribution to the national food-saving program.

nate, sulfur, nicotine, DDT and other standard insecticides commonly used in cotton."

T. P. Cassidy, assistant chief of the division of cotton insects, told a reporter that the new mixtures cost more than the standard poisons, but get better results.

Drawback Explained

He said that the benzene hexachloride mixtures cost 25 to 35 cents a pound, against 10 or 11 cents for calcium arsenate, but said he had been advised "unofficially" that the benzene mixtures will cost "around 19 cents at the farmer level" in 1948.

There's another drawback to the benzene hexachloride, too. It has a disagreeable odor and under some conditions has caused skin and eye irritation to the duster and leaf burn to the cotton.

"In no instance, however," the report said, "has economic injury to the cotton plant been reported from its use."

Cabrini Statue Unveiled In St. Peter's Basilica

Vatican City, Dec. 8 (AP).—A white marble statue of Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini was unveiled in St. Peter's basilica today. Federico Cardinal Tedeschini, arch-priest of St. Peter's, said her life in America gave another "proof that the Catholic religion was not counter to modern living."

The new saint died in Chicago in 1917.

Supreme Court Urged to Ban Public School Bible Classes

thur G. Crowell, president of the Freethinkers Society of Rochester, N. Y., and she wants her son, Terry—who is 14 years old—to grow up in the family unfaith. He says he likes being a Freethinker, but does not like being singled out at school, by being the only boy in his room who does not take the religious course.

Counsel for the State called Terry a problem boy, who did not get along well with his schoolmates and teachers.

Less Than Voluntary

Mrs. McCollum pointed out that the school officials asked parents to sign requests for their children to go to religious classes. She said that made the system less than voluntary.

The Champaign court turned Mrs. McCollum down. So did the Illinois Supreme Court. When she appealed to the court here, numerous groups came into the case, mostly to back her up.

The Synagogue Council of America, through Attorney Henry Epstein, deplored Mrs. McCollum's use of the case to advance her point of view, but stoutly argued that religious teaching ought not to be given in the public schools.

A committee of the Southern, Northern and National Baptist Conventions—through Attorney E. Hilton Jackson of Washington—told the court there were grave danger to small religious groups in plans like that used in Champaign. The Seventh Day Adventists—through former Attorney General Homer Cummings—urged a like view. A similar brief came from Edwin C. Park of Boston, for the American Unitarian Association.

All Cited First Amendment

All these friends of the court said the First Amendment forbade using State facilities to teach religion. So did the American Civil Liberties Union and the American Ethical Society, which adopted the brief of the Synagogue council.

The Protestant Council of New York came into the case to defend the released time plan in use there.

Justice Burton yesterday asked whether it would be possible to outlaw the Champaign plan without striking down the New York system. Attorney Dodd said he thought it was.

As so often happens in the Supreme Court, the justices yesterday used up most of the time asking the lawyers questions about the facts of the case, and there was not much argument of the law. When Attorney Dodd neared the end of his hour without a letup in the quizzing, Chief Justice Vinson gave him—and the other side—an extra 15 minutes.

Too Far, Says Jackson

When Attorney Franklin told the justices they could not strike interest in religion out of the American people, Jackson told him:

"I think it is going a little bit far to say that because people do not agree with this (Champaign) system they are irreligious."

Jackson added that there are many devout people who do not believe public money ought to pay religious costs, and do not believe the State ought to compel people to be religious.

The First Amendment says there shall be no law respecting an establishment of religion. Franklin told the court that means the State cannot set up a single religion, but he said a State can aid religions if it treats them all alike. He claimed all the amendment forbade was a preference.

Black asked whether a State could vote five million dollars out of tax money to aid religions, if it treated all on the same basis. Franklin said the States could, and did, by allowing tax exemptions on church property.

Not a Violation

Pressed by Black, Franklin said, too, that the State could give 7½ hours of a school day to religious classes and only an hour to other work, without violating the First Amendment.

Justice Frankfurter asked whether it was wise to bring such a divisive factor as religion into the public schools. Franklin replied sharply that the court was not to weigh the wisdom of the plan, but just to decide whether it was constitutional. Frankfurter then told him, with some heat, that the Constitution was not something way off in the blue, but was a practical matter, which made the facts of the case vital.

Justice Murphy, who is sick, did not sit at the hearing yesterday. Justice Douglas left the bench soon after the argument began, but came back later in the afternoon.

The court is not likely to give its ruling until after the first of the year.

Sen. Stewart Of Tennessee To Run Again

By The Associated Press

Senator Stewart (D., Tenn.) announced yesterday his candidacy for reelection next year.

"I am so deeply interested in so many matters of Government," he said in a statement, "that I hope for the chance to continue to serve my people."

Representative Kefauver (D., Tenn.) has announced he will seek Stewart's seat in Tennessee's Democratic primary next August.

Stewart, of Winchester, first was elected to the Senate in 1938 for the unexpired term of the late Senator Bachman (D., Tenn.). He was reelected in 1942 for the term ending in January, 1949. He had the support of Edward Crump, Memphis political leader.

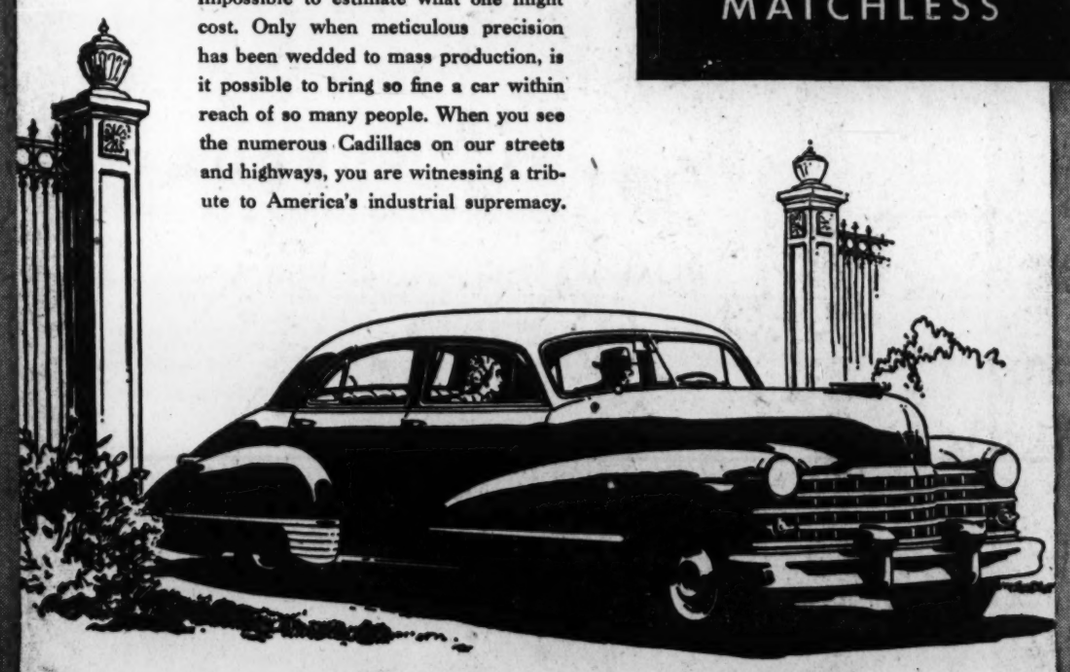
Cadillac

If Cadillac cars were built largely "by hand," in the Old World tradition, it is impossible to estimate what one might cost. Only when meticulous precision has been wedded to mass production, is it possible to bring so fine a car within reach of so many people. When you see the numerous Cadillacs on our streets and highways, you are witnessing a tribute to America's industrial supremacy.

MATCHLESS



If you are waiting for a new Cadillac—please be assured that every effort is being made to further production. Demand is so great, however, that some delay in delivery is still inevitable. But hold to your purpose! There is no substitute for a Cadillac.

Supreme Court Saves Negro From Chair on Racial Issue

The Supreme Court said again yesterday that the States must not keep Negroes—or members of any other group—off the juries in their courts.

Just two weeks after hearing his appeal, the justices saved Eddie (Buster) Patton from the death chair. They ordered the State of Mississippi to give Patton a new trial—this time without handpicking the jury.

Patton's lawyers call him an ignorant Negro youth. Early last year he was arrested in Lauderdale County, Miss., for the death of Jim Meadows, a 53-year-old farmer. He claims he was stripped and threatened until he confessed the crime.

Negroes Held Qualified

When Patton went to trial, his counsel showed that there were Negroes in the county qualified for jury duty, but that for 30 years none of them ever took a seat in a jury box.

Mississippi counsel argued in the Supreme Court that probably none of the Negroes was on the voting list, from which jurors are taken. Justice Black pointed out that a man had to pay poll tax to get on the voting list, and asked whether a State could tax a citizen for the privilege of being a juror.

For all the justices yesterday, Black said that when there was a plan to keep any group off juries, judgments given under such a plan could not stand, no matter what the plan was or how it worked. He added that this didn't mean that guilty men were to go free, merely that they must be tried as the Constitution commanded.

Many Previous Precedents

Black pointed out that the ruling was nothing new—that the Supreme Court again and again, for 67 years, had struck down the judgments of juries when Negroes were kept off of them.

The justices agreed yesterday to say how much Congress promised to pay on veterans' insurance policies, by saying what was meant by the promise to pay the face value of policies "in equal monthly payments for 120 months certain, with such payments continuing during the remaining lifetime of the beneficiary."

Pvt. Adolph B. Schwartz took out a $5000 policy in 1941, leaving the money to Mrs. Tillie Zazove of Chicago. When Schwartz died in a Japanese prison camp in 1941, the Veterans' Administration wanted to pay Mrs. Zazove $29.50 a month for 10 years (which would come to about $3500 in all) and then to go on paying her $29.50 a month for life. On the average, VA figures show this would come to paying $5000 in all.

Excess Payments Feared

But Mrs. Zazove claimed that was not what the policy meant and she sued for $48.08 a month for 10 years (which would come to about $5500 in all) and then for $48.08 for life. The Federal court in Chicago ruled against her, but she won in the Circuit Court of Appeals, which said the monthly payment should be figured without regard to how long she was expected to live.

Government experts say that if the Supreme Court rules for Mrs. Zazove the amount to be paid out on veterans' insurance will go up by tens of billions of dollars, and that on some policies the Government would have to pay out five times as much as it expected. The experts say that would mean the insurance fund would go broke.

Others pointed out, however, that the court decision will not cause all this money to be paid out, but will just settle that the Government promised to pay it, whether the Government meant to do so or not. They added that there is no question that Congress could pass a new law providing for the policies to be paid the way the VA has figured them.

To Rule on Picket Law

Besides these ruling, the court yesterday:

Agreed to hear the CIO's attack on an Arkansas law against assembling near the scene of a labor dispute and trying "by force and violence" to keep people from going to work;

Ordered a new argument on whether a Utah law against conspiring to harm the public health or morals is constitutional;

Refused to hear the appeal of Frederick E. Bauer, a German spy who has been ordered deported; and Declined—with Justices Black and Reed dissenting—to take up the New Jersey anti-strike law until the State courts pass on it.

Death in Parked Car Investigated

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

JOAN S. TANGHARE, 14-year-old high school sophomore of Mayville, N. J., was found dead in the front seat of a parked car 4 miles outside Cape May Courthouse, N. J., late Sunday. Police planned to question George F. Garrison, 28, her next-door neighbor, who was unconscious in the driver's seat. The car was out of gas, the ignition was on and death was ascribed to carbon monoxide poisoning were made retroactive to October 10.

The union, Ziegler said, was not consulted about this award. Ziegler he said no further meetings with the union were planned.

Levine Gives Union Views

Samuel Levine, council for the union, emphasized that the union is willing to meet at any time with the management. He said the union "has repeatedly requested" the corporation to "settle the labor problems at Fairlington through the lawful method of collective bargaining," adding that "as an alternative, the union offered to submit the case to arbitration."

"The multimillionaire corporation," he continuel, "evidently believed itself big and powerful enough to flaunt the law or the land, and chooses to resort to the law or the jungle instead."

Lucas said the present scale runs from 70 cents an hour for janitors to 85 cents hourly for firemen. He said workers are on a 44-hour week, with no extra payment for overtime, and and receive one week's vacation with pay annually.

Lucas emphasized that prime rason for the walkout was refusal of the management to recognize the union and to meet with it.

The Fairmac Corp., a Dallas, Tex., firm, took over the apartment development from the Defense Homes Corp., in October. It has since asked its 3500 tenants to sign two-year leases embodyinf rent increases ranging from 9 to 14 per cent.

The board of construction trustees and members of the Silver Spring Hospital Association, Inc., will meet at 8 tonight at the Liquor Control Board Hearing room, 8500 Colesville rd., Bethesda.

The group will discuss findings of the Silver Spring liaison committee and Suburban Hospital. Fred L. Lutes, president of the association, said the two groups have been studying a plan for a single hospital to serve the lower portion of the county.

Prosecutors Lay German Wars to Krupp, Militarists

Nuernberg, Germany, Dec. 8 (AP). American prosecutors opening the war crimes trial of the House of Krupp charged today the armament combine and "German militarists are the indestructible common denominator of Germany's murderous and obstinately repeated lunges at the world's throat."

The prosecution traced the history of Krupp, Germany's top gun-making concern, for nearly 150 years.

Alfried Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, head of the armament firm since 1943, is the main defendant.

More Nations Demand Equal Votes in ITO

Havana, Dec. 8 (AP).—The United States and Britain fought an uphill battle today to secure voting strength in the proposed International Trade Organization in relation to their industrial might.

Against a swelling list of nations demanding that equality of voting should rule when and if the ITO starts its task of policing trade between nations, the United States delegation stressed reasons that the economically strong countries should be given an even larger proportion of votes than Britain had suggested Saturday.

The United States, however, said that the question should be held open at this time and insisted it had not yet committed itself either to weighted or to equal voting rights.

China and Norway proposed a compromise making equal voting the rule on some issues and weighted voting on others.

Twenty-four other nations already have announced they will demand equal voting rights for the small nations as well as the industrial giants.

B & O Trains Detoured

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 8 (AP). Eight passenger trains had to be detoured Sunday night after nine cars of a freight train were derailed, blocking three Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks 1 mile east of here, company officials reported. The trains were detoured over a branch line between Weverton and Hagerstown, Md., and over a Western Maryland Railroad track between Hagerstown and Millers.

Papers Open Legal Battle Against ITU

Their ranks reinforced, American newspaper owners prepared yesterday to launch a showdown legal fight against the AFL International Typographical Union.

The publishers, who claim that the ITU is encouraging slowdowns, featherbedding practices, and attempting to coerce employers, take their case today before a National Labor Relations Board trial examiner in Indianapolis.

The hearing is based on a formal complaint issued last week by the NLRB regional office at Cincinnati, charging the ITU with violation of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Yesterday, the Inland Daily Press Association, representing 400 midwestern dailies, asked to intervene in the case, joining forces on the side of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Centers Around Closed Shop

The controversy between the publishers and the union was precipitated by the ITU's "no contract" policy. It seeks wage increases and other benefits but declines to sign formal contracts because the Taft-Hartley Act forbids renewal of the closed shop arrangements which the union has enjoyed in the past.

The situation has resulted in strikes in Chicago, Hammond, Ind.; Jamestown, N. Y., and Allentown, Pa., and difficulties in pending negotiations in Detroit, Baltimore and Washington. Yesterday, the printers struck the Times-Herald of Norristown, Pa.

Baltimore Case Argued

Locally, an NLRB trial examiner heard argument yesterday on a complaint arising out of the Baltimore situation.

Attorney Henry Kaiser for ITU Local 12, in Baltimore, objected to the NLRB's amending its complaint to charge that the union is attempting to force publishers to discriminate against nonunion workers.

He and Charles V. Brannock, president of the local, said the printers have engaged in no such coercion. They pointed out that no evidence had been introduced to suggest that any nonunion printers had been hired or that the employers had ever attempted to hire nonmembers.

Charges Harassment Effort

Referring to the effort to amend the Baltimore charges to make them similar to the complaints filed by the American Newspaper Publishers Association in Cincinnati, Kaiser asked sarcastically whether attorneys for the employers and NLRB intend "to amend the charges every time other attorneys thought up something in order to keep this case abreast of the others."

Kaiser contended that NLRB General Counsel Robert N. Denham is "attempting to harass the ITU" by enlarging the charges.

Sidney Barban, acting as attorney for Denham, said that the record in the cast substantiates the additional charges.

1,458,113 Leases Increasing Rents Up to 15% Signed

Leases increasing rents up to 15 per cent totaled 1,458,113 as of November 28, the Office of the Housing Expediter reported yesterday.

This amounted to 9.3 per cent of the estimated 15,700,000 dwelling units under rent control last June.

These leases, which Congress provided may be signed under a "voluntary agreement" between landlord and tenant, run through December, 1948. They must be signed on or before December 31, 1947.

The total of 1,458,113 leases is the number on file with local rent control offices and does not include those rejected by these offices and returned to landlords because of various defects.

Mexico Gets $13,000,000 Loan Here

By The Associated Press

The Export-Import Bank last night loaned 13 million dollars to the Mexican government to buy American machinery and equipment for the Mexican railway, sugar and meat canning industries.

The bank and the Mexican Embassy announced the credit would be divided as follows:

Seven million dollars for buying rails and accessories to improve various lines of the Mexican National Railway, particularly to change the existing narrow gauge line between Mexico City and Vera Cruz to standard gauge.

Five million dollars to pay for half of the equipment needed by Mexico to complete two new sugar mills.

One million dollars to buy equipment needed for new meat canning plants now being established in northern Mexico "largely on an emergency basis."

U. S. to Buy Canned Meat

The announcement explained the United States is contracting to buy a "substantial quantity" of canned meat for shipment to other countries in an effort to help Mexican cattle growers.

These growers can no longer ship from 400,000 to 500,000 animals to the United States because of the American quarantine against Mexican cattle caused by the foot and mouth disease epidemic.

Meanwhile, the joint Mexican-United States Foot and Mouth Disease Commission heard recommendations yesterday that rigid quarantine lines be set up to keep the Mexican epidemic inside its present boundaries.

The commission met at the Department of Agriculture to work out details of the new and drastically changed program to fight the dread livestock disease in Mexico.

Simultaneously, a House Agriculture Subcommittee urged that a "vigorous campaign" against the Mexican epidemic be continued under a director "of outstanding executive ability and experience."

Two Quarantine Lines Suggested

Undersecretary of Agriculture Norris E. Dodd presided over yesterday's opening meeting of the joint commission. Oscar Flores, Mexican co-director of the joint commission, headed a list of Mexican authorities here for the sessions.

Informants who attended the commission meeting said the United States has suggested that two major quarantine lines be drawn across northern Mexico, one stretching across the Nation just above the northernmost point where the infection has been found, and the other across the northern country a considerable distance above the first line of defense.

According to the United States recommendation, any outbreak of the disease between the two lines—that is, north of the lower quarantine barrier—would be stamped out by slaughtering and burying infected and exposed cattle.

The House Agricultural Subcommittee said in its statement it "refuses to accept defeat in the plan to eradicate the disease eventually from the continent."

Merchant Marine Lacks Discipline, Council Is Told

Cleveland, Dec. 8 (AP).—Commodore H. C. Shepheard of the United States Coast Guard complained today of what he termed "incompetency, ineptitude and lack of discipline" in the American Merchant Marine.

The Comodore, chief of the Guard's Office of Merchant Marine Safety, told delegates to the Merchant Marine Council of the American Legion that run-of-the-mill complaints against mariners in Washington include "narcotics addition, smuggling an dblack market operations." He asserted undercover agents and "sympathizers of foreeign ideologies" are threatening the safety of the Merchant Marine and asked a return of authority as exercised by the Coast Guard prior to last June.

Martin's Proposals on Voluntary Price Controls Gain Support

Sentiment in favor of a "voluntary" system for allocations and price controls, to replace President Truman's proposal for Federal authority to install selective price control, appeared to be growing yesterday in the House of Representatives.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin (R., Mass.), promised action next week on a two-point anti-inflation program, one part of which would be a bill to permit industry to enter into agreements to ration distribution without violating the anti-trust laws.

The other part of the program, Martin indicated, would be a bill to extend controls, expiring next February 29.

Drastic Steps Postponed

He indicated that more drastic measures, such as the grant of Federal power to impose a rationing and price control system, would have to wait until the regular session in January. And elsewhere in the House the feeling was strong that those phases of President Truman's inflation control plan should be by-passed altogether.

Martin's suggestion appeared to pick up two points of a three-point plan discussed earlier in the day by Representative Wolcott (R., Mich.), chairman of the House Banking Committee.

At a press conference, Wolcott expressed disfavor with Mr. Truman's price control program, and advanced plans for necessary legislation to permit voluntary agreements among businesses for rational distribution of scarce critical commodities; extension of export controls, and a plan to curb credit inflation.

This last would take the form of increasing from 25 to 40 per cent the gold reserves behind currency issues of Federal Reserve Banks, and increasing from 25 to 35 per cent the gold reserves which Federal Reserve Banks must carry to support the deposits of commercial banks.

Eccles Asks Special Reserve

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, testifying before Wolcott's committee, yesterday repeated a proposal made to other committees of Congress, to require commercial banks to maintain a "special reserve" with Federal Reserve Banks. He said it would reduce the amount of money the private banks have to lend.

Wolcott noted that the plan is opposed by Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder and said this was an indication of official Administration opposition. He added that there "certainly is no point in passing legislation which would not be approved by the President."

Eccles testified that the country already is in the "advanced stages" of inflation and urged immediate action to "guard against disaster." The longer corrective action is put off, he said, "the more severe will be the inevitable reaction."

Eccles' plan was also opposed yesterday by T. Allen Sproul, president of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. He said it won't do the job it's supposed to do and might lead to "impossible disruption of the Government's securities program."

Sproul supported another Administration recommendation in the anti-inflation program, however . . . the reimposition of curbs on installment buying.

Wolcott said Congress would be "reluctant" to grant the Administration hold-in-reserve authority to impose price and wage controls until it had demonstrated that voluntary programs have failed.

"Should their voluntary programs fail," he told a news conference, "then let them come to us and tell us—as they can't tell us now—where they want selective controls, and how they will be applied."

Chest Survey Group Is Fiven Official Sendoff

District Commissioners yesterday gave an official sendoff to the public information committee of the Washington Chest X-Ray Survey.

John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners, told an organization meeting of the committee in the Distrcit Building that the community was grateful for their efforts to explain the coming survey.

The survey, which seeks to x-ray every District resident over 15 years of age, will be held from January 12 to June 15, 1948. About 600,000 persons are estimated to be in the eligible group.

By uncovering unsuspected cases of tuberculosis, the survey will aid persons to begin treatment in early stages as well as check the spread of the disease to others, officials said.

Home Rule

Abandonment of the plan to have two councilmen nominated in each of the District's geographical divisions—the Southwest, Northwest, Southeast and Northeast—is probably the most important change made in the Auchincloss home-rule scheme since it was first announced. It never was clear why the Auchincloss Subcommittee, which had a clear sheet to write on, proposed such unequal representation. The division of the city into four sections running out from the Capitol for geographical convenience has no political significance. We think that the people of the District generally will be glad that the Auchincloss Subcommittee has now decided to have the Census Bureau divide the District into four units approximately equal in population for the purpose of nominating councilmen under the home rule plan. That will be fair to all, and, incidentally, the creation of entirely new nomination districts should have the effect of minimizing sectionalism rather than accentuating it.

The subcommittee did well to retain the plan of having all 12 of the proposed councilmen elected by votes from the entire District. This arrangement means that eight of the 12 councilmen—two in each district—will have to get their names on the ballot through petitions signed by citizens within their own area. But they can be elected only by a majority of the voters going to the polls in the entire District. Every citizen will thus have an opportunity to vote for 12 councilmen, and those receiving the greatest number of votes will be elected providing they have a majority of all votes cast. Where the votes are widely split among several candidates, no one of whom has a majority, run-off elections between the two having the highest votes will be held. This is certainly a constructive addition to the plan. And various other improvements have been made, such as giving the city manager an indefinite term instead of requiring reappointment every two years and authorizing the council to fix his salary, and the salaries of department heads.

The subcommittee is also right, in our opinion, in denying congressional representation on the proposed District Council. The proposed Senate-House Joint Standing Committee on the District and Congress itself will have ample power to review acts of the local government and veto any local policies that might run contrary to the national interest in Washington. To put members of Congress on the council would be to confuse the functions of both bodies and invite endless confusion.

Rejection of the idea of a referendum on the proposed charter was unfortunate. We ourselves have pointed out the futility of trying to conduct a referendum before enactment of the home-rule plan by Congress. An official referendum can be meaningful only if there is something positive to vote upon. When the plan has been finally shaped and enacted by Congress, however, we do feel strongly that the people ought to have a chance to accept or reject it. That is the American way.

Dutch Dilemma

At a time when many members of Congress are demanding that impoverished European nations take steps to help themselves, the Netherlands faces the danger of being stymied by American action from doing so. For its future export of bulbs and flowering plants to this country, which is its chief means of earning American dollars, depends largely on what decision the Department of Agriculture makes as to the limitation of imports of these products for the alleged purpose of keeping out plant disease. Following a recent hearing, the department took under advisement the matter of how far it would exercise the new authority in this field which was granted at the last session of Congress.

Meanwhile this country's 5000 garden clubs are continuing their fight to keep American doors open to Dutch flowers, shrubs and bulbs. They charge that domestic nurserymen advocating the restrictions, which would limit imports to stock absolutely needed for propagation, and require this to be kept in quarantine under bond, are using plant disease control as a subterfuge, and are really trying to shut off foreign competition. Dutch plant pathologists maintain that the proposed quarantine restrictions, which would cut Dutch nursery exports here to a trickle, are an outmoded method of plant disease control.

The Dutch, who have been developing their flower industry for centuries, and who have been exporting to this country since 1880, are in a quandary. They hesitate to go ahead with postwar plans to expand their tulip industry or to develop more rare varieties of roses, azaleas, lilacs, other plants, for which they were expecting a market in the United States, until they know whether or not these products will be virtually shut out. If this happens, the whole Dutch economy will be affected. Last year Holland's bulbs and flower sales to this country were about one third of her total exports.

Certainly no one would quarrel with efforts to keep plant disease out of this country. But since Dutch nursery products have heretofore been clean and healthy, it seems far fetched to insist on further restrictions at this time. It also seems short-sighted financially for this country to consider helping Holland under the Marshall Plan and simultaneously denying it the means to cooperate in her own rehabilitation.

Forgotten Principle

The extent to which Attorney General Clark stuck his neck out in getting up his list of 91 "subversive" organizations is indicated by the furor that has followed publication of the list. No one seems to be satisfied. All the organizations listed which do not consider the subversive listing a badge of merit are outraged by this arbitrary denunciation from the Government. At the other extreme, the Red baiters are disgusted because the Attorney General's list was so brief and restricted. Here is the best possible proof that no listing of allegedly disloyal organizations will ever meet with general approval. To be comprehensive and to avoid discrimination the Department of Justice would have to sweep into the disloyal category every organization which in any way disavows policies the Government is following. And that would produce a blacklist scarcely distinguishable from Hitler's or Stalin's.

No one pretends that the members of the proscribed organizations have committed any crime by reason of such membership. Certainly no prosecutions on that basis will follow. The only excuse for drawing up such a list is that it will guide the President's Loyalty Review Board and the heads of governmental agencies and departments in determining whether Federal employes are loyal to the Government which they serve. But actually it is serving a very different purpose. It has stigmatized a great number of citizens who have no connection with the Government and whose right to freedom of thought and speech and freedom of assembly cannot be denied under the Bill of Rights.

In our opinion, the Administration has committed a crass blunder in failing to distinguish between the rights of citizens and of Government employes as such. We have repeatedly maintained that the Government may and should ascertain the loyalty of its own servants by means that are fair and free from the witch-hunting spirit. But it has no right to inquire into the beliefs or associations of private individuals, unless they are suspected of having violated the law. In this instance the Government has been so intent on pursuing security risks within the Government service that it has openly invaded the rights of private citizens to think their own thoughts and choose their own associates without official molestation.

The reason for this is a mystery, since the Attorney General himself has warned against the blanket assumption that everyone connected with the proscribed organizations is disloyal. In other words, the case of each individual must stand on its own merits. Why, then, trample upon the spirit of liberty by working up a blacklist? To be sure, the Attorney General had no alternative under the President's executive order. But this is merely another way of saying that the order is at fault. It has grossly departed from the legitimate business of determining whether individual employes are security risks and embarked upon the illegitimate business of trying to police the thoughts and associations of the people. That is an encroachment upon freedom which, in our opinion, cannot be defended in terms of American principles.

Taft-Hartley Review

In an address before the Institute of Labor Law of the University of Minnesota Paul M. Herzog, chairman of the NLRB, surveyed the first hundred days' record of that reconstituted agency under the Taft-Hartley Act. Most of the board's time, he says, has to date been devoted to disposing of hundreds of holdover cases under the old Wagner Act. Practically no controversies arising purely under the new law have as yet got to the board for final decision.

However, passage of the Taft-Hartley Act has resulted in dismissal of all pending election petitions involving supervisors, since the new law excludes supervisors from the definition of employes granted statutory protection in the exercise of bargaining rights. The board has also refused to proceed with cases involving employers' refusals to bargain with foremen's unions. Moreover, in a number of recent decisions on old cases, the board has had to consider the effect of the so-called "free-speech" amendment that has aroused so much controversy. Mr. Herzog declares that this provision has not so far required any departure from the practices followed under the Wagner Act. What, if any, effect it will have on decisions in cases arising entirely under the new law has yet to be determined.

A great deal of the NLRB's time has also been devoted to interpreting those hotly contested provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act requiring unions to file non-Communist affidavits and financial information in order to use the machinery set up by the board. Despite the refusal of some unions to comply with the law's requirements as a condition of eligibility for certification as bargaining agents, Mr. Herzog says that compliance by major labor organizations is now proceeding rapidly, 125 national and international unions and 2176 local unions having fully complied with the terms laid down by the law. This encouraging progress was made possible by the board's decision in a representation case not to disqualify a union because all the officers of its parent federation had not complied with the law. Reversal of the general counsel's earlier contrary interpretative ruling solved a difficult problem and averted the danger that organized labor would try to wreck the bargaining machinery set up for its benefit rather than comply with the anti-Communist provisions of the law.

So far, it appears, the NLRB has been engaged in what might be called preliminary skirmishes to clear the way for action on many difficult cases that are certain to arise, especially under the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act relating to the unfair practices of labor unions. In dealing with cases of this sort the NLRB will be entering a new field and will have to set up a new body of precedents. It will surprise many people to hear that so far not a single case involving the new unfair labor practices provisions has been ruled on by the board or been the subject of a preliminary decision by a trial examiner. All the cases that have been given headlines in the newspapers, Mr. Herzog explains, involve the issuance of complaints or requests for injunctions that fall within the independent jurisdiction of the general counsel, who has complete and final authority over the investigation and prosecution of such charges. He adds that "until the board and the courts have spoken no one can be certain what the law will be on many of these subjects."

Mention has been made of only a few of the numerous issues that await clarification at the hands of the NLRB. Since the new Labor Act came into effect on August 22, more than 2500 cases have been filed with the board—about 40 per cent involve charges of unfair labor practices, while the remaining 60 per cent are requests for elections to choose bargaining representatives or to authorize union shops. Mr. Herzog evidently entertains justified doubts as to the ability of the board to deal expeditiously with so heavy a work load, although he notes that the filing of charges by individual employes against employers makes the number of such charges appear to be much larger than it really is.

However formidable the task ahead may be, Mr. Herzog's very exhaustive review of the board's functions and purposes leaves one with the conviction that no effort will be spared "to do even-handed justice, to promote industrial peace and to encourage collective bargaining." That is the purpose of the new law, and, in our opinion, given wise administration, it will prove its worth.

Secrecy And Security

"Secrecy, applied in a stupid and hysterical and demagogic way," Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy Commission told members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers Tuesday, "can actually impair and weaken our security." In this sentence Mr. Lilienthal summed up the paradox that encompasses our administrators with respect both to atomic energy and other phases of research. Mr. Lilienthal's plea was for a rational view of our security requirements as well as a broadened understanding of the nonmilitary phases of atomic energy. It was likewise a plea for recognition of the public responsibility, the responsibility of every citizen, for the policy the Nation is to follow on atomic energy.

No one in his right mind would contend that there are not some spheres in which secrecy is vital. Nor can our present system of security safeguards be regarded as wholly adequate. It can be demonstrated, we believe, that through the leakage of seemingly innocuous and unconnected bits of information we have actually been doing the Russians' research for them—though here, as in other fields, hindsight is always better than foresight. At any rate, there is a crying need, it seems to us, for a more mature and uniform security policy among all Government instrumentalities dealing with military research. An adult security policy presupposes some centralized method for passing upon what data are to be released.

This, however, is not the kind of secrecy Mr. Lilienthal is talking about. He refers, rather, to the illusory wall that some of our zealots would build around all things atomic. Not only would this kind of blanket secrecy ultimately turn out to be a mirage, it would result in shackling the very scientific progress which is the basis of our security. For scientific progress depends upon ideas, which are themselves the results of interchange of information. As Mr. Lilienthal has put it, "if this country is to maintain its preeminence in all phases of atomic energy, weapons and peacetime applications alike, the policy of the country must take into account how scientific and engineering progress is made." It is not made by indiscriminate efforts to deprive scientists of their raw material. Thus the movement of the Atomic Energy Commission to make available to engineers and technicians hitherto restricted information of a nonmilitary nature is actually a move to increase our security.

SEA HORSES

They surge in tireless companies of white,
The swirling, wraithlike creatures of the foam,
Forever nodding graceful plumes in flight,
Forever charging, yet forever home.
They rise in waves within the ship's huge wake,
Dissolve, and sink to haunted halls below,
Then rise again, and toss their heads and shake
Bright manes of spray; their streaming banners flow.

All through the luminous and moonlight night,
A vanishing but changeless track pursuing,
Their swift, excited, swerving course they keep;
Their trailing, sea-green bodies flecked with light,
They leap and live, their fragile forms renewing,
The pale, the restless horses of the deep.

Overseas Investments

In this week's Associated Press note of the death of Samuel Courtauld, Britain's rayon king, the implication is that the sale of the Courtauld interests in this country to raise dollars for prelend-lease was an act of patriotic largesse on the part of a great industrialist. The true facts are in the phraseology of the sentence but they are not evident to the general reader.

The Courtauld investments in America are particularly interesting because they represent perhaps the best case of liquidation of Britain's overseas investment in the early war days when the English needed dollars to buy war goods from the American manufacturers. The loss of these external money-earning units is one of the great contributing factors in Britain's present poverty-stricken condition.

The American side of Courtauld's is a dramatic illustration in that it accounted for 50 per cent of the total profits of the British firm. In other words, half of the British rayon company's profits were earned in America, though the average person would not think to look for British ownership in a firm bearing the name "American Viscose Co."

American Viscose had long been a Wall Street plum which Courtauld's had constantly refused to sell. When Samuel Courtauld finaly did dispose of the firm he did so at the direct order of the wartime British government. It sold at distressed prices because Wall Street knew it had to be sold. The British government took in the dollars and turned over pound notes to Courtauld's, pound notes which rest useless today in Courtauld's bank account because, as one of their officials recently pointed out to me, they can't even erect a plasterboard partition in one of their factories without government permission, much less reinvest any of their sale proceeds into badly needed expansion.

Samuel Courtauld disposed of American Viscose because his desperate government forced him to do so, along with many other British industrialists, the sale of whose "overseas investments" realized a sum estimated to be about five billion dollars. It was not an act of generosity, and even to this day Courtauld's insists that Wall Street put the international squeeze on the Viscose plum. That, of course, is big business and is to be expected of those who play in dangerous Wall Street. Instead of ennobling the late Mr. Courtauld, it might be far better to look for the lesson in the forced sale of British investments and contemplate, as we criticize the economically stricken nation, how well we and our prosperous manufacturers have made out in the deal.

"Investigation" Arrests

Most people will read items on arrests for "investigation" as violations of civil rights with the idea that it is bad, but it will never happen to them. Several years ago I was searching for a restaurant that I had heard had violin music every night. I circled the block once minding my own business when three plain-clothes men picked me up, took me to my room, searched every nook and corner of it, found exactly nothing, then took me down to the police station and booked me for investigation. I answered all their questions, told them where I worked, cooperated with them in every way, but had to spend a horrible night in jail without even being permitted to make a phone call. I was released the following day about 1 o'clock in the afternoon. I asked the sergeant at the desk what it was all about and he mumbled something about me being lucky I got off as easy as I did.

An attorney told me that I could sue for false arrest, but that I would get exactly nowhere.

Maybe it is nothing, but when one fills out an application for a job and the place where it asks, "Have you ever been arrested?" and you put down, "Yes, on suspicion," your status with your prospective employer becomes just that permanently.

Grammarian's Funeral

With shame and anguish I discover, in my review of Hitler in Ourselves published in The Washington Post of December 8, the following sentence: "It is one of those books concerning which it is difficult to decide whether it is truly profound or whether it derives an appearance of profundity from a protentous ambiguity." I must beg my readers to forgive me for so grievous a sin against grammatical number, freely admitting that I deserve to be whipped for it. Indeed, I feel like the man in the old song:

"Though by the Fowler slain,
Cold on the earth to lie,
Yet would I ne'er complain,
Joyful I'd die."

Restrictive Covenants

Dillard Stokes' article in The Washington Post of November 30 on the real estate covenant problem now before the Supreme Court was a fine service. It seems to be largely based on the complex of arguments before the Court. Unfortunately, these constitutional arguments do not go to the real heart of the grave injustice of restrictive covenants to the Negro.

The Negro does not buy property adjoining white residences in order to have a white neighbor. He is merely seeking the oldest necessity of man—adequate shelter for himself and family.

Covenants restrict the Negro's living space, forcing unhealthy and ghetto-like living conditions in some areas. They raise the cost of living for Negro tenants out of proportion to the value of the residences. They release pressure on the normal necessity for repair and upkeep.

I am not sure the implications of Mr. Stokes' conclusions are correct. True, most of the Negro population is kept away from the polls in the South in spite of Supreme Court decisions. But can extra-legal agreements contain the Negro population once the covenants are removed?

This problem needs intelligent city planning and a little home missionary application of democracy and brotherhood, which we are telling the world today is the real voice of America.

Congressional Pensions

In a United Press article published in The Washington Post of November 28, entitled "Pension Law for Legislators Year Old—and That's All," it is stated: "The new congressional retirement system has been in operation for nearly a year now, but information on who is participating is about as hush-hush as atomic energy."

Members of Congress were brought under the Retirement Act by the Reorganization Act of 1946. This act provides a retirement benefit of approximately 2½ per cent of total earnings for the national legislators and for a contribution rate of 6 per cent of their salaries beginning with August 2, 1946. They must have reached 62 years of age at least and have rendered at least six years of service in order to obtain retirement benefits. In case of disability, retirement benefits are payable after five years of service without regard to age.

Members of Congress are required to make contributions for all services rendered after July, 1920, plus interest, as though they had been under the retirement system, or else suffer a reduction in retirement benefits by the actuarial equivalent of such contributions. In any event, contributions to cover the last five years of service rendered immediately prior to separation are required.

Considerable publicity over a period of several years was given to the various retirement plans proposed for members of Congress prior to the adoption of the present system. It was felt there was general support for a system that would provide some measure of security for members of Congress in their old age. The system, in providing approximately 2½ per cent of total earnings, is considerably less liberal in relation to salary than that for officers of the military services who make no contribution to a fund. When contributions, amounting to $750 per annum by each member of Congress, are considered, there are many precedents in private industry where employes are more liberally provided for in their old age.

In at least two foreign countries before the war some of the public employes received up to 40 per cent more per year of service rendered than is provided for members of Congress, and in at least one of these countries no contributions were required of employes. Provisions for some of the members of the Federal judiciary in their old age is far more adequate than for members of Congress, as they may receive full salary after service of 10 years and they make no contributions to a retirement fund.

It is stated: "Under the program, a Congressman must kick in 6 per cent of his base pay for at least five years. This contribution is matched by the Government on a dollar-for-dollar basis." The Government makes no definite contribution; it merely guarantees the annuity.

It is further stated: "On the basis of the present $12,500-a-year salary scale in the House, a member who served the minimum five years would get $1372. If he served 20 years he would get $6250 a year." Few members of Congress will acquire 20 years of service. Those who were under the system at the end of the past Congress, but who for one reason or another are not in the present Congress and who rendered 20 years of service, may be receiving $5000 per annum provided they are 62 years or above and made a lump sum contribution to the fund of some $11,500.

It is pointed out that "156 in House are Counted In." If this means that 156 members of Congress have elected to become members of the retirement system, it should be remembered that not all of these members will receive old age benefits—some will fail to acquire a vested right to annuity, others will die before age 62 and still others will die in service.

It is pointed out that "the Civil Service Commission, which administers Federal retirement, said yesterday that it was bound by a law forbidding disclosure of the names of the beneficiaries." There seems no reason why full facts relating to the congressional retirement system should not be made available to the public just as they have been in the past, but it does not appear that any good purpose would be served by undue publicity with respect to any particular individual.

Curb On Overheating

NEW ORLEANS. — Voluntary rationing of fuel oil and gasoline is to be tried first. Already in some Southern States the oil companies are rationing their customers.

Anyone who travels across the country must be aware of one tremendous source of waste. That is in the overheating of hotels, transit, railway stations and all public buildings.

The temperature is ordinarily between 75 and 80. It is not merely uncomfortable. It is downright unhealthy.

Doctors have long agreed that overheating is more conducive to colds and sinus infections than underheating. Infections flourish in the overheated atmosphere in which the American city dweller spends most of his time.

Here is a source of fuel waste that can be checked quickly and with no Government red tape whatsoever. The top associates of the railroads and the hotels can agree on a Nation-wide program to cut temperatures three to five degrees.

The traveling public will understand that this is a patriotic necessity. I think most people would welcome the change.

The attack on waste should not stop with railways and hotels. Most schools, stores and offices are overheated. Again it would be a comparatively simple matter to organize a campaign aimed at school boards and retail merchant associations.

FROM THESE sources alone the saving should be tremendous. It might be enough to make the difference between a dangerous shortage, with its accompanying hardships, and a reasonable supply for all. And there would be a secondary gain in improved health.

In London I talked with Britain's Minister of Health, Aneurin Bevan. A former miner—he went down into the mines as a pit boy at the age of 12—Bevan was talking about the problem of getting more coal out of Britain's mines. At the end of our talk, he said:

"If you in the United States had not gone so far in converting both house-heating and industry to oil, you would have a coal shortage and a serious labor problem in your coal mines today. Instead you have an oil problem and it is world-wide in its scope."

There is potent truth in those words. Now we are only beginning to realize that mounting tension in the Near East threatens the oil supply that our military policy-makers have declared essential to America's future security.

IN RECENT months the newspapers have reported the Air Force and the Navy unable on occasion to obtain sufficient high-octane gasoline for routine training operations. The reason, of course, is the unprecedented civilian demand growing out of the boom.

But here is an astonishing fact that cannot be ignored. In communities remote from the sources of oil supply, there were times last winter when shortages came close to cold and breakdown.

There is a large question whether compulsory rationing of gasoline would work in peacetime. It might be easier to ration fuel oil.

But before rationing becomes an inescapable necessity, there are major sources of waste that can be checked with comparatively little effort. A drive should be started at once to curb the tropical overheating that now prevails in most public buildings.

Undoubtedly engineering obstacles stand in the way of a minimum reduction. With a real desire to conserve, however, it should be possible to get around these obstacles.

As a beginning—and it could be done by an order issued tomorrow—let the temperature in all Federal courthouses and postoffices be reduced by 3 to 4 degrees. They are just as overheated as any other place of public assembly.

Then, with that as a starter, the campaign should be carried to railways, hotels, schools, stores and office buildings. The time to begin is now, with the onset of cold weather. We will all be healthier next spring if the public hothouses in which we spend so much time are brought down to a reasonable temperature.

Hall Case

I wish to take this opportunity to thank Mr. L. Calvin Keene (letter published November 28) for the public expression of his views toward the Hall case. (Editor's note: John H. Hall was sentenced to death on November 28 after conviction for the rape of an 8-year-old girl.) As attorney for the defense, I, too, am deeply concerned over the disposition of this matter.

In representing Hall in a former case arising under an indictment for a similar charge last May, I recommended a mental examination of the defendant. The finding was "of sound mind but a high-grade moron." Before imposition of sentence Justice Holtzoff deplored the fact that there were no facilities in this city for treatment of this type of personality.

I, too, feel the penalty recommended by the jury is inappropriate, for the remedial element is missing as it was in Hall's former sentences. I have, therefore, filed a motion for a new trial with the hope that I may arrest execution of the death sentence and obtain a sanity hearing whereby this unfortunate man may gain commitment to an institution in which he can get the mental therapy he has needed for many years.

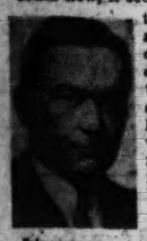
Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Inflation And The Key Men



Lippmann

THOSE WHO have followed the argument about our inflation and what to do about it could now, it seems to me, come to one useful and definite conclusion. They could, without too much difficulty, name the key men whose views must be reconciled if the inflationary boom is to be checked and controlled.

These key men are, first, the leading figures in Government finance, second, the leading figures in the Federal Reserve Board, third, the leading figures in the banking community. If they can agree on a policy and on measures, then the prospects of regulating the boom are good enough. If they disagree, go in opposite directions instead of in the same direction, then it is as certain as anything can be that the boom will run its course toward a bust.

FOR SEPARATELY, it is impossible for the Government, or for the Federal Reserve Board, or for the bankers to arrest the inflation, to subdue it and reduce it. Only in combination and with an agreed policy by all of them at the same time can the threatening conditions be brought under control.

Thus it is idle to talk of controlling the inflation if the Federal budget is not balanced with a substantial surplus which is then used to redeem Government debt held, not by the public but, by the banks. Therefore, the Administration must hold down its expenditures and Congress must not reduce taxes. Without a budgetary surplus there can be no counter-inflationary measures. This requires an agreement between the Administration and the congressional leaders.

But that in itself will not be sufficient. The Administration and Congress will have to agree on measures to restrain the inflationary loans which the Government credit agencies are issuing for real estate, for agricultural commodities, and for business.

AGREEMENT will be necessary between the central bankers and the commercial bankers—that is to say between the Federal Reserve Board and the leading bankers in New York, Chicago, and in other financial centers. For only by agreement among them on a common policy and common measures can the inflation of private credit, which is now proceeding at a high rate, be checked.

The commercial bankers alone cannot do this. Here we have the testimony of the National City Bank of New York, which says in its Monthly Letter for December that "it is the main responsibility of bank management and bank examiners to see that banks make only good loans" and then goes on to say that "even if all loans are good there could still be overexpansion of credit which would be inflationary." It is the responsibility of the central bankers—of the Federal Reserve Bank—to see to it that the banks do not make too many loans, though each of them is good in the sense that the borrower is a sound risk.

THE MAIN issue which has to be reconciled between Mr Eccles and the Federal Reserve Board on the one hand, the commercial bankers on the other, is how the overexpansion of bank credit is to be checked. No one really denies that the overexpansion needs to be checked. The disagreement which, if it is not overcome, may render all counter-inflationary measures abortive, is over how the overexpansion of private credit is to be checked.

The problem is a very difficult one. The orthodox method, which was adopted in 1920 after the first World War, is to raise the discount rates so high that credit becomes too dear to use. In 1920 the rate was raised to 6 per cent and 7 per cent. The result was that war bonds sold down in the lower 80's, and as Mr. Russell Leffingwell of J. P. Morgan & Co. put it in a talk last year "with what devastating results we elders well remember."

IN AN EFFORT to avoid these devastating results, Mr. Eccles and the Federal Reserve Board have come forward with a plan to "divorce the market for private debt from the market for Government securities." It is admittedly an unorthodox plan. But the size of our Government debt is also unorthodox, indeed quite unprecedented, and the effect of a drastic fall in the price of Government bonds would now be even more devastating than it was in 1920.

Yet there are men of great authority whose views command complete respect, who believe, as one of them wrote to me recently, that inflation cannot be checked as long as the Federal Reserve Board and the Treasury believe they must "valorize the total debt of the United States at a level to yield less than 2½ per cent on the longest bonds." For in holding up Government bond prices at this level, the Federal Reserve creates credit, and "the monetary inflation, which is the cause of price inflation, will continue and grow."

HERE IS the most difficult and the paramount issue which has to be resolved. It is how our enormous war debt is to be managed so that, on the one hand, the price of bonds does not fall seriously and, on the other hand, that the overexpansion of bank credit is checked.

The issue is not one, we had better admit, on which any of us who are laymen, have much to contribute. The best we can do is to urge Mr. Eccles and Mr. Snyder and the leading bankers to agree if they can. And if they cannot agree, then to lay before Congress and the people a clear statement of just precisely where they disagree.

Latin-American Help

By Sumner Welles

Corollary Of The Marshall Plan

AN ATTEMPT is being made to postpone the Pan-American conference scheduled to be held at Bogota next month. Were this effort to succeed, the "preliminary" economic arrangements which the State Department agreed to draft at that conference would be further delayed, and the economic conference, which was to meet before the end of the year, might be put off indefinitely.

All real inter-American financial and economic cooperation ended with the advent of the Byrnes regime. The hope that Secretary Marshall would repair the damage done has not been realized.

Secretary Marshall wisely called back to the State Department exceptionally qualified men to take charge of this Government's political relations with the other American republics. But in the Department of State, as now organized, the authority is divided. The department cannot cope successfully with the increasingly grave problems that are arising in the field of inter-American relations unless the same officials, at the highest level, formulate both political and economic policies.

THE STRAIN of postwar conditions upon Latin-American economies is now reaching the breaking point. It can only be successfully resisted if production increases, if inflation can be checked, if foreign markets are regained and if the other American countries can obtain the capital goods and the consumers' goods they require. But such commodities are only procurable in the United States, and for their purchase dollars are indispensable.

During the last year Mexico has used up half of her gold and dollar reserves, and Argentina, Brazil and Chile at least one third of theirs. Before the war Latin America had a favorable balance in her trade with the United States. This year she will have an unfavorable trade balance of at least two billions of dollars.

The other American governments have long foreseen the present crisis. They have persistently urged that a return be made to the same kind of practical two-way financial and economic cooperation that was so successfully carried on during the first 10 years of the Roosevelt Administration.

IT WAS for that reason that the address made by Secretary Marshall last August at the conference of Rio de Janeiro came like ice water. The American republics appraise accurately European emergency and the magnitude of the effort that the United States must make under the Marshall Plan if Europe is to recover. What they cannot understand is why Secretary Marshall found it necessary not only to proclaim that European recovery should be given priority over hemispheric recovery, but also that no effort would be made to coordinate hemispheric recovery with European recovery.

Under the most optimistic estimates the help to be given Europe under the Marshall Plan cannot show results before the early summer of 1948. In the meantime it is hoped that the stopgap aid now being voted by the American Congress can tide Europe over the emergency. If, during the coming transition period, the other American countries were enabled to supply western Europe with a part of the wheat, corn, fats, coffee, fibers, meat and hides so desperately needed, the burden upon the United States of supplying many of these products would be lessened.

IT IS HOPED that the Marshall Plan will restore solvency to Europe. But until then the Latin-American countries cannot buy the goods they themselves so urgently require for repairs, to increase production and to curb inflation, if they accept European currencies in payment for such exports. Under the present abnormal conditions they can only buy what they need if their shipments to Europe can be paid for in dollars.

Yet this Government has so far insisted upon divorcing the problem of hemispheric recovery from the problem of European recovery. When the legislation for the Marshall Plan is framed, hemispheric recovery should be tied in with European economic reconstruction. The United States would thus not only provide for a form of inter-American economic cooperation which is indispensable if a catastrophe is to be averted, but through the coordination of Latin-American resources with United States resources it could also thereby minimize the probability of political and social upheavals in the new world. It would insure a general rise of hemispheric living standards. It would decrease the strain upon our own economy. It could avert what will otherwise be an inevitable curtailment of Latin-American purchases of United States goods.

THE BITTERNESS of feeling of the other American countries at what is properly regarded as an unwarranted neglect by this Government of their vital interests should not be minimized. It is being voiced at the present sessions of the trade and employment conference at Havana. It is responsible for such fatal proposals for restrictive Latin-American customs unions as those now current.

The root of the trouble is that the present Administration is long on professions of good will to the other American republics but lamentably short on performance. As usual, the Senate is displaying far more enlightened leadership in hemispheric affairs. But Senator Vandenberg's initiative in expediting the ratification of the inter-American defense treaty, and Senator George's assertion on December 1 of the national interest in the "economic recovery and welfare" of our neighbors will not be sufficient in themselves to check the present trend.

What is essential is an executive policy of constructive action and an immediate return to effective economic cooperation between the United States and the other American republics for the common benefit of all of the peoples of the hemisphere.

Officers' Retirement Pay Changes Seen Saving Millions

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A caving of millions of dollars to the taxpayers in congressional changes in retirement pay laws for Army and Navy officers was foreseen yesterday by Chairman Charles H. Elston (R., Ohio) of the House Armed Services legal subcommittee.

The subcommittee yesterday drafted a questionnaire to be mailed to a list of some 32,000 officers on the armed services disability list, "except obvious battle casualties."

Elston said the subcommittee would reach into even lower brackets than will be on the list furnished President Truman by the armed services. The subcommittee, he said, will send questionnaires to men of the rank of Army major and Navy captain as well as to the others on the list that is now being prepared at the request of the Chief Executive.

The Treasury has suggested that officers' retirement pay for disability be scaled down to the amount of the actual disability incurred.

Committee members have indicated their recommendations will follow this line.

The committee will base suggestions to halt "any possible racket" in officers' retirement pay on the returns from its questionnaire. No difficulty in getting prompt returns is expected, since failure to return could be met by a subpena from the committee to appear in person.

The subcommittee questionnaire will ask:

1. Specific ground for retirement on the tax-free disability pay.

2. Whether promotions in rank were shortly followed by the retirement.

3. Present civilian employment, whether full or part time.

4. Whether the officer has received any physical examination for insurance or other purposes since he left the services, and what the finding of such examination, if any, was.

5. The amount of compensation the officer drawing tax-free disability pay receives in his civilian job. (Some officers who get better than $400 a month tax-free disability retirement are employed by large companies at salaries ranging from $50,000 to $75,000 a year.)

Army-Navy records disclose that some of the Nation's top wartime brass are on the list of those drawing retirement pay, including some of the most important desk officers who served in the Pentagon during the war.

Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, chief AAF procurement officer during the war, draws $550 a month tax-free retirement pay although he is employed at a five-figure salary by an airplane manufacturers association.

Echols chief wartime subordinate was Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, whose wartime extracurricular activities as disclosed by the Senate War Investigating Committee have led to a grand jury investigation of Meyers and renewed interest in tax-free pensions.

The high-living General Meyers, who is charged with reaping a golden stream of profits from wartime speculating and aviation accessories operations, was disclosed to be getting a $550-a-month tax-free pension.

The Army and the Air Force have stripped him of the pension. Also removed were his wartime decorations. His disability pension was based on retirement for nervous exhaustion."

The grand jury is expected to hear further evidence regarding Meyers tomorrow. District Attorney George Morris Fay told reporters he believed some Washington witnesses might be called and possibly one from out of the city.

At present the jury is hearing only evidence of perjury and subornation of perjury (the act of getting someone else to lie under oath) against Meyers.

At a later date, possibly weeks from now, the Justice Department expects to present further evidence involving charges of war frauds, attempted extortion, extortion, violation of statutes governing procurement officers and the like.

Under the present system disabled officers get 75 per cent of their base service pay, in the grade at which they were retired, free of taxes for life. Enlisted men's disability pensions are based on the extent of disability. Enlisted men may be retired at the end of 20 years, but in the case of enlisted men far more, of course, are discharged with disability pensions. Enlisted men's pensions are tax-free.

China Army Called Costly, Inefficient

ıitary's Domination of Public Life Declared Barrier to Political Reform

Nanking, Dec. 6 (Delayed) (NYHT).—Most Americans who study the Chinese situation for long come out with three damning judgments of the Chinese army.

First, it is exorbitantly expensive. Second, it is inefficient. Third, it dominates Chinese public life to a point where it blocks most political and economic reforms.

It is generally said that 80 per cent of the Chinese government's expenditures go for the civil war—that is, for the army. Few if any economists think there is any chance of stopping China's galloping inflation until the war is ended and the army is reduced.

The measure of the army's ineffectiveness is the fact that it is losing the civil war. Probably no detached military observer in China would deny this now. In the last year the Communists have taken the initiative away from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's army, which is spread out and glued down on the map to an extent where it can do little but stand still and wait to see where the Communists are going to strike next.

The criticism that the army dominates Chinese life needs some explanation. The army is really a super-government that controls the nation's politics and finances. But so great a facade of coalition government, constitutionalism and, most recently, free nation-wide elections, has been erected by the authorities, that this fact is obscured.

One way to discover the strength of the army's control is to examine the list of China's provincial governors. China today has 35 provinces, and the governors of 26 are military men. Of the remaining nine, six hold office—most of them only theoretically—in Manchuria, an area of which the greater part is in the hands of the Communists, and the lesser part is a nationalist armed camp, where generals make the decisions and civil officials act only by courtesy.

Three Civilian Governors

This leaves three civilian governors in the rest of China. One is in Sinkiang Province, or Chinese Turkestan, a military frontier where the Chinese army is boss without question. Another is in the restive island of Formosa, where the garrison commander is reputed to have at least an equal say.

Only the third, T. V. Soong, governor of the great southern province of Kwangtung, appears to be a civilian governor with real control over his area. It is fair to say that Kwangtung—with the possible exception of Formosa—is the only province where a nonmilitary man has the basic power.

The status of garrison commanders in China also is revealing. Most big cities and provinces have them. Normally they keep in the background, but in times of crisis they assume control.

Mayor Takes Back Seat

An example is Shanghai, China's largest city, which has an able civilian mayor. Last spring, at a time of student and labor unrest, Shanghai suddenly discovered it was under martial law. The unrest was put down by the garrison commander, with the mayor taking a back seat.

Every major political division in China, with the probable exception of Kwangtung Province, is set up to be handled this way. With this exception, every province or large city is under the immediate control of a military man, or under the shadow of a garrison commander who can step in when he thinks it necessary.

'College' Dog Settles Down After Long and Varied Career

TRUEHEART SMOKES AN AFTER-DINNER PIPE

After 12 years of riotous living, Trueheart, a German Shepherd dog owned by Mr. and Mrs. William T. Davies of Falls Church, has settled down to a graceful old age.

Davies, an accountant with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, who lives in the Ravenwood development, related that Trueheart, in his day, has played cupid, scholar, trashman, glutton and politician.

The dog attended William & Mary College with Davies and made every lecture. Sometimes the dog would show up at a lecture before his master. Seeing Trueheart, professors invariably marked Davies present.

Wise Old Dog

"Trueheart had a way of waking up two minutes before the end of class," Davies recalled. "If the professor ran one second overtime, Trueheart would stalk out of the classroom in disgust."

The dog's favorite sport, then and now, is canoeing. On the campus, he would pick up stray trash and pop it into receptacles. He used to carry posters ballyhooing candidates in campus elections.

One day, Trueheart disgraced his master and the college by running amok in the campus kitchen where he polished off a tableful of Virginia hams.

A Campus Cupid

Despite this, and a tendency to clown in public places, Trueheart graduated with a degree of Doctor of Dogology. He has a photograph to prove it.

The dog probably had some influence on the romance between Davies and his wife, Margaret, who also attended W. & M.

Trueheart did, and still will, "fetch Margaret" by the hand on command from Davies. At college, he used to play cupid by carrying messages between the couple. Mrs. Davies, as a matter of fact, wasn't too keen about that phase of Trueheart's career.

"Bill used to send him with notes to my room in the third floor of the women's dormitory," she said. "But somehow, they always got to a blonde on the second floor."

New Commandant Learned About Marines by Joining Up

By The Associated Press

Clifton B. Cates had never heard of the United States Marines before he joined up. But he's doing OK—on New Year's Day he will be sworn in as commandant, with seven rows of ribbons on the left side of his impeccably pressed green blouse.

Back in 1917, on the campus of the University of Tennessee, a friend suggested to Cates that they enlist in the Marines as a quick way to get into World War I. Game for anything, Cates said, "Let's go."

He got hit in that war seven times—once by a near-miss shellburst that left him standing nude as a plucked chicken—but he came out on his feet.

Today, as a major general, Cates says that if there is another war "both sides will lose—there will be no winner," but feels nevertheless that it's his duty to do his part in keeping the United States military establishment highly organized and ready for any emergency. He believes that atomic and other destructive weapons could easily destroy the economic power of all who take part in another war.

Cates, 54, will be sworn in as the nineteenth Marine Corps commandant with the rank of General. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, present commandant, will retire to the inactive list, move to his farm near Lynchburg, Va., and "become a country squire, suh!"

The wounds Cates suffered as a second lieutenant, and other fortunes of war, won him two Purple Hearts, a Navy Cross and a Distinguished Service Cross with Oak Leaf Cluster in World War I.

"He earned his way from a platoon commander through the company and field grades," General Vandegrift says of his successor in a brief review of Cates' 30 years as a leatherneck.

"It was the character and force of his personality that were successful at the battle for Iwo Jima. I have watched him lead a regiment and a division. And when, after the second war, he was put in charge at Quantico, our cultural center, if you please (almost all Marine Corps schools are at Quantico, Va.), he quickly rid it of the disrupting element it acquired after the war from the hundreds of Marine officers and men who were there just waiting to get discharged.

"He can build morale as quickly as any officer I know, and he soon got Quantico back to its normal productive basis."

Cates believes his new job will be a tough one.

"I'm going to have a hard time," he says, "filling the shoes of General Vandegrift and his predecessor (Gen. Thomas Holcomb), both of whom I served under in combat."

There may be doubt in Cates' mind of his ability to fill Vandegrift's shoes, but he has been groomed for the job, it would seem from talking with his fellow marines, with a careful and discriminating eye over a long period of time.

Cates was among the first to step ashore at Guadalcanal. He commanded the First Marine Regiment of the First Division, the boys who wear the "Guadalcanal" shoulder patch.

That operation, Cates says, was tops for discomfort—the "darkest days of the war."

General Vandegrift commanded our forces during the occupation and defense of that strategic island. He gave orders so fast and furiously, Cates remembers, that Cates was reduced to a quick "eye aye, sir, aye, aye" in answering the orders, although he says he was doubtful about his ability to carry them out.

"But it came out all right," he says.

Either a red table wine (like California Claret) or a white table wine (like California Sauterne) is good to serve with turkey. It is extra nice—and possible at today's prices—to offer guests a choice
To make any dinner festive . . . bring out some good California table wine—like Claret, Burgundy or Sauterne—along with your turkey. Table wines are the pure fermented juice of vine-ripened fresh grapes. And so they taste particularly good with meals. You serve table wine simply: just pour everyone a glassful and leave the bottle handy (on the table, if you wish) so all may help themselves. At today's wine prices, you'll find, it costs but little to add this good to dinner.
TIME TO ENJOY
WINE
IT COSTS SO LITTLE...AND ADDS SO MUCH
When you plan to entertain . . . wines, like Sherry and Port, are good to have on hand. These wines are made so as to retain some of the sweetness of the grape. California Sherry, for example, has a moderate sweetness and a "nutlike" flavor. It is a favorite to serve with appetizers or light refreshments. California Port is a richer, sweet red wine that tastes wonderfully good by itself. It also goes perfectly with fruit, nuts or cheese. Both Sherry and Port are inexpensive today but exceptionally popular with guests.

Government Would Put End to Tax Evasion By Speculators in Hiding Futures Profits

The Government acted yesterday to halt so-called "fictitious" transactions in grain, cotton and other farm commodities which it said some futures market speculators were using for the purpose of avoiding taxes.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson signed a proposed new futures market regulation intended to stop a trading practice which, he charged last week, 646 market traders have been using to reduce, postpone or even avoid payment of income taxes.

That practice is the "holding open" on the books of brokerage houses, a speculators' offsetting long and short positions in the same futures contracts. By "holding open" is meant postponement of a balancing of one transaction against another to determine the results of the two.

Aides of the Secretary said the 646 traders were in a position to avoid taxes running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars and perhaps into the millions.

Would Mark Off Deals

Under the proposed regulation, brokers would be prohibited from carrying offsetting transactions on their books after results had obviously been determined. Anderson acted under provisions of the Commodity Exchange Act, legislation which gives him policing powers over the futures market.

Before taking final action on the proposed regulation the Secretary will give consideration to all written arguments which may be filed for and against it during a 20-day period following publication within the next day or two of official notice in the Government's Federal Register that such a regulation is contemplated.

It is possible that the regulation may be carried to the courts for determination of its legality.

Example Explains Method

A futures contract is an agreement to buy or sell, as the case may be, of definite quantities of a commodity at a specified price on some future delivery month. A trader contracting to buy is said to be "long" while one contracting to sell is said to be "short."

Traders may deliver the actual commodity in settlement of their contracts, or they may settle by paying the difference between the contracted price and the commodity price at the delivery date. Most contracts are settled in the latter manner.

This is how, Anderson says, speculators have been using the futures markets to avoid taxes on profits they make on such transactions:

On June 23, 1946, for example, a trader buys 1000 bales of March, 1947, cotton futures contracts at 30 cents a pound, costing $150,000. On September 27, 1946, he sells 1000 bales of March, 1947, cotton futures at 37 cents a pound or a total of $185,000. This price difference represents the change in cotton prices over the period involved.

Half of Real Profit Shown

The trader has a net profit of $35,000 on these two transactions, covering a period of only three months. Ordinarily, the trader would be furnished a statement by his broker showing this profit. He would be subject to taxes on the full profit.

Aware that only one half of the profit derived from the sale of futures contracts held more than six months must be reported for taxes, this trader instructs his broker not to send him a statement of the results of these two trades, but to leave the purchase and sales transactions open on the books.

On January 15, 1947, the trader instructs his broker to close his accounts and send him a statement showing the $35,000 profit. The trader reports only $17,500 for tax purposes because, on its face, the profit was made on transactions covering more than six months, and hence was subject to taxes on only one half of the profit.

Profit Could Show as Loss

Anderson contends that this trader avoided taxes on $17,500—one half of the profit—because the profit was definitely fixed on September 27, 1946, which was less than six months after the initial transaction, instead of on January 15, 1947, when he instructed his broker to render him a statement.

Under the proposed new regulation, the broker would have been required to send the trader a statement on September 27, 1946, a date on which the full profit would have been subject to taxation.

Anderson said it was possible for the trader to carry his transactions and bookkeeping records a step further to make a profit appear to be a loss for tax purposes.

Butter, Egg Prices Near Dollar Mark

Butter at 98 cents a pound and eggs at 89 cents a dozen confronted Greater Washington housewives yesterday as local retailers boosted prices to meet increases in the wholesale market.

Immediate further increases in consumer prices for the two items appeared uncertain as quotations on the New York exchanges leveled off at new records reached at the close of business Friday.

Local wholesale prices yesterday were 93½ cents for top grade butter, 91 cents for Grade A, the largest seller, and about 79 cents for the best eggs. Butter was up a half cent and eggs generally held their own, with some decreases reported.

Henry T. Males, a large wholesaler here and chairman of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association's butter and egg division, said he was "looking for a downward trend in the egg market." The answer to butter prices, he said, lies in consumer resistance.

Egg production, he pointed out, is increasing, and resulting large drops in prices should follow.

The 98-cent butter and 89-cent eggs of the best quality, with a few independent stores charging slightly more. Lower grades of butter were available as "cheaply" as 95 cents and eggs about 85 cents.

One large home delivery dairy said it would sell butter today at 99 cents, an increase of 7 cents over yesterday, and grade A large fresh eggs at 94 cents, a raise of 5 cents. Another large dairy hit the $1 mark with unsalted butter delie,vred, with regular butter at 98 cents.

2 Senators Back Finney for Post

By The Associated Press

A former member of the Virginia House of Delegates—L. Stanford Finney of Rocky Mount—has been recommended by both Virginia Senators Byrd and Robertson for United States Marshal for the Western District of Virginia.

Senator Roberston previously had recommended the name of John Stuart, jr., of Lebanon, whose father held the job until his death several months ago, but Stuart wrote the junior Senator he thought his "best interests" would be served through private law practice.

Representative Thomas B. Stanley (D., Va.) had placed his support for Finney before the two Senators. Representative Harrison (D., Va.), on the other hand, had written Robertson earlier suggesting the recommendation of F. Larrick Zirkle of Broadway, a deputy marshal.

Estimate for U. S. Cotton Crop Increased by 189,000 Bales

By The Associated Press

The Agriculture Department yesterday estimated this year's cotton crop at 11,694,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight, or an increase of 189,000 over its forecast of a month earlier.

The crop is about three million bales larger than last year's unusually small one, but about 700,000 bales less than the 1936-45 average.

Increases in prospective production in California and Texas accounted for most of the boost over the November estimate.

In an accompanying report, the Census Bureau said that 10,056,347 bales of this year's crop were ginned prior to December 1, leaving about 1,638,000 bales or about 12 per cent still to be ginned.

Ginnings to the same date last year totaled 7,367,490 bales.

The production of cottonseed—an important source of vegetable oil and of protein feed for livestock—was estimated by the department at 4,744,000 tons, compared with 3,513,000 last year and 5,143,000 for the 10-year average.

The yield of lint cotton per acre was indicated at 265.4 pounds which is 30.1 pounds above a year ago and 14.8 above the 10 year average.

Harvested Acreage Increases

Abandonment of cotton land this year amounted to only 1.1 per cent of the acreage in cultivation on July 1, leaving 21,148,000 acres for harvest. This is 20 per cent more than last year's harvested acreage.

In California, where weather during growing and harvesting seasons was highly favorable, the indicated production is 75,000 bales above the November 1 forecast. Cotton production on the 534,000 acres for harvest in that State is estimated at 760,000 bales, or nearly 1.5 bales to the acre.

An increase of 110,000 bales for Texas was attributed to the extremely good yields being realized in the high plains counties where record production is now indicated.

In northern Texas, a good crop was made even though virtually no rain was received during the growing season.

Horse Claim Study May Settle U. S. Rights to German Art

United States rights to priceless German paintings and silver now in this country will be investigated as part of official studies now centering on the legality of American claims to 105 blooded Hungarian horses.

This was indicated yesterday when Senator Wayne Morse (R., Ore.), Senate Armed Services Subcommittee chairman, asked Joseph A. Todd, an assistant to Charles E. Saltzman, Assistant Secretary of State for Occupied Areas, to provide the investigating subcommittee with a detailed account of all property, "animate and inanimate," for which foreign governments have claims against the United States.

Hohenzollern silver, together with 202 German paintings from the Kaiser Frederich and Deutsches Museums in Berlin, were brought to this country in December, 1945, and stored at the National Gallery of Art. They have never been placed on exhibition.

Much Time Needed

Todd told Senator Morse that it would take a "very long time" to compile complete statistics from Europe and the United States on thousands of claims for hundreds of thousands of individual items.

Senator Morse advised Todd that the committee was interested in past, present and future disposition of claims for property under American control in Europe and the United States.

Speaking in terms of horses, the Senator pointed up the concern of the committee with quotations from a letter to the State Department, dated November 14, 1947, in which the Hungarian Legation here expressed regret that:

"We didn't get back the horses sold by the American Army, not even the sale prcie. We didn't receive reimbursement for the horses that died in the United States. They were the finest example of Hungarian studs."

In the light of the hearings last week, testimony of Col. Fred L. Army Remount Service who shipped 234 horses from European stud depots to this country, the Hungarians were to receive 90 of the original horses and 44 foals dropped by Hungarian dams. A total of 134 horses was scheduled for return to Hungary by shipment from New Orleans, La., to Trieste, Italy, together with 500 mules for Greece, aboard the Plymouth Victory, sometime about November 1-6. The Hungarians claim 105 horses brought to the United States from Donnauworth, Germany.

Senator Morse remarked for the record that the subcommittee co-chairmen Senator Edward V. Robertson (R., Wyo.,) and Senator Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.,) agreed with him to call Secretary of War Kenneth C. Royal and Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett to appear at the hearings when testimony of other witnesses is completed.

Colonel Hamilton told the committee it was his professional opinion "these horses are the finest of their type he had seen in 25 years of military service." He added, that he brought the horses to this country with the purpose of advancing American Army stock by "6 to 8 generations."

Senator Morse has expressed the thought that the United States might consider retention of the horses as a means of repayment from Hungary for an enormous amount of supplies and money, as well as reparations.

Pope Calls on Catholic Youth To Back Faith

Rome, Italy, Dec. 8 (U.P.).—Pope Pius, in a speech interpreted as a response to Communist violence, today urged 8000 Catholic youths to be ready to follow the example of early Christian martyrs in defending their faith against its enemies.

Pope Pius

The Pope, speaking in the great Hall of Benedictions, asked his audience:

"Are you ready?"

The assembled youths replied, "Yes," with a tremendous shout.

The Pope spoke at the closing session of the Congress of Roman Youth of the Federation of Catholic Action Organization.

Madame Sun Romance Talk Called Baseless

Baltimore, Dec. 8 (AP).—Rumors of a romance between Mme. Sun Yat-sen and Gerald Tannebaum, former United States Army captain, are "absolutely unfounded," Budd Tannebaum, Gerald's brother, asserted today.

He described as "all wet" reports that the Chinese government is trying to hush up a romance and prevent a marriage between the 31-year-old Baltimore man and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's 51-year-old sister-in-law.

Budd said Gerald met Mme. Sun while helping to operate a radio station in China, and has been working with her for the last year.

He said the romance rumors "were planted" by persons in China who disagree with Mme. Sun's political views. They were apparently based on the fact that his brother and the woman had exchanged phonograph records, he said.

Tannebaum said his brother Gerald is executive director of the China Welfare Fund, of which Mme. Sun is honorary president. He stated that Gerald visited his parents in Baltimore last spring, and that Mme. Sun interceded for him when he encountered difficulties in obtaining a visa to return to China.

Budd said Generalissimo Chiang had attempted to keep Gerald out of the country.

Budd asserted the China Welfare Fund is in disfavor with Chinese right wingers because it is extending aid to the Communists as well as to other Chinese.

Public Study Of Mental Disease Urged

Baltimore, Dec. 8 (AP).—Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, said today "mental disease is not a skeleton to be hidden in the closet."

He told the 250 delegates at the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers, the time has come to bring the subject of mental health into public discussion as was done with cancer and venereal diseases. Each community needs a general all-purpose mental health clinic, he said.

Qualified doctors of cancer, he said, say one-third of those who die annually could be saved, "if all our knowledge was applied."

Parent-teacher forums "for discussion of national and international situations" were urged by Mrs. John E. Hayes, first vice president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. Mrs. Hayes of Twin Falls, Idaho, said international ill-will stems from "failure to know the problems and cultures of other peoples."

Mrs. Hayes advocated reduction of the size of elementary classrooms "in fairness to both students and teachers." Teachers are drawing 350 million dollars more in salaries this year than last, she said.

Yugoslavia, Hungary Sign Defense Pact

Budapest, Hungary, Dec. 8 (AP).—Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito forged the third ling today in a projected four-power Danubian defense chain by signing a mutual-aid treaty with Hungary. He commented that such action "may hinder capitalistic imperialistic states from fishing in troubled waters."

Tito

The Yugoslav premier, who signed a similar pact with Bulgaria last month, said he would conclude another with Romania "in the near future." All are for 20-year periods.

He denied the agreement with the three Danubian states constituted a "bloc."

"There is no talk of a bloc because other powers then would also form blocs," he asserted. "This series of understandings is only to assure peace in this part of the world."

The treaty with Hungary said "if Germany or any other country should attack one of the other of the contracting parties, the other party will come to the aid of the attacked without delay and with all her military powers."

Veteran, 60, Found Shot; May Recover

A 60-year-old Army veteran, who suffered a critical bullet wound Saturday, was given an even chance to live yesterday, following a delicate brain operation at Gallinger Hospital.

He is John J. Maurer of 2415 Congress st. se., who was found unconscious in his home, a .32-caliber revolver at his side.

The bullet had entered below his chin on the right side, behind the jaw bone. It had cut through the left side of his nose and passed behind his left eyeball, injuring the optic nerve. Then the bullet passed through the roof of the eye cavity, penetrating the left frontal lobe of the brain and emerging high in the forehead.

During the operation, the whole anterior half of the left frontal lobe had to be amputated in order to reach the opening on the floor of the frontal region, where the membrane had to be closed over tightly. This opening had to be closed to prevent germs from going from the nose to the brain through the channel created by the bullet.

A half hour after the three-hour operation Sunday, Maurer moved both arms and legs. He was reported conscious and "alert" yesterday. He is being treated with penicillin and streptomycin to keep down infection.

Dr. A. R. Sweeney, superintendent of Gallinger Hospital, said the operation had been performed by Dr. Jonathan Williams of 1801 K st. nw., a neurosurgeon.

Maurer's wife told police at the time of the shooting that her husband had shot himself after firing once in her direction. She said he had suffered from cancer of the tongue.

British Would End Mandate Over Palestine by May 15

London, Dec. 8 (AP).—Britain has proposed to the United Nations that she terminate her 26-year-old Palestine mandate next May 15 and that independent Jewish and Arab states come into formal existence two weeks later, government sources said today.

The British will hold to their August 1 deadline for getting the last of their troops out of Palestine, but would take no further responsibility for averting Jewish-Arab strife after May 15, the informants said.

British authorities in Palestine are authorizing creation of Arab and Jewish civil guard organizations now to maintain law and order at key spots in the Holy Land, the informants added.

Full details of the British proposal will not be announced here until Thursday or Friday, when a two-day debate will open in the House of Commons on Palestine.

It was believed the Jewish civil guard would be made up largely of the underground defense army Hagana.

One government source said Britain was still negotiating with the Trans-Jordan government for use of King Abullah's Arab legion for police duties in Arab section of Palestine, especially around oil and pipeline installations.

Admission of 16,000 Jewish immigrants now detained in Cyprus before the mandate ends was believed entailed in the British plan.

Overconfidence in Science Seen U. S. Peril by Standards Chief

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

National dangers from overconfidence in today's "golden age of science" were stressed here last night by Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards.

Dr. Condon spoke before the American Council of Commercial Laboratories, in annual meeting at Hotel Statler. The organization comprises 37 independent, scientific testing laboratories within the United States.

Emphasizing the dangers of overconfidence, he pointed out that a "scientifically sophisticated" Germany aided that nation's downfall, and England's "acceptance of its preeminence in technology as a law of nature" resulted in Britain's present financial dilemma.

He particularly urged large-scale, national support in basic research, declaring "we must be willing to support science appreciably if we expect to gain heavily and maintain leadership."

"As a Nation," declared Dr. Condon, "we have been outstanding in applying science; we have not been outstanding in basic scientific discoveries or theory."

Atomic energy, radar and synthetic rubber, he pointed out, were first explored by Europeans, and it was on their basic research that American scientists developed the three to wartime and postwar levels.

Listing what he called "humane" sciences as economics, sociology and political science, Dr. Condon declared:

"Since the physical sciences have outstripped man's capacity for using them wisely, sanely, religiously, it is of the utmost urgency that we attempt to forge ahead in the humane sciences lest all be lost."

Senate Returns Bill on 'Voice' To Committee

By The Associated Press

The Senate sent back to its Foreign Relations Committee yesterday the House-approved Mundt bill to authorize the State Department's foreign information program and "Voice of America" broadcasts.

Senator Smith (R., N. J.), asked return of the bill, which the committee had sent to the Senate with a recommendation that it passed. He said there were certain amendments he believed the committee should make. Republican leaders previously had decided they did not want the measure brought up during the special session because of the pressure of other matters.

Smith told reporters amendments he has in mind include provision for an advisory board made up of top ranking newspaper, radio, movie and other men to fix policy on the type of information sent abroad.

Budget Talk Set Tonight In Alexandria

The first open-to-the-public discussion on Alexandria's 1948 budget is scheduled for tonight at a meeting of the Alexandria City Council.

Tonight's meeting, however, will not take the place of the required formal public hearing to be held sometime within the next two weeks, council members said.

The meeting is the second of three special council sessions this week on the budget.

A closed session was held last night at which City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanta submitted most departmental budgetary proposals not heretofore presented to the council.

Among the budgetary matters under consideration is a new license tax ordinance generally agreed up by the council last Saturday. The proposed ordinance, recommended by University of Virginia tax experts, would "equalize" taxes against businesses broadening the present license system to tax businesses according to income rather than on a flat rate for various types of establishments.

The City Council will hold its third budgetary meeting of the week tomorrow, when it meets with the Alexandria School Board to go over 1948 school needs.

2 to Represent Post at College Publicity Meet

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 8 (AP).—Educational publicists from all over the South Atlantic area will gather here tomorrow for a three-day conference of district 4 of the American College Public Relations Association.

The district, including Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina, Delaware and the District of Columbia, has as its director Miss Martha von Briesen of Sweet Briar College.

Fred M. Hechinger, education feature writer for The Washington Post, New York Herald-Tribune and the London Times, will address the opening session, scheduled for 4 p. m.

President Colgate W. Darden, jr., of the University of Virginia, and William Avirett, education editor of the Herald-Tribune, will speak at the dinner meeting to which presidents of Virginia colleges have been invited.

Wednesday, a session on news writing will bring Ken Harter of The Washington Post, Frank H. Fuller, chief of the Richmond Bureau of the Associated Press, and Miss Therese Priory of the Herald-Tribune.

In a separate sports meeting Wednesday afternoon Horace Renegar, of Tulane University, national president of the association, will be among speakers.

Geiger Counter Finds Lost Radium Needles

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 8 (U.P.).—A Geiger counter flown here from Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge today located four radium-tipped needles valued at $6000 accidentally thrown onto the vast acres of the city dump.

MIT Grads to Meet

Alumni of Massachusetts Institute of Technology will meet at Barker Hall, YWCA, 17th and K st. nw., Thursday at 6:30 p. m. Speaker will be Capt. Robert S. Quackenbush, jr., USN, who will discuss "Operation High Jump," the 1946 Byrd expedition to Antarctica.

Barney Circle Traffic Plan Held 'Stopgap'

Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst said yesterday he would support one of the Capital Transit plans for easing rush-hour traffic jams at Barney Circle, but termed it only a "steop-gap" plan at the best.

He told a luncheon meeting of the District division, American Automobile Association, that the people of the southeast who "have been very patient" about congestion at the circle—at the western end of Sousa Bridge—are entitled to "permanent relief."

At a hearing October 22 before the District Commissioners and the Public Utilities Commission, five plans were submitted by Capital Transit Co., and one by the Highway Department, intended to eliminate traffic jams at the circle. The department's plan calls for cutting a main artery through the circle and placing the streetcar turnaround underground. Capital Transit plans would keep streetcars on the surface.

Bridge Traffic Tripled

Captain Whitehurst said almost 40,000 vehicles cross Sousa Bridge in a 24-hour period, three times as many as the bridge carried when it was completed in 1939.

This traffic, including Washington, Marlboro and Annapolis Motor Lines' buses, flows directly into the circle, which is also a terminus for streetcars and Capital Transit bus lines.

The Capital Transit plan, which Captain Whitehurst referred to, would reroute two Capital Transit bus lines, the B-2 line entering Barney Circle from 17th st., and the V-6 line entering it from K st. Both lines, under the proposal, would enter the circle from Pennsylvania ave.

Dupont Contract Near Completion

Captain Whitehurst also stated that the contract for reconstruction of a main traffic tunnel for the Dupont Circle underpass is expected to be given this week to the contractor, John McShain, Inc., Philadelphia. Award of the contract for $3,951,485 was previously announced, but the District Commissioners said they hoped to make revisions which would reduce that figure, by $200,000.

Work on the underpass will start in February or March, Whitehurst said.

Mrs. George C. Thorpe, chairman of the legislation committee of the District AAA, reported that she is still hopeful of action on three legislative proposals: scientific tests t odetermine drunken drivers, a strengthened motor responsibility bill to make reports of accidents mandatory, and extension of driver training programs from vocational schools into high schools.

Winged Cargo Enjoined On Passenger Flights

Philadelphia, Dec. 8 (AP).—United States District Judge James P. McGranery today issued a temporary injunction restraining Winged Cargo, Inc., Philadelphia, from carrying passengers to foreign points on regularly scheduled flights.

The injunction, to be effective until the jurist holds a final hearing within 30 days, was issued at the request of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The board's complaint was that Winged Cargo has only limited authority under a letter of registration which allows it to carry cargo and passengers anywhere in this country or its possessions, and cargo—but not passengers—to any foreign country on "irregular" or "unscheduled" trips.

Interest Rate Raised On Commercial Paper

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—Leading dealers increased interest rates on commercial paper by 1/8 of 1 per cent today, charging 1¼ per cent for prime paper which heretofore had been commanding 1 1/8 per cent. On lesser known names the interest rate was reported at 1½ per cent.

The increase followed a generally hardening trend in interest rates in evidence within recent months.

Commercial paper is the term used to designate unsecured loans made to business firms usually on a four to six months maturity basis.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Dec. 8 (AP).—Pressing weather in the Southwest and re-entry of the Production and Marketing Administration into the flour market caused grains to close with gains of several cents on the Board of Trade today.

For most of the session cereals backed and filled over a fairly wide price range. At one time the December wheat contract fell below $3.00, but reviving demand was evident at that point. A good deal of short-covering entered pits toward the close and final prices were about the day's best.

Wheat closed 2½ to 3 cents higher, December 3.04⅛@3.05; corn was 2¼-2½ higher, December 2.54⅞@2.55; oats were 1⅜-1⅞ higher, December 1.23⅛@1.23⅜, and soybeans were unchanged to a cent higher, March 3.80.

Receipts: Butter, 51,385 lbs.; eggs, 5327 cases.

New York Cotton

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—Cotton futures closed steady today at gains of 30 to 85 cents a bale notwithstanding a surprise Government cotton crop forecast 189,000 bales higher than the official November report. The Department of Agriculture estimated the 1947 crop at 11,694,000 bales. Traders had looked for a 100,000-bale decline. The consensus among traders was that the indicated increase in supply will not materially relieve the tight situation developing as a result of dwindling stocks, large domestic demand, and substantial exports expected under the Marshall foreign aid program.

Broad mill buying and coverings in the forenoon carried the market up to gains of better than $3 a bale. After the crop report was issued the market slumped $2 a bale temporarily but showed steady rallying power in later dealings.

State Retail Units to Band At Parley Here

By S. Oliver Goodman

Formal organization of State retail associations into a national conference is anticipated at the annual meeting of the American Retail Federation here on January 9 and 10.

The new conference, it was learned, will be similar to the General Council of Retail Associations.

Expected to attend the session at the Hotel Statler will be representatives of 20 national and 34 State retail associations and merchant members of key retail stores.

One of the matters to be considered by trustees of the federation will be the selection of a new president. Walter Morrow, president since April, 1944, has stated he will not stand for reelection.

In addition the board will consider recommendations to effect closer liaison between State and national retail associations and the ARF in policy formulation.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: H. C. Hatch has been appointed Southeast regional manager of Gar Wood Industries, Inc., with offices in Washington, John E. Lyons will act as manager of the company's Washington branch, succeeding John Schoonfield . . . Quentin Roosevelt has been appointed by Pan American Airways to serve as vice president and director of China National Aviation Corp. . . . Capital Airlines has named R. Neil Ritter as Pittsburgh district sales manager and Wallace L. Gates to similar post in Chicago.

One on the Aisle—

Hearing for Galileo

ANTA Puts on Intricate Play

By Richard L. Coe

ANTA, which means the American National Theater and Academy, is a nonprofit organization in New York which has received a congressional charter but no Federal funds.

Sunday night, in New York's 900-seat Maxine Elliott Theater, ANTA sponsored the first play of the second season of its producing organization, the Experimental Theater. Admission is on a subscription basis, six plays to be given for six performances each.

The play was Bertolt Grecht's "Galileo," a script which numberless producers have passed up because it has some 66 speaking parts and 20 scenes. Though the series last year did not present noted stars, there was one Sunday evening for Brecht's play—Charles Laughton, who had not appeared on the stage since "The Fatal Alibi" of 15 years ago. Others in the cast whose names you probably know are Joan McCracken (of the original "Oklahoma!"), John Carradine, Wesley Addy and Rusty Lane.

For several years now Laughton has been badgering the producers to put on "Galileo." While he did it in Hollywood last summer, the New York production represents something of a triumph in persistence. Despite some Gotham comment that such names as are involved in "Gallileo" are hardly experimental, that criticism is quite specious.

For Brecht's script fully qualifies with ET's plan to "put on plays of an unusual nature which were not otherwise likely to see the light of day." This biographical study of the seventeenth century scientist certainly comes under such a premise.

Truth vs. Authority

The story is certainly a dramtic one, for it deals with the battle between science and religion. Galileo's discoveries were completely at odds with the teachings of the Roman church at the time; in particular his theory that the earth revolved around the sun was viewed as heretical. It is the age-old struggle of truth to assert itself in an atmosphere of an authority that cannot budge a jot.

Brecht has covered the story over a 30-year period, employing personal facets of Galileo's life to dramatize his struggle with integrity. The many scenes are talkative and loosely-joined, but often the talk is good and several of the scenes are immensely effective.

There is, for instance, the tortuous problem of Cardinal Barbarini, who on his election to the papacy had to decide between the possible rightness of the scientist and the traditional teachings of his church. In a finely staged scene, Rusty Lane, as the Pope, finally turns the scientist over to the papal inquisitor—cautioning him not to use all the instruments of torture. But Galileo must recant.

That he does, he finally explains to one of his disappointed followers, is because he simply wishes to live, other considerations beside the point. As it was played Sunday evening, the full import of this lengthy final scene struck us as being either fuzzy in the writing or muffed in the speaking.

Over-Arty Production

The part is a fine one for the theatric Laughton, who did the translation himself. While his entrance is ineffective (a production fault), he makes Galileo a memorable figure—a man who knows his strength and weaknesses.

The production itself, directed by Joseph Losey, is unnecessarily experimental. The settings and properties are quite sufficient for telling the story. Screen projections suggest change of place, a worthwhile method of production economy with which no one except the stage hands' union can complain.

But there are whirligigs on the arty side which add nothing. Galileo makes his entrance from the front of the house, and the scene changes (which take literally no time) are made while three boy sopranos chant unintelligibly in the orchestra pit—presumably about Galileo, but their diction was excessively bad.

Granted that the Brecht script and possibly the Laughton translation is episodic and curiously ineffectual in making points clearly, the production is needlessly pretentious. There is a mummery parade (April Fool's Day, 1632) evidently intended to show the effects of Galileo's teachings on the untutored classes, but its effect is only to confuse.

John Garfield Next

Watching the play, however, was a welcome experience and certainly ANTA's group is to be congratulated for producing an undeniably interesting script which no one else would. One left Miss Elliott's historic old playhouse with the feeling that there is life and vitality still in an ageless art which need not always truckle to the disease of money.

Experimental Theater performs Sunday, Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings and, on the final date of each play, both Sunday matinee and evening. Subscriptions to the six plays are $18 for the orchestra and $14 for the balcony. The mail address of ANTA is 139 West 44th st., New York 18, N. Y.

"Galileo" completes its run next Sunday evening. Second play in the series is to be Jan de Hartog's "Skipper Next to God," with John Garfield, beginning January 4.

MIKEL AND LUCY OF ZILANIA: Bobby Clark and Marjorie Gateson joined their comic forces last night on the National stage for Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts." Clark's painted spectacles need no comment, but it does seem odd to find Miss Gateson, that amusing grande dame of countless films and plays, taking over his teegar

Abortion Case Death Brings Indictment of U. S. Employe

Harold D. Miller, 46-year-old Bureau of Standards laboratory employe, yesterday was indicted by a District grand jury on charges of performing an abortion which led to the death of Agnes Marie Blume, 26-year-old receptionist, October 26.

Miss Blume, who lived at 821 Emerson st. nw., died in Casualty Hospital three days after the alleged illegal operation. Deputy Coroner Christopher Murphy said her death was caused by effects of the operation.

Miller faces a maximum of 20 years imprisonment if convicted. Nonfatal abortion is punishable by a maximum of 5 years.

Three Indicted in Holdup

Three men were charged with robbery in the holdup and shooting of Paul S. Allen, 47, of Baltimore, November 11. Allen was robbed of $29 and shot in the thigh as he walked with a girl friend on E st. near North Capitol. Russell L. Perry, 21, of 212 D st. nw.; Charles W. Taylor, 21, Perry's roommate, and Harold Scott, 20, no address, face trial.

Police say Perry did the shooting. He was charged with carrying a deadly weapon and assault with a dangerous weapon in addition to robbery. Perry and Taylor were also indicted on a second charge of robbery in the holdup of a cab driver, Major Suggs, 1425 Bangor st. se., November 8.

The same two are accused of robbing and beating Mr. and Mrs. Howard V. Jones, 3334 Blaine st. ne., November 10. The Joneses were forced into the rear seat of their own car parked near Union Station, beaten and robbed as the vehicle sped through the city streets. They escaped their captors by opening the car door and rolling to the roadway.

Two men were indicted on charge of carnal knowledge. They are Jesse B. Jesames, 38, of 1016 South Carolina ave. se., who is charged with the offense against a 12-year-old girl, and Stanley J. Dyson, 21, of 1334 11th st. nw., charged in connection with a girl, 14.

Attempted Rape Charge

Joseph Abney, 25, of 95 Fenton st. nw., was charged with assault with intent to rape a 21-year-old waitress. According to the girl she was yoked from behind en route to work, and dragged into an alley between M and N sts. and N. Capitol and 1st sts. ne. November 21. Abney was arrested at the scene.

The grand jury returned 21 indictments and ignored charges in four cases.

Others indicted were:

Non-support of minor children—Samuel N. Damren, Maine.

Assault with a dangerous weapon—Edward W. Johnson, 921 4th st. nw., and Roy E. Williams, 13th and T sts. nw., (also indicated for carrying a deadly weapon).

Robbery—Douglas F. Jackson, 2216 H st. nw., and James L. Taylor, 5054 Milwood la. nw. (also for carrying deadly weapon).

Housebreaking and larceny—Albert L. Harmon, 1004 Park rd. nw.; Joseph A. Diggs, 2335 Georgia ave. nw. (also for forging signature on and uttering United States Postal Savings Certificates), and Henry L. Harvey, listed at two addresses, 4720 Meade st. ne. and 1307 T st. nw. (also for unauthorized use of vehicle).

Unauthorized use of vehicle—Frank Richardson, 5141 Lee st. ne., and Willie W. Moses, 1118 8th st. nw.

Grand larceny—Randolph Dickson, 427 17th st. se. (also for unauthorized use of vehicle).

Violation of gambling laws—Bennie Olewick, 115 Missouri ave. nw., and Harry O. Smith, 5019 Sheriff rd. ne.

Violation of Selective Training and Service Act—Joseph Suber, 468 N st. nw.

Failure to pay transfer tax on narcotics—George McIver, 2015 15th st. nw.

Grand larceny—Ross J. Armstead, jr., Chesterbrook, Va., and Francis L. Brown, 338 15th st. se.

Violation of Harrison Narcotic Act—William Upshaw, 128 G st. sw.

Grand larceny—Howard David, 214 G st. ne.

Larceny after trust—William C. Tyree, 4802 Bass pl. se.

Housebreaking—Leroy R. Gravette, address unknown.

Page County Has 2 Corn Champions

Luray, Va., Dec. 8 (Spl.).—County Agent G. H. Clark today announced that duplicate awards will be given to Page County's two corn-growing champions. Two brothers, John and Paul Shuler of near Shenandoah, were named champion Friday night with 110.2 bushels per acre. Later Denton Smith of Springfield challenged the judges' decision and said he had 113 bushels. Both the Shulers and Smith are now slated to receive $50 awards and silver cups.

Tax Cut Bill To Be Offered Soon in House

A tax reduction bill which may cut individual income levies in 1948 as much $5,500,000,000 will be introduced in the House next week, Representative Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), chairman of the House and Ways and Means committee, said yesterday.

Representative Knutson predicted that this tax cut, by which the Republican majority in Congress expected to anticipate ani tax reduction program of the Truman administration, would be passed by Congress early in the next session.

Back in Washington after several weeks in Minnesota, Knutson said he was prepared to submit a cut bill in line with several major features, already approved by the Republican leaders in Congress to provide for:

An increase of $100 in the present $500 standard personal exemption for each taxpayer and dependent. This would result in loss of $1,900,000,000 to two billion dollars in annual revenue and remove an estimated six million persons from the federal tax rolls.

A provision permitting married couples to divide their combined incomes for the purpose of computing Federal income taxes, as is now done in twelve community property States, together with repeal of the 1942 amendments of the Federal estates and gift taxes. Those amendments have been viewed by the community property States as discriminatory to them just as the community property laws have operated to the disadvantage of income tax payers in non-community property States. Those proposed revisions in Federal income tax structure might reduce revenue from from 900 million dollars to one billion dollars.

Additional reductions in the wartime personal income tax rates, probably by percentages—although not to the extent of the 30, 20 and 10.5 per cent reductions contained in the tax cut bill President Truman vetoed earlier this year. The percentage cuts contemplated, Mr. Knutson believed today, would result in the revenue reductions amounting to $1,500,000,000 to two billion dollars.

Representative Knutson branded as "just plain ridiculous," reports that the Republicans in Congress would favor a proposal whereby individuals would get "nonnegotiable, nontransferrable" bonds in lieu of an outright cash reduction in taxes.

"I certainly would not stand for any such proposals," said Representative Knutson. "What we are most interested in is freeing venture capital from the burdens of wartime taxes. A bond issue would not do that."

Meanwhile Representative Francis Case (R., S. Dak.) introduced a bill to increase personal income tax exemptions to $1000 for single and $2000 for married persons. Case did not say so, but congressional tax experts estimated that his proposal would cut Federal income taxes by $7,500,000,000 to eight billion dollars and remove some 24 million persons from the tax rolls. No particular significance was attached to the Case proposal in connection with the probable tax cut to be voted.

New Police Records Office Opened at Center

The Police Department's new records office, a consolidation of the criminal and traffic records divisions, opened at the Municipal Center yesterday.

It is the first section of the new Central Complaint Bureau to function under the consolidation. Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, said he hoped to have the other sections, the telephone, teletype and radio communications, in operation in the central office by the end of the week.

In a fluster of moving desks and files, the criminal records office was transferred from the third to the new fourth floor room. The Missing Persons Bureau was then moved several doors down the hall on the third floor to the space vacated by criminal records.

The new system of centralizing records and communications was authorized by the District Commissioner last September. It had been recommended to Barrett by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which made a survey at his request, following an expose in The Washington Post on the "pocketing" of crime reports.

Since that time, 25 clerk-typists have reclassified 1,400,000 criminal records. Thousands of records have been eliminated or combined under the new card index system.

The records are available to policemen and civilians, particularly those who must consult records for Civil Service applications and visas.

Congress Gets Bills for Negro Institute Here

Establishment of a National Institute of Industrial Training for Negro Youths in Washington was proposed to Congress yesterday.

Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kans.) and Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) introduced separate bills which would set up the proposed institute in two Washington Negro residence buildings.

The buildings are the Lucy Diggs Slowe Hall for Negro women at 3d and U sts. nw., and the George Washington Carver Hall for Negro men at 2d and Elm sts. nw.

They would be transferred by the legislation from Government ownership to the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial, Rocky Mount, Va. The institute would be open to Negroes, including veterans who are barred by limited education from training under the GI Bill.

Open House Tomorrow

$36,702 Raised In Prince Georges

Prince Georges County residents have contributed $36,702 of the county's $44,000 Community Chest quota, William M. Werber, county chairman, reported yesterday. This amount does not include donations by Prince Georges residents at their places of employment in Washington, he said.

Federal agencies in the county have contributed, in addition to the regular county contributions, $29,036 as part of the Government Chest quota. The Bureau of the Census at Suitland has contributed $8162; Andrews Field, $6744, and the Agricultural Research Center at Beltsville, $14,130.

Mrs. Owens Is Named County GOP President

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 8. Mrs. Floyd Owens, sr., of Charles Town, was elected president of the Jefferson County Republican Women's Club at a meeting held here yesterday. Other new officers are Mrs. Henry B. Goldsborough, Shepherdstown, first vice president; Mrs. Erroll Ward, this city, second vice president; Mrs. Sam Knott, Shepherdstown, secretary, and Mrs. H. L. Sechrist, this city, treasurer.

Schools Working On Extension of Food-Saving Plan

A committee of three public school officials will meet this morning to work out further extension of food saving principles through the classroom.

The group, appointed by School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning, consists of Chairman Boise L. Bristor, board of education statistician; Mrs. Ola Day Rush, head of the home economics department, divisions 1-9, and Mrs. Madeleine W. Kirkland, home economics department head for divisions 10-13. The meeting will be at 9:30 at the Ross School, 1730 R st. nw.

Recreated after similar operations last spring, the committee works specifically to integrate directives of the District Food Conservation Committee in classrooms, cafeterias and home economics courses.

Argentine Envoy's Return Is Reported

Nats Clear Up Priddy Deal, Sell Him to Browns

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Except in the case of the St. Louis Browns, who have been getting the fish-eye from their bankers, the most useless commodity at this week's trading sessions of the major league clubs is cash.

POVICH

Every club, except the Browns, is here with bulging bank balances and finding no takers when they offer cash for talent. These have been lush times for baseball and 15 of the 16 clubs are well heeled. As a result the baseball dollar has been devaluated as a medium of barter.

The team that wants a player without a player to offer in exchange is up against it. They save their breath and don't even offer cash, knowing it would be spurned by the half-smart team. They know there's more money to be made with just a fair ball club than could accrue by any sales for cash, which is a sitting duck tax-target.

The Washington club, even with a seventh-place team, "made a lot of money" last season. The kind of team governs the gate receipts. One player, costing $100,000, could be worth $200,000 at the gate in any season. Thus, the clubs are eager to buy and by the same token they're reluctant to sell.

In the case of the outright sale of Second Baseman Gerry Priddy to the Browns today, that deal was made on the basis of a personal grievance toward Priddy for allegedly leading a player revolt last season against Manager Ossie Bluege. The amount of money, reportedly $25,000, received by the Nats for Priddy was relatively unimportant.

IF CASH COULD BE translated into good ballplayers like buying a loaf of bread over the counter, you wouldn't find the rich Detroit club, for example, panicked at the thought of starting another season with its current crop of players.

The Tigers, with perhaps more money to spend than any other club in the American League, are furiously trying to acquire a first baseman and a catcher. But all of Walter O. Briggs, sr.'s money is impotent. Manager Steve O'Neill is moaning that every time he talks deal, the rival clubs are demanding one of his good pitchers, Freddie Hutchinson, Hal Newhouser, Dizzy Trout or Hal Trucks, or his good young outfielder, Hoot Evers.

"Before I give up one of my good pitchers, I've got to get something pretty good," declared O'Neill. "The worst thing to part with is a good pitcher. You never have any long losing streaks with good pitching, I don't care what kind of a club you have otherwise. You can't win a game if you're not in it, and good pitching will keep you in it."

O'NEILL POINTED OUT that the Red Sox, who won the 1946 pennant by 12 games, were licked by 12 games last season when their pitching went sour. "And the deal they made for Vern Stephens with the Browns wasn't going to help 'em much if they didn't also come up with those two St. Louis' pitchers, Jack Kramer and Ellis Kinder."

The Yankees are panicked at the thought of their own undependable pitching to the point where they're going high for Early Wynn, of the Nats. The deal has not yet been worked out, but the Yanks are already offering Hank Bauer, their sensational young outfielder from Kansas City, as part of the swap. One of the Yankee officials was explaining it today.

"We'd never think of letting a young outfielder like Bauer get away from our ball club, ordinarily. We think he could be another DiMaggio or Keller, the kind of a player we spend thousands of dollars to develop and get years of good service from, but we need pitchers if we're going to beat the Red Sox."

EVERY CLUB WITH pennant ideas, including the Athletics who think they have the best pitching in the league, agrees that the Red Sox are the target for 1948. They've bolstered their pitching in a season when they have Stephens drawing a bead on that left field wall in Fenway Park, and taking care of the third base job that was a problem for two years.

Not the least of the Red Sox improvements is the acquisition of Joe McCarthy as manager. With all due reverence for Joe Cronin, who won pennants in Washington and Boston, he did not have the McCarthy genius for getting teams down in front.

It's only desperation that compels Washington to consider trading a pitcher like Wynn. Clark Griffith, an old pitcher himself, puts a high value on the likes of Wynn, but when he surveys the rest of his team and sees second base, shortstop and third base crying for help, he's in a mood to sacrifice Wynn for infield reinforcements. But it must be a player trade. Cash can't go to its right.

Georgetown Wins, 64-60, In Overtime

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Georgetown University opened its basketball season with a 64-60 overtime victory over Denver University at the National Guard Armory last night before 22,488 onlookers.

The lead changed hands four times in the extra-five-minute session, but the Hoyas went ahead to stay when Ray Corley lumped in a long shot to put the Hoyas out in front, 56-55.

Leonard Alterman, one of four Denver players banished, led both teams in scoring with 18 points.

With only 55 seconds left to play and the Hoyas leading, 49-48, Andy Kostecka, of Georgetown, fouled Leonard Alterman, Denver forward, and Alterman dropped in the free throw to knot the count.

The Hoyas held onto the ball until the last five seconds when Ray Corley missed a lay-up. The Pioneers raced down the court in a desperate effort to bucket a basket before the horn sounded, but a one-hander by Dick Yates was wide of the mark just as the regular game ended.

The Hoyas, who trailed most of the first half, got hot in five minuates before recess to own a 24 to 21 half-time lead.

In a preliminary game the Gergetown freshmen defeated Navy quarters K 49 to 35.

Boxing Officials Support Rocky In Future Fights

Rocky Graziano won a narrow split decision yesterday in a poll of State boxing commissioners who were asked whether the world's middleweight champion should be allowed to fight again.

It all started after Illinois barred Graziano after learning that he was dishonorably discharged from the Army. The other NBA States then said they would do the same thing.

But yesterday's poll showed that 40 per cent of the commissioners are for Graziano, while 33.8 per cent are against him. The rest either didn't vote or said they hadn't made up their minds.

The result of the poll doesn't mean the NBA will take any action. The vote was merely to help each State commission make a ruling should Graziano decide he wants to fight there.

Tatum Gets Plaque As 'Best Coach'

Greensboro, Dec. 8 (AP).—North Carolina's 44 outstanding football stars of 1947—collegiate and scholastic—were honored here tonight and Jim Tatum of Maryland received the award as Southern Conference coach of the year as the Greensboro Daily News and the Greensboro Touchdown Club staged their 10th annual all-State banquet.

Tatum, whose Maryland squad meets Georgia in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville New Year's Day, was guest speaker for the occasion, with some 500 fans present.

Tatum was selected in a poll of 134 sports writers and radio commentators from throughout the Southern Conference area. He received a gold wrist watch and a plaque while players received gold footballs and certificates.

Devitt Loses To Montgomery

Bernie Wolf, former Roosevelt High star, who was a member of the George Washington University squad last year, scored 31 points to pace Montgomery Junior College to a 48-36 victory over Devitt Prep yesterday at the Devitt gym.

9th Grader Scores 10 Touchdowns

Bradenton, Fla., Dec. 8 (AP).—Phil Brondes, a ninth grader, scored six touchdowns, passed for another and added two extra points as Bradenton Junior High walloped Manatee-Oneco, 47-0.

And that wasn't all—he had four other touchdown runs called back.

Jersey Joe Gets Bounce From Eagan

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—Joe Louis said today he was willing to meet Jersey Joe Walcott again in June of next summer just a few hours after the New York athletic commission had turned thumbs down on the Camden battler's arguments for a reversal of last Friday night's verdict.

Louis, making his announcement through Sol Strauss of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, suggested that New York's Yankee Stadium would be a logical site and added that the only hitch would be the arranging of "satisfactory terms."

There were not defined but it is believed he referred to terms similar to those of the second Billy Conn fight when Louis drew 40 per cent of the receipts and the Pittsburgh challenger 20 per cent.

Walcott's Plea Denied

At a meeting of the State Athletic Commission today, Chairman Eddie Eagan and Commissioner Clilan B. Powell devoted about 12 minutes to hearing the claims of Walcott and his manager, Joe Webster, then issued a statement disclaiming any desire "to interfere with the discretion and judgment of competent officials."

The extraordinary hearing, Eagan pointed out, was granted only because Walcott and Webster are residents of another State and might not be familiar with New York rules.

"Ordinarily," he said, "the commission does not entertain appeals protesting decisions. The commission must depend upon the three ring officials and it is obvious that if the commission undertook to review decisions, there could be no real certainty of a decision until after a review."

Walcott's protest was based upon the scoring of Judge Frank Forbes, who scored eight rounds for Louis, six for Walcott and one even but scored a higher point total for Walcott. The other Judge, Marty Monroe, also voted for Louis while Referee Ruby Goldstein favored Walcott.

Armory Plans New Basketball Loop

Humphrey Decola, D. C. National Guard Armory athletic director, has announced plans to organize a local amateur basketball league, which would play all its games in the armory.

He is calling for representatives of interested unlimited basketball teams to attend a meeting tomorrow night, 8 o'clock at the Arena Sports Shop, 14th and W sts., nw.

Former Pro-Gridder Gets Jail Sentence

Oklahoma City, Dec. 8 (AP).—United States District Judge Stephen S. Chandler today sentenced John Jay Martin, former University of Oklahoma and professional football player with the Chicago Cardinals, to a year-and-a-day in prison after revoking his probation on a check forgery charge.

The probation was revoked because of two other check forgeries, one in October and one in November.

New Germany Ski Trail Reopens This Winter

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 8 (AP).—Edwin E. Ballard, assistant director of the Department of State Parks and Forests, said today it planned to resume skiing at the New Germany recreation area this winer.

Ballard said a ski lodge will be operated by the State and will have overnight accommodations for 26 persons. The various trails and slopes, along with the ski tow will be available for use.

THE OLD SQUEEZE PLAY—Hugh Taylor (center), Washington Redskins end, is squeezed between Joe Sulaitis and Chris Iversen of the New York Giants as he tries to catch a touchdown pass in Sunday's New York-Washington game at the Polo Grounds. Taylor didn't catch the pass. The Giants won, 35-10

Dodgers Get Cox, Roe, Mauch

Walker, Gregg and Lombardi Traded to Pirates by Bums

By Jack Hand

New York, Dec. 8.—Outfielder Dixie Walker and Pitchers Vic Lombardi and Hal Gregg were traded to Pittsburgh by the Brooklyn Dodgers today in return for Shortstop Billy Cox, Pitcher Elwin (Preacher) Roe and Infielder Gene Mauch as the winter major league meetings opened with a flurry of activity.

This six-man swap in which no cash was involved, according to President Branch Rickey of the Dodgers, was believed to be the forerunner of another transaction by which Cox, one of the top shortstops in the National League, will go to the Chicago Cubs.

Brooklyn is very much interested in Johnny Schmitz, the Cubs' left handed hurler, who is regarded as "untradable" but there is a possibility that one of Chicago's first basemen, either the veteran Phil Cavarretta or Eddit Waitkus might be had.

The Cubs, slipping badly last season on a "stand pat" attitude, are in desperate need of a shortstop. Now the Dodgers have two, Cox and Pee Wee Reese. Rickey's plans appear to call for Jackie Robinson at second base and finding somebody else for first.

Further business dealings between the Pirates and Dodgers are under consideration. John Galbreath, treasurer of the Pittsburgh club, met with Rickey this afternoon. The Brooklyn club is interested in Outfielder-First Baseman Johnny Hopp as first base insurance.

Hopp recently was acquired by Pittsburgh from Boston in the deal that sent Outfielder Jim Russell to the Braves.

American Leaguers, who started the winter trading action with a series of St. Louis Browns-Boston Red Sox sales, are not going to stay out of the headlines during the three-day meetings that officially open tomorrow after a series of informal committee meetings at the Waldorf-Astoria.

There are strong reports that Pitcher Early Wynn of Washington either already has been sold to he New York Yankees or will be drews, and Dick Starr, Catcher Sherm Lollar and Rookie Outfielder Hank Bauer who spent the 1947 season with Kansas City of the American Association.

It seems that Yankee attention shifted to Wynn when Owner Clark Griffith was reluctant to part with Walt Masterson.

Olympic Coach Named

Madison, Wis., Dec. 8 (AP).—John J. Walsh, University of Wisconsin boxing coach, said today he had accepted an invitation to serve as one of two coaches for the 1948 United States Olympic Boxing team.

'Gator Bowl Sale Opens

Six hundred tickets to the Maryland-Georgia 'Gator Bowl game in Jacksonville, Fla., January 1, were placed on sale in the Terp athletic office at College Park yesterday.

The tickets are priced at $6.00 each, including tax, and a brisk first day sale indicated the Terrapins will have plenty of supporters watching them against the Bulldogs New Year's Day.

Athletic Director Walter Driskill was in Jacksonville yesterday concluding arrangements for the game. Head Coach Jim Tatum was in Greensboro, N. C., where he received an award as the Southern Conference's "Coach of the Year."

Out at College Park, Assistant Coach George Barclay staged a scrimmage in which only freshmen were used. Upperclassmen will skirmish tomorrow and on Friday the frosh, using Georgia plays, will scrimmage the Terp varsity.

Tackle Joe Drach, who had an attack of appendicitis Saturday, rejoined the squad Friday. At first, it was feared it would be necessary to operate on Drach.

Gambino's 96 Points Fourth in Nation; 115 Tops

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—Darwin Horn of Pepperdine bucked over a touchdown in his final game against Loyola of Los Angeles Saturday to gain a tie with Chuck Schoenherr of Wheaton (Ill.) College for the 1947 collegiate football scoring title.

They wound up with identical records—19 touchdowns and one point after touchdown in nine games for 115 points.

Maryland's Lu Gambino, leading scorer in the Southern Conference, was fourth in the Nation with 96 points, but he was top man among the Nation's major teams.

Lesnevich Gets Boxing Award

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—Gus Lesnevich, world's light heavyweight champion, today was voted the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque for 1946 by the New York Boxing Writers' Association.

The award, made annually by the writers to the man who in their opinion has done the most for boxing during the year, was voted to Lesnevich unanimously.

The Cliffside Park, N. J., fighter, who will be 33 next February 22, engaged in four battles during the year and was victorious in each.

Gruber, Cardani Added To Tomorrow's Card

Phil Gruber, Chicago, and Fred Cardani of California have been added to tomorrow night's mat card at Turner's Arena in a 30-minute match.

Headlining the show will be "Cobra Clutch" Nanjo Singh and the Egyptian grappler, Sheik Abed.

Here's Horse Tip: Weather Pays Off

Nottingham, England, Dec. 8 (AP).—The winner of the 3-mile Mansfield Steeplechase, run in a thick fog today, was the 5-year-old gelding Wot, No Sun.

Gilmer No. 1 Draft Choice Of Redskins

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The University of Alabama's triple-threat halfback, 21-year-old Harry Gilmer, will be the Washington Redskins' No. 1 choice in the annual player draft of the National Football League, it was learned last night by The Washington Post.

Gilmer's performance with the 1948 Redskins was considered highly probable for three reasons:

1. He'll be the first player selected, Washington having drawn the first or bonus choice by lot;

2. He's anxious for a professional career, according to University of Alabama sources;

3. He's sufficiently interested in coming to Washington to have made a flying trip here the past weekend.

As a bonus selection, Gilmer might have been signed to a contract before the formal draft, except that he will appear in a bowl game on New Year's Day. Alabama's Crimson Tide faces Texas in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans.

GILMER'S PASSING RECORD

Year	Attempted	Completed	Yards Gained	Touchdowns
1944	66	32	418	6
1945	88	57	905	13
1946	106	60	930	3
1947	93	57	610	5

BOWL GAMES

Year		Attempted	Completed	Yards Gained	Tds.
1944	Sugar Bowl	8	8	141	1
1945	Rose Bowl	12	4	59	1
1947	Sugar Bowl	?	?	?	?

The son of a Birmingham carpenter, father of one baby girl, is of vital interest to the Redskins for one particular reason—his passing. He is almost certain to be groomed as the successor to aging Sammy Baugh, and his collegiate record apparently makes him the man for the job.

In four years, Harry has thrown 19 touchdown passes. In Alabama's offense, he has fallen below a .500 average at times, but he's soared as high as a 57 completed out of 88 attempts in 1945.

Gilmer's outstanding effort came in the 1944 Sugar Bowl game when he had a perfect day with eight passes, good for 141 yards.

Not Big, But Durable

Physically, Gilmer is slender for professional football. His 6-foot frame carries only 160 pounds, but by signing him at the age of 21, the Redskins could be "waiting until he grows up."

He's rugged, however, a fact attested to by his record of not missing any of Alabama's action in four years because of an injury.

Although he has been spared some of the kicking duties, Gilmer has a respectable punting average and is an above-average ball-carrier. Before this year he'd amassed 1633 yards in 313 trips with the ball. This season he sagged slightly in his running chores, gaining 305 yards in 115 times.

His broken field running ability is indicated by an 80-yard sprint he made against Georgia this season and a 92-yarder against L. S. U.

The Redskins' next two choices, it was learned, will be Bobby Lane of Texas and Clyde Scott of Arkansas. Chances of getting either are slim unless the Redskins run into difficulties signing Gilmer and pick Lane or Scott as their bonus choice.

The Redskins yesterday announced that Guard Mike Garzoni and Center Len McCormick had

Indians Bid For Haefner And Spence

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

New York, Dec. 8.—Second Baseman Gerry Priddy, tagged for disposal by the Nats after being charged with leading a player revolt against Manager Ossie Bluege last August, today was sold to the St. Louis Browns.

At the same time, it was learned that Owner Bill Veeck of the Cleveland Indians has prepared an offer for Outfielder Stan Spence of the Nats.

In Cleveland's third attempt to procure Spence, Veeck tomorrow will seek out President Clark Griffith of the Nats and suggest a four-player swap involving Catcher Jim Hegan and Pitcher Bob Kuzava in exchange for Spence and Pitcher Mickey Haefner.

Price Believed $25,000

Priddy's outright sale to the Browns for an undisclosed cash price, estimated at $25,000, cancelled out the disputed Priddy-for-Johnny Berardino deal that had reached the desk of Baseball Commissioner Chandler.

It was a solution to the Washington club's demand that St. Louis call off the player swap after Second Baseman Berardino announced his decision to retire from baseball in favor of a movie career.

The Browns' purchase of Priddy, their first cash outlay after a selling spree that disposed of six of the club's regulars, paved the way for Berardino's sale to another club, probably Detroit, if the player reconsiders retirement.

Griffith weeks ago announced that Priddy was "unwanted" by Washington. Griffith called him "a disturbing influence" after the player clashed with Bluege, declaring "our 1948 plans don't include Priddy."

Priddy a Real Hustler

Priddy batted .240 for the Nats last season, and was recognized as one of the better defensive second basemen in the league. He was a high favorite with Washington fans, who valued his hustling play in contrast to the dull performances of other members of the team. Priddy joined the Nats six years ago, coming from the Yankees.

Griffith declareed he was relying on Rookie Eddie Lyons, up from the Nats Chattanooga farm to fill the second base job for 1948.

"Lyons hit .280 at Chattanooga, drove in 75 runs, led the league in two-baggers and is a good man on double plays, and he's a hustler," added Griffith.

Information of Veeck's proposal elicited from Griffith only a chill "I don't like it," but he tempered that comment with "I won't turn down any good deal."

Hegan, rated as the best catcher in the American League, would be welcomed by the Nats and, Griffith to the contrary notwithstanding, Veeck appears to be going high for Spence. In 1946-47, the Cleveland club also tried to swing deals for Spence.

Kuzava is the likely-looking left-handed rookie who won 16 games for Baltimore last season

Alabama Students Ask Gilmer to Spurn Bowl Game

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Dec. 8 (U.P.).—A petition was circulated here today by Alabama students urging that star Harry Gilmer refused to play in the Sugar Bowl game at New Orleans, January 1, unless students are permitted a "fair chance" to buy tickets.

The petition, placed on the bulletin board in the Union building, had some 400 signatures, including that of Crimson Tide Capt. John Wozniak.

The petition said that students should be given "a fair chance to buy at least one ticket before the alumni have a chance to buy two tickets." Alumni tickets went on sale last Monday.

Michigan 121 Points Behind

Irish Voted Nation's Best For Second Straight Year

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—Notre Dame—unbeaten, untied and virtually unchallenged—was selected as the outstanding college football team of 1947 today, winning the honor for the second straight year in the final poll conducted by the Associated Press.

Coach Frank Leahy's Fighting Irish put the finishing touches to their first perfect season since 1930 by crushing Southern California, 38-7, Saturday and left little doubt of their superiority in the minds of a cross-section of sports writers from coast to coast.

Michigan polled 94 second-place votes against 32 for the Irish and received enough additional backing to finish only 121 points behind Notre Dame in the final tabulation.

The Final Standings

1—Notre Dame (9-0-0)	1410
2—Michigan (9-0-0)	1289

It Was Just a Boxing Match, But . . .

Indignation Over Fight Decision Typically American

Louis-Walcott Bout Arouses Us, But More Important Things Don't

By Bob Considine

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Some deep-dome from the editorial page's backfield ought to break into the clear about now and draw certain thundering conclusions from the public indignation over the Louis-Walcott fight decision.

The public pulse must indeed be jumpy when the citizens stay mad this long over a prize fight that once was held in such a low estate that the New York boxing board branded it an exhibition instead of a contest.

A man called me up from Dallas at 2 a. m. Sunday morning to shout about 20 minutes of long-distance indignation over the dubious duke which Judges Forbes and Monroe gave to Louis. With indignation which only a Texan could muster, he paid off seven bets (at 8 to 1)—so adamant was he in his conviction that Walcott had won.

Judging from clogged newspaper switchboards and vehement wires and letters to the sports editors and columnists, the bout aroused more hair-bristling than has the news of Arab attacks on U. S. embassies and legations overseas, the Russian political and economic conquest of Europe, zooming domestic prices and other stunning problems.

Incomparably rawer deals have been pulled in boxing than the one of last Friday night. The game is basically sordid, threaded with a brand of exploitation besides which the viler snarls of capital and labor fade into insignificance.

It is a game in which a hoodlum can and often does operate with the blessing of the boxing community and the support of an often alarming proportion of the historians. The standard managerial "bite" of 33 1/3 per cent—55 per cent in Louis' case for many years—would bring a blush of envy to any sweat-shop operator.

Boxing has its own culture, its peculiar ethics, which remove it from the realm of most enterprises. A boxing judge's word is law—whether he is some political hack or a good man—and there is no recourse to any higher court of appeal.

Then why the furor? Perhaps it is the times, perhaps the inherent fairness of the American citizen who roots for an underdog and wants to see him get all that's coming to him.

Louis believed he lost, which is the reason—plus disgust with his own performance—that made him stomp out of the ring immediately after the fight. Knowing the fellow to be the sportsman he is I'm surprised that he didn't acknowledge his loss after the fight—though that, of course, would not have altered the decision.

Military Man Likens Jersey Joe's Strategy to That of Red Army

We heard a military man come to Walcott's defense the other night when someone said that the type of fight he turned in—which consisted mainly of retreating and occasionally nailing the rushing Louis—was rotten tactics.

"The Red army won a war that way," he pointed out, "and if it fights another one it will do the same thing. It backed up farther than any army in modern history, spending the strength of the aggressors during the process.

"It was ready to back up far behind Moscow when the Germans made the blunder of hesitating, as Louis did a few times the other night."

Anyway, people are intensely sore about the fight, and some of that soreness might be traced beyond the actual decision.

They hate to see Louis slipping, for one thing. He was the first to admit that he was awful, though made to look a bit worse than he is. A fighter like Ray Robinson, the welterweight champion, might have stopped Louis on Friday night.

The remarkable thing to me, however, is the continuing public indignation. It is a pity that the more important events of the day cannot be dramatized as vividly as was an unfair boxing decision at a house of joy named Madison Square Garden.

If we could get as downright sore at some of the aforementioned crises, which threaten to plunge us into a more horrifying war than that of 1939-45, we'd be saving a lot of lives here and now.

DEAR FOLKS:

Despite the fact that horsemen are running their charges cheaper than usual, there have been only three claims thus far at the meeting. The answer is that they don't want to winter horses. Wayne Kendrick took Travelalong out of the Monday program. Trainer Pete Allnut has been ill and everybody is pulling for him to get back real soon. The place just doesn't seem the same without the popular Rockville fellow. If anybody knows the whereabouts of Jockey Gerald Gleason, tell him to get in touch with his home. Favorites have been doing well here despite flashes of boxcar figures at times. So far 22 choices have been successful in 48 races. There are 80 jockeys here but only 18 different boys reached the winner's circle during the first week. Jockey George Cardoza's performance on Aylesbury was a good one. He kept the 4-year-old going when he wanted to quit. Jockey Don Boston showed his spunk when he substituted for Jockey Eddie Hopkins on the bad acting Pharaquest. The filly didn't do any tricks although she didn't do any running, either. See you on the rail—BILL.

Fleet Filly Pays $3.20 In Triumph

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. V., Dec. 8.—Virginia Beach, claimed by E. W. Price, jr., for $5000 at Bowie, won her second straight purse for her new owner when she took the Isaiah Purse, top event on the Monday program. With Jockey Truschka riding, the daughter of Johnstown and War Shadow stepped home five lengths in front of the Audley Farms Bachelor Belle, with Mrs. Arthur White's Ranger Mosby third, a half length back.

For the second time Virginia Beach was operating as the favorite and she returned a $3.20 mutuel to her legion of followers. Her time of 1:21 4/5 was ordinary for the 6½ furlongs, but the track was in slow condition as the result of rain last night.

Wins With Ease

Bachelor Belle, a recent winner, tried to outrun the field and showed much speed in getting to the front at the clubhouse turn. Jockey George Cardoza took her out several lengths. However, Truschka was biding his time with Virginia Beach. When he turned the filly loose, she responded, disposed of Bachelor Belle and was coasting at the end.

Bachelor Belle, however, had enough left to stave off the closing bid of Ranger Mosby for the place money.

In the Central Purse, the day's secondary feature, Mrs. Mary Knieriem's Aylesbury upset the odds-on Falsely, owned by William Lynch. Third money went to John Foster's eVte.

Oylesbury Pays $27.20

Aylesbury, paying $27.20, took the lead early and Falsely just couldn't get to the pacemaker despite frantic offorts by Jockey Skeets Holland. The 4-year-old winner was clocked in 1:19 3-5.

The start of this race was delayed when Jockey Eddie Hopkins suffered a bruised right foot. He was aboard V. E. Sjorostrom's Pharaquest which turned a flipflop in the gate. Hopkins, who had ridden Stanley Greene's Gay Venture to victory in the third race, had to cancel his mounts for the day. Pharaquest was barred from flat racing for fractious reasons sometime back.

The daily double paid $89.80 and went to the 1 and 4 combination. Mrs. Olly Basile's Enlisted man won the first under the handling of Jockey V. Bush, while N. Cannell'sc Captain Lee annexed the second with Jockey K. Foster up.

FORD IN ACTION—Lenny Ford, a Washington boy playing end for Michigan, made the third all-America football team. Above, Ford (right) is shown carrying the ball on an end-around play. Ford played for Armstrong High School here

Lenny Ford, D. C. Boy, Named To All-American Grid Team

Football fans who gave only casual attention to the Associated Press' All-American selections missed something. Third-string Left End Lenny Ford of Michigan is a Washington product who starred with Armstrong High here and with Morgan College in Baltimore.

Lenny's home is at 2417 Shannon pl. se., where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard G. Ford, Smiled happily as they pasted another certificate of football merit in their son's well-filled scrapbook.

Ford's athletic career began at Armstrong High, where he earned letters in football, baseball and basketball and was rated All-High for his play as captain of the football team.

Armstrong Football Coach Theodore W. McIntyre, who was Ford's mentor, chuckled:

"Lenny's selection confirms my original estimate of him. He's the finest natural athlete I've seen. But don't take my word for it. Look at his record."

With the unbeaten Wolverines this year, Lenny has been used mostly on defense. He scored a touchdown in each of the two games when he played offense. One was on a 56-yard pass from Quarterback Bob Chappuis in the Michigan State game and the other was an end-around sprint against Pitt.

Ford is 6 feet 5 inches tall and weighs 215 pounds. His ability to diagnose and smear opposition plays makes him more valuable as a defensive lineman than as a pass catcher. Under Crisler's system at Michigan there are separate teams for offense and defense.

Ford's name is thus added to a growing list of Negro gridders who are starring with major college and professional elevens.

The college roster includes George Taliaferro at Indiana, Gene Derricotte at Michigan, Garnett Hill and Emlen Tunnell at Iowa, Glenn Pullens at Minnesota, Pat Patterson and Ike Owens at Illinois, Chester Pierce at Harvard, Levi Jackson at Yale and Denny Hogard and Wally Triplett at Penn State.

Buddy Young and Kenny Washington lead the list of pro greats, which includes Bill Willis, Bert Piggott and Marion Motley.

Another recent honor accorded the physical education major was an invitation to attend a banquet honoring the "best footballers of the year," extended by New York sportswriters.

Yale Recovered Lateral

Barger Clears Up Question Over Dartmouth's 3 Downs

FRANK BARGER, who was head-linesman at the Yale-Dartmouth game, yesterday disclosed just why Dartmouth received only three downs instead of four in one of the year's most controversial developments of the season.

Barger, who has been a college football official for 15 years, is principal of the middle school at Sidwell Friends.

The disputed play, which was a football "cause celebre," took place late in the first half.

Dartmouth had possession of the ball in the vicinity of its 40-yard line. On third down, the Indian quarterback took the ball from center in the T formation, and threw what appeared to the spectators to be a forward pass to a halfback in motion in the flat zone.

The receiver juggled the ball and dropped it, whereupon a Yale man fell on the ball. The officials awarded the ball to Yale as the fans howled their disapproval.

In reality, what appeared to be a forward pass was adjudged a lateral by the officials.

* * * *

SECTION 4, Article 2 of the official NCAA football rules states: "If the team in possession of the ball makes a backward pass or fumbles the ball, and the ball after striking the ground is then recovered by an opponent, it is dead at the point of recovery and may not be advanced.

That is what happened to Dartmouth. So when Yale recovered the fumbled lateral, it was old Eli's ball.

In the event of a confusing play such as this, the official has no way of explaining to the spectators what happened. There are no officials' signals to cover such a play. As most of the spectators were under the impression that Dartmouth had tried a forward pass, which was incomplete, they assumed it still should have been Dartmouth's ball.

Ft. Belvoir Basketeers Beat Andrews, 47-22

Fort Belvoir basketers opened their season last night with a 47-22 victory over Andrews Field. Ben Harpold led the winners' scoring with 18 points.

A Busy Week

Bullis Has Shoe Bowl, Exams Ahead

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

FOR NINE Navy-minded members of the Bullis Prep football team of Silver Spring, this will be a busy week.

Having survived a rugged eight-game slate, ending up undefeated and untied, they are readying themselves for:

1. Saturday's big annual three-hour Nation-wide Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps exam.

2. Sunday's big Shoe Bowl game at Lynn, Mass., against Marianapolis Prep of Thompson, Conn.

The nine players, Xeno Sideris, Mike Sorrentino, Howie Hanson, Lou Wade, Bill Steele, Jack Blackwood, Jim Lennon, Tom Goslin and Wes Dow, have been looking forward to the stiff NROTC exam all year.

If they can pass, they will be entitled to a college education at Government expense, and a Navy commission as well as a diploma at graduation.

THE EXAM, which includes English, math and physics, is given on a specified day every year all over the Nation. Since the team is scheduled to leave Silver Spring for Lynn Friday night, the boys had to get special permission from the Navy Department to take the test in Boston.

If they can survive the cramming and the test, and help their team to victory Sunday, Bullis will have a pretty fair claim to the prep school championship of the Eastern seaboard.

Marianapolis' victims have been the best of prep and college freshman teams from Connecticut, New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts. Bullis has kicked over the best in Washington, D. C.; Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and New York.

* * * *

Most prominent among Marianapolis' victims was the Boston College Freshman team which which fell, 19-7. Against the University of Connecticut "B" team, Marianapolis was a 25-13 winner, Bullis' biggest victories were over the Army Plebes, 20-13, Navy Plebes, 14-10, and Georgetown Frosh, 12-7.

LaSalle Military Academy of Oakdale, Long Island, provides the only common ground for comparison. Bullis beat LaSalle, 44-0, and Marianapolis won, 27-0.

The Shoe Bowl game is sponsored by World War Veterans, Post No. 7 of Lynn. This is the first year the game has been held. scene of the game will be Manning Bowl, which seats 24,000. Advance sales indicate a near-sellout.

Douglas Wins Orlando Open

Orlando, Fla., Dec. 8 (AP).—His ninth one-putt green for a birdie three on the nineteenth gave 29-year-old Dave Douglas of Wilmington, Del., a one-stroke victory over Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., in a playoff for the third annual Orlando Open Golf title today.

Herman Keiser of Akron, Ohio, took third place.

Douglas, Demaret and Keiser finished the 72-hole event over the 6454-yard Dubsdread Country Club course yesterday tied with 274's.

Douglas won his title on the green. He never three-putted. When he didn't sink the first putt, it was always within easy range. He took only 29 putts on the 19 holes while Demaret needed 34.

GW, Hoyas Underwrite Armory Cost

George Washington and Georgetown Universities yesterday agreed to underwrite the initial expense of preparing the National Guard Armory for basketball games.

The universities guaranteed the payment of $4500, of which about $3000 will be used for the rental of 3600 seats from a Baltimore firm for the season. The remainder will be set aside to meet liability insurance payments, floor sanding and other expenses.

The actual charge to the schools will be the previously agreed amount of 15 per cent of the gross receipts each night, minus Federal taxes. The nightly rental charges will be computed for each university and deducted from their part in the $4500 advance payment.

The District Board of Education has agree dto pay $250 per day for use of the armory for high school court games. Each sponsoring group wil lhire ticket sellers, colletcors, guards and ushers under the agreement signed yesterday.

The agreement was negotiated by James R. Kirkland, counsel for the Senate District Committee and "arbitrator" on the controversy waged recently between the District Commissioners and the District National Guard for control over nonmilitary events in the armory.

Yesterday Kirkland met with Lieut. Col. K. E. Madsen, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, who has been designated to represent the Commissioners, and Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, who represents the National Guard, to execute the contract. The paper was signed in time for the Georgetown University-University of Denver court battle in the armory last night.

The game was the first on a schedule of 72 planned for the giant structure. All funds received from rentals after initial expenses are covered will be paid into a special fund to be turned over to which ever agency Congress decides should control armory nonmilitary programs.

before joining Cleveland. He shnt the Nats out, 4-0, in one of his starts.

The hottest trade report, however, continued to be the story that Pitcher Early Wynn is on his way to the Yankees from the Nats. The New York Post today said the deal already had been closed, but Griffith thundered a denial.

"We haven't traded anybody yet," said the Washington owner. He admitted talking trade with Bucky Harris during their Griffith Stadium pinochle sessions this winter, but declared, "We'll have to get a lot for Wynn."

Thus far the Yankees are known to have offered Hank Bauer, outfield sensation with the Yanks' Kansas City farm last season, and Pitcher Karl Drews, but Griffith is believed to be holding out also for Catcher Aaron Robinson and an outfielder.

Manager Steve O'Neill of Detroit volunteered the information that his club had made an offer for Sherry Robertson, Griffith's nephew, who has failed thus far to earn a regular job in the Washington infield.

The Nats are represented at the meetings by Griffith, Manager Joe Kuhel, Vice President Calvin Griffith and Secretary Edward B. Eynon, the Washington owner was a late arrival today for the league meetings that begin tomorrow.

been put on the waiver list. If they are unclaimed they will be given unconditional releases.

Rumors sifting back to Washington that the Redskins lost, 35-10, to the Giants on bad officiating are unfounded. They lost on bad pass defense and little else.

Four plays, you might say, broke the Redskins' back in the second half. They started after the kickoff when Washington went 43 yards to the Giant 13 and there Bob Nussbaumer's sensational diving catch was ruled caught out of the end zone by inches.

Then, after one Governall-to-Poole pass went for 37 yards, a second straight connection between the same pair was good for New York's third touchdown. Poole fumbled as he went into the end zone and Tommy Mont ran the bal lout, but the play was called dead before Poole fumbled.

Seconds later Nussbaumer again had a decision called against him when he took Baugh's toss from midfield and went to the Giants' 10. He'd stepped out of the sidelines, however, and the play was called back.

The crowning blow came on the second play of the final quarter. Frank Reagan swiped a pass from Eddie Saenz' hands on the Giant 15 and raced 71 yards before one of the finest bits of tackling this season brought him down. The Giants scored again four plays later, but Redskin Guard Bill Gray had credit for smearing two blockers singlehandedly to get at the winging Reagan.

Fitz Returns to Baseball As Coach of Braves

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—Freddie Fitzsimmons, former big league pitching star who managed the Philadelphia Phillies from 1943 to 1945, today returned to baseball as a coach for the Boston Braves under Manager Billy Southworth. He has resigned as general manager of the Brooklyn fotball Dodgers to assume his new duties, according to General Manager John Quinn of the Braves.

Caps Meet Baltimore On Thursday

Washington's Capitols, 62-53, victors over Baltimore's Bullets three weeks ago are underdogs Thursday night when they face the Bullets again, this time at the Baltimore Coliseum.

Since the Caps' opening game victory, they have slumped and now reside in last place in the Western Division. Baltimore, on the other hand, followed up its loss to Washington with a nine-game winning streak, which was broken last week. The Bullets lead the Western Division.

Much of the Caps' hopes rest on Long John Mahnken, the six foot eight inch former Georgetown star, who has had a hard time matching his stellar performances of last year. The Caps are well rested, and will be at full strength. Bones McKinney, popular center, has recovered from a mild siege of grippe.

The Washingtonians visit Providence, R. I., Saturday night and return to Uline Arena against Baltimore a week from tomorrow night.

Out Fishing

OUR FRIEND, Jim Parson of Sandpoint, Idaho, the Nation's trout capital on Lake Pend d'Oreille, wires us: "Jack, Kilroy was here!"

Nell Kilroy, 5510 1st st. nw., Washington, D. C., fishing the lake for the first time the day before the season closed there, hooked and boated a 23-pound 6-ounce rainbow trout.

Kilroy achieved that which we failed to do last August when we had our try for the giant trout. Neil is the son of R. P. Kilroy, 1691 34th st. nw., this city. The elder Kilroy is an old-timer from Idaho. Kilroy Bay and Kilroy Lakes, Idaho, were named after him.

Another Easterner who hit the piscatorial jackput before the season closed November 30 was M. P. Parst, 521 Highland ave., Montclair, N. J. Parst boated a 22-pounder.

Parson reports five rainbow trout were taken this season which exceeded the previous world's record of 32½ pounds set at Pend d'Oreille in 1945. The current champion is Wes Hamlet of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, with his 37-pounder.

A total of 366 rainbow trout were registered in the lake's fishing derby. The gross weight was 8165 pounds, for an average of 22½ pounds per trout.

That is a lot of trout; how long such phenomenal fishing will last is only a matter of time when the fish then recede in size. Parson adds to his report that November is the best month to take big fish.

Yank Netters Lose

Melbourne, Dec. 8 (AP).—Eddie Moyland of San Francisco and James Brink of Seattle were defeated today in the doubles finals of the Victorian tennis championships by the little known Australian pair of R. Cook and R. Clements. The score was 6—3, 4—6, 5—7, 8—6, 6—4.

Major Ready For Expansion, InformantSays

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—The presence of the Pacific Coast in the major baseball leagues in the near future became a distinct possibility today when it was learned that the National and American Leagues Thursday will suggest that the Coast League bring in four of its big clubs for the purpose of forming two 10-team major leagues.

A reliable source told the Associated Press that the majors will inform Pacific Coast representatives they are willing to take in the cities of San Francisco, Los Angeles, Hollywood and Oakland provided these clubs can obtain territorial releases from the Pacific Coast League.

"The majors are of the opinion that the four clubs mentioned could support major league baseball successfully," the source said. "However, they will inform the coast league representatives that the development of such a plan must of necessity come from the Coast League itself.

"After that is done," the informant added, "they can come to the major leagues and make a formal application to be included in the membership of the two major leagues."

The major leagues open their annual winter meetings here tomorrow and a joint meeting, at which the Coast situation will be discussed, is scheduled for Thursday.

The source also said that the National League will introduce a resolution at Thursday's joint session proposing the same terms to any minor league.

It is estimated that it would cost the four cities approximately 11 million dollars to obtain their releases from the Coast League and ready themselves for the majors. Of that, $2,500,000 would have to be paid to the "little four."

St. John's Bullis Open Swim Slate Dec. 18

St. John's swimming team, composed of the same boys that brought the school an undefeated season in 1946-47, opens its new season December 18 against Bullis Prep at the American University pool.

Star of St. John's is Don Callahan, the District AAU mile champion, who was undefeated over 220 yards last year. Other standouts are Ray Moffett and Bob MacDonald, who compete in the 50 and 100-yard events. The rest of the team consists of Harry Wall, Bill Epling, Bob Rogers, John Cornell, Eugene Kunst, Vince Callahan and John Tennis.

Vollten Due New Post in Montgomery

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

A new post in the Montgomery County government may be created for Capt. Theodore F. Vollten, veteran detective chief whose retirement is expected to be approved today by Montgomery County commissioners.

The new job would be that of deputy sheriff assigned to the State's Attorney's office to make investigations and prepare indictments for the grand jury.

Vollten, with 17 years service, was suspended and charged with dereliction of duty by Police Chief Charles M. Orme on October 28. Before the charges were heard, however, Vollten applied for retirement and the charges were dropped.

The retirement request, on the grounds of physical disability, has been recommended by the Police Trial Board and awaits final approval expected today by the county commissioners.

State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson is expected to ask the new post. Vollten has been active in helping the State's attorney prepare grand jury indictments, and officials point to the need for a full-time investigator in Dawson's office.

Meanwhile, Chief Orme indicated he will not appoint a successor to Vollten for at least three weeks. Most prominently mentioned candidate is Capt. James S. McAulliffe, head of the Bethesda police station.

A police veteran of 18 years of service, McAulliffe was promoted to sergeant in 1935 and captain in 1944. He also has served in the detective bureau.

Orme also revealed he is studying a plan to reorganize the 10-man detective bureau.

Massie's Corners Culvert Crash Kills Two in Car

Two men were killed and a third injured early yesterday when their automobile crashed into a culvert near Massie's Corners, Va.

The dead were Heywood Holmes, 34, and Robert Atkins, 24, both of Sperryville, Va. Hill Atkins was treated at Warrenton Hospital.

Pharmicist Killed By Car in Ridgely

'Pickle' Is Real

Jury Decides Accident Tale Isn't 'Kosher'

A Municipal Court jury yesterday decided that kosher pickles do not leave an odor of alcohol.

The jury convicted Henry M. Salwach, 36, of 318½ R st. nw. on a charge of driving while drunk.

The charge was the result of a collision on November 1 in the 3000 block of R st. when Salwach's car ran into a vegetable wagon.

Police responding to an accident call told the jury yesterday that Salwach staggered, his eyes were bloodshot, and that he had a strong odor of alcohol on his breath.

Salwach, taking the stand in his own behalf, said that the reason he staggered was that he had dropped a piece of iron on his foot and the reason his eyes were bloodshot was that that is the way his eyes reacted to welding, which is his trade. He said that the strong odor was not alcohol, but kosher pickles which he had just eaten.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert Kneipp argued that brine in which the pickles are pickled certainly did not smell like alcohol.

The jury agreed with him after an hour and five minutes of deliberation.

Judge Thomas Dewey Quinn continued Salwach on $500 bond and set December 15 as date for sentencing. Albert Graham, Salwach's attorney, said he would ask for a new trial.

Jane Anderson, Broadcaster for Nazis, Is Freed

Vienna, Dec. 8 (AP).—United States sources said tonight Jane Anderson of Atlanta, Ga., once accused of broadcasting wartime Nazi propaganda, had been freed from American custody in Salzburg, where she had been held since last May.

(A charge of treasonable broadcasts against her was dismissed in Federal District Court in Washington, D. C., last October 27 by request of the Justice Department, which said there was insufficient evidence to try her.)

Miss Anderson, 54, once identified as "Lady Haw Haw," is the former wife of Deems Taylor, American music critic.

H. W. Christenberry To Testify in Own Case

Hearings on the nomination of Herbert W. Christenberry as Federal district judge in Louisiana are to be resumed before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee today with Christenberry as a witness.

Christenberry, now United States District Attorney at New Orleans, was nominated by President Truman shortly before Congress adjourned last summer.

New Leaders Asked for GOP In Fairfax

Eighty Republicans, meeting at the Fairfax County Courthoue last night, voted to ask all of the Republican Party's standing committees in Fairfax County to resign "so the party can get a new start."

Fred A. Bryan, of Vienna, the Fairfax County Republican chairman, already has submitted his resignation to the party's county executive committee, it was announced at the meeting which was called by a group of party stalwarts.

The meeting adopted resolutions calling for selection of party candidates in the county and the Eighth Congressional District in primaries, rather than by the present method of party conventions.

The meeting was held in the Fairfax County Circuit Court room.

Hebert Shifts From D. C. to Thomas Group

Representative F. Edward Hebert (D., La.) yesterday resigned from the House District Committee to accept a place on the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Hebert

Hebert has been a member of the District Committee for seven years. In 1941 he played a leading role in an investigation of Washington's Police Department.

Last year he led an intensive investigation of the District Jail, and sponsored the legislation that gave Washington a separate corrections department to take charge of the jail and other District penal institutions.

In the current session, Hebert followed through the jail probe by sponsoring a series of bills to improve Washington's criminal justice administration, including the bill to set up an alcholic clinic here.

Hebert said he felt that the new assignment to the Thomas Committee offered a "bigger opportunity" than the District Committee.

He will fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Representative Herbert C. Bonner (D., N. C.). Hebert's assignment was made by the House Democratic Committee on Committees.

Pharmaceutical Group, Medical Men to Meet

A joint meeting of the District Medical and Pharmaceutical Societies will be held at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow at the Medical Society auditorium, 1718 M st. nw.

Scheduled speakers include Dr. Paul K. Smith, professor of pharmacology, George Washington University school of medicine; Dr. Edward C. Elliott, director of The Pharmaceutical Survey, and Dr. Maurice H. Friedman, instructor in medicine, Georgetown University school of medicine.

County Votes on Slot Machine

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

Leonardtown, Md., Dec. 8.—A hotly debated issue centering on legalized operation of slot machines in St. Marys County will be decided in a county-wide public referendum today.

Climaxing a heated campaign in which opposition to legalized gambling has been led by the St. Marys County Civic Association, voters will cast ballots from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. on a proposal which would give the county commissioners authority to tax slot machines, thus placing them within the law.

A total vote of nearly 4000 is expected.

In Leonardtown, designated as the Third Precinct, ballots will be cast in three precincts, the Old Postoffice, Leonardtown, Fire Department, and the Colored Home. Other voting precincts are as follows: First District, St. Inigoes; Second, Valley Lee; Fourth, Chaptico; Fifth, Mechanicsville; Sixth, Hillville; Seventh, Lacey's Store; Eighth, Lexington Park, and Ninth, St. Georges Island.

The ballots will indicate only whether the voters are "for" or "against" the tax proposal.

The wording has been vigorously criticized by the St. Mary's County Civic Association, which has charged failure to state the "true issue" is an effort by county officials to mislead voters. Election officials contend the voting public is fully aware of the issue in view of widespread publicity centering on the effort to legalize the gambling machines.

The referendum was authorized by the Maryland General Assembly early this year.

In the event a majority of the voters favor legalized machines, the commisioners will have the power to designate the type of coin-operated machines which can be legally operated in the county and to impose license fees of up to $50 for each machine.

County commissioners estimate the machines would net the county about $100,000 a year in licenses and gross receipts taxes.

Maryland Collects $15,176 in Overdue Income Taxes

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 8 (AP).—Maryland's income tax delinquincy detectives sent out during November, 3538 letters to Free Staters who for various reasons had failed to pay up and the result was $15,176.89 in the State till.

The income tax division of the comptroller's office is continually coming upon information from employers that shows certain employes have failed to fork over for their State income tax.

When such cases are found letters with assessments based on the information at hand are sent to the individuals.

If these gentle reminders bear no fruit, the State puts a lien upon the delinquent taxpayer's salary.

Fourth quarterly payments for persons who pay their State income tax on the installment plan are due December 15. Notices have been sent to all taxpayers who owe the State for the quarter.

8 Md. 4-H Members to Compete In Jackson, Miss., Convention

By The Associated Press

Eight Maryland 4-H Club members will leave at 5 a. m. today to participate in the thirteenth annual convention of the National Junior Vegetable Growers Association next weekend at Jackson, Miss.

They won the trip and the distinction of representing the State in competition last October at College Park. The competition this year is restricted to 4-H Club members who conducted garden projects and had no more than two weeks of college training in this field.

Drexel Bradley and Merrill Culver, jr., both of Wicomico County, will enter the national demonstration contest Friday. Their demonstration shows the proper way to select sweet potato seed and how to bed it.

In the vegetable judging contest Saturday, James Arnold and Douglass King of Montgomery County, and Ivan Baker Rosencranz of Frederick County will be called upon to identify insects and diseases which attack vegetables. They also will participate in the judging.

Three members of the State team will make the trip to receive awards from the national association for their garden projects. They are John W. Wysong of Forest Hills, James R. Moxley of West Friendship and Harry C. Hearn of Laurel.

Wysong, a 15-year-old member, recently won a $200 scholarship as a national winner in the annual 4-H garden contest.

The party will be accompanied by Edward K. Bender, extension specialist in vegetable crops at the University of Maryland, and Roscoe Whipp, assistant agricultural agent of Montgomery County.

Bender and Dr. Carroll E. Cox of the university's department of botany have been coaching the vegetable judging team for the national meet since October.

The party is scheduled to return next Monday.

A-Bomb Plant Strike Postponed At U. S. Request

By The Associated Press

A strike at part of the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic energy plant scheduled for midnight tonight was postponed indefinitely last night.

The CIO union involved agreed to a Government request for an indefinite contract extension.

The CIO United Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers Union here announced they had accepted the request made by Cyrus S. Ching director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The union had set a strike for tonight when its regular contract expires, for 2800 union members employed at the uranium reduction plant of the Carbide and Chemical Corp., private operator for the Government of one of the principal atomic energy servicing aperations at Oak Ridge.

The workers have been asking a 25-cent-an-hour wage increase, together with other concessions.

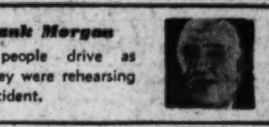
What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan: Some people drive as though they were rehearsing for an accident.



The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

BOONDOGGLE? Hundreds of Federal workers are kept busy at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars to make surveys for congressional committees. For example:

In the personnel field alone, the cost of recent reports for the House and Senate Appropriations and Civil Service Committees have cost just two agencies—Army and Navy—well over $350,000. And both departments have other costly and exhaustive reports to make, one of which is to compare the salaries and promotions of all war-hired employes with prewar workers.

What happens to the reports after they are sent to Congress? I asked this question of a plain-spoken Capitol Hill employe and this was his answer:

"Don't you know," he said, "that's what we call our Capitol Hill boondoggle. We have to make the agencies work to give us something to do."

WAA: Administrator Jesse Larson hopes to wind up War Assets Administration as such by next June 30. Reportedly, he has orders to that affect from President Truman. WAA, which has about 35,000 employes, plans to cut its staff to around 17,000 by that date.

However, WAA will be transferred to an old-line agency for liquidation—a job that will continue for years. Larson hopes WAA can be switched to the Federal Works Agency. Treasury's Bureau of Federal Supply is another clear possibility for WAA liquidation.

LOYALTY: The Army and Navy have forced the firings as "bad security risks" of upwards of 90 civilians during the past year who were in the employ of private military contractors. These firings are in addition to a number of outright Army and Navy employes who have been discharged on security grounds.

In awarding contracts for secret and confidential projects, the military services reserve the right to make security and loyalty checks of the contractor's employes. It wasn't revealed from which projects employes had been fired. But the military services award contracts to many colleges and private organizations for secret scientific work.

POSTOFFICE: The Senate Civil Service Committee today plans to hold hearings on the nominations of Jesse Donaldson and Paul Aiken to be Postmaster General and Second Assistant Postmaster General.

CIVIL SERVICE is conducting an extensive investigation of death claims paid by its retirement division. Nineteen cases have been investigated in every detail.

The investigation followed the suicide of Charles McLaughlin, a death claims adjudicator, who was charged with faking a $6000 claim. A second phony claim for $7500 had been prepared by McLaughlin but it hadn't been approved. No other skulduggery has been uncovered.

Civil Service hopes to recover from McLaughlin's estate all but about $600 of the $6000 he received on the fictitious claim. Alert Civil Service investigators uncovered the wrong-doing.

Meantime, Civil Service has abolished its death claims and annuities sections and has merged them into a single annuity office under E. W. Warren. The move was made in anticipation of congressional approval of the Langer-Chavez-Stevenson retirement bill.

PAY RAISES: Seventeen cities in this country now grant pay raises to municipal employes in proportion to increases in the cost of living. Adjustments apply generally to the first $1200 to $1500 of salary and they are made every three months.

Some such wage plan tied to the cost of living is now being studied by several members of Congress for Federal workers. The Administration also is reported to be interested in a similar flexible and temporary wage proposal.

It seems clear that the Administration will frown on the several bills in Congress to raise salaries of each Federal worker a flat $500 to $1000.

REBUTTAL: An entertaining bit of verse by a middle-aged Government girl was published here the other day. This is the best of many answers to it:

We're government girls aged over forty.
We don't ape the kids or try to be sporty.
There are hundreds of others in our class—
Not that described by your middle-aged lass.
We use lipstick and powder our noses,
Wear high heeled shoes, often without toeses.
Our skirts are long or short in season.
A desire to look well being the chief reason.
If you want to know our average weight,
It barely tops a hundred and eight.
The kids in the office always use our first name
And treat us as if our ages were the same.
We like our work and also our bosses
And don't count our days as total losses.
Our former chiefs call us once in a while
To get information that's not on file.
Our biggest gripe is the endless red tape
From which, we regret, we can find no escape.
If this sounds smug, excuse us, my lad,
But the Government really isn't too bad.

TWO MIDDLE-AGED LASSES.

Hopes Drop For Meeting Chest Quota By Deadline

Speaker at 2d Last Meeting Thursday To Tell What Failure Will Mean to Area

The Community Chest, with the zero hour fast approaching, will hold its next to last report meeting today to hear the fateful news of the extent of the 1947 campaign failure.

Miss Gertrude Bowling, executive director of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society, has chosen the pointed topic, "The Meaning of Failure," for her guest talk at 12:15 p.m. at the Annapolis Hotel.

Miss Bowling, who is also chairman of the executive conference of the Chest, will describe how the 125 Red Feather agencies will be forced to tighten their belts during the coming year.

Drive Far Short

At the time of Friday's report meeting, the drive was $892,441 short of its $3,900,000 goal. Final reports from the nine campaign units will be presented Thursday, while the drive will officially close the following day.

An 11th hour appeal was made yesterday by Edward H. Foley, jr., campaign chairman: "With two most critical reports still depending on the unrelenting efforts of every volunteer, I urgently ask that every individual gift obtained up to 11 a. m. Tuesday be brought in to Tuesday's meeting."

About 18,000 new contributions, representing $152,807, were turned in at the last report meeting.

Amounts to Be Raised

Unaudited reports of Friday showed that the nine units still have the following amounts to raise:

Business Unit 1, $447,119, or 26.88 per cent; Business Unit 11, $7531, or 10.4 per cent of an adjusted quota; Government Unit, $133,129, or 9.81 per cent; Residential Unit, $147,694, or 27.48 per cent; Alexandria Unit, $7387, or 12.74 per cent; Arlington County Unit, $17,840, or 33.68 per cent; Fairfax County Unit, $19,823, or 45.89 per cent; Montgomery County Unit, $33,330, or 26.88 per cent, and Prince Georges County Unit, $7919, or 18 per cent.

14 Violations Listed for Cafe In City Center

District Commissioners today will receive a Health Department report listing 14 violations of regulations in a lunchroom now operating in the Municipal Center without a license or payment of rent.

Yesterday, two department officials inspected the eating place and submitted a report to Dr. George C. Ruhland, district health officer.

The officials, George Walsh, jr., food inspector, and Henry G. Jenkins, food supervisor, said that in their opinion "the structural conditions of this location are unsuitable for food operation in any capacity."

Mason to Urge Action

The report was forwarded to Commissioner Guy Mason, who said he will urge his fellow Commissioners at their meeting this morning to "close them up or get them to comply."

The Commissioner said that once the matter of compliance with health regulations and the issuing of a license is out of the way, the Commissioners will look into the collection of rents.

Violations Listed

The violations listed in the report are:

1. Broken and loose acoustical tiles on walls and ceilings.
2. Kitchen floor in bad condition.
3. Inadequate facilities for proper cleansing of pots and pans.
4. No drainboards on three-compartment sinks.
5. No facilities for sterilization.
6. Inadequate storage for cooking utensils.
7. No hand basin.
8. All cooking equipment unhooded.
9. Inadequate ventilation.
10. Inadequate storage space for foods.
11. Inadequate refrigeration.
12. Bad lighting.
13. No dressing rooms or place to store wearing apparel.
14. Lack of protection for food on steam tables.

Airline Employes Awarded Back Pay

St. Paul, Dec. 8 (AP).—A three-man arbitration board today filed in Federal district court a report awarding 1308 mechanics and related ground personnel employed by Northwest Airlines a wage boost of 15½ cents an hour, retroactive to last July 1.

The award, which came as a result of a study undertaken after a mechanics walkout last summer, was signed by all three members of the board—William M. Leiserson, former chairman of the National Arbitration Board; K. F. Ferguson, vice president of NWA, and George H. Pedersen, chairman of the Milwaukee Railroad Machinists union, who represented the airline machinists.

At Americanization School's Bazaar

The Washington Post

Parent-Pupil Strike Reduces Attendance From 1427 to 190 at Browne School, Annexes

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Classrooms in the Browne Junior High School and its two annexes were almost empty yesterday.

The Negro parents and pupils continued their strike against what they stated "inadequate facilities" provided by the District Board of Education.

Of the 1427 pupils scheduled to report in the morning at the Browne School, 26th and Benning rd. ne., and at the two recently added older buildings, only 190 showed up for classes.

In the afternoon, the attendance was even lower and several teachers sat alone at the head of their classrooms, while others gave individual instruction to one, two or three pupils.

Only 87 pupils were in their classrooms for the afternoon session at the Browne School, seven were on hand in the Webb School building at 15th and Rosedale sts. ne., and exactly two attended the Blow School, 19th st. and Benning rd. ne.

The issue was over the transfer last Monday of the Webb and Blow buildings, formerly used as white elementary schools, to the Negro junior high school.

The two old buildings contrast with the Browne School, which, though modern, has insufficient space to accommodate its 1826 students. The use of the Webb and Blow buildings was an effort to reduce the necessity for part-time education at the junior high school, by spreading the classes through the three buildings.

Call for Shuttle System

The new arrangements placed in effect last week, call for 1146 pupils using a "shuttle" system to get six hours in the classroom a day. Some 285 have their mornings at Browne and their afternoons at Blow, according to the schedule, while 304 begin at Browne and end up at Webb. Another 269 would have morning classes at Blow, and switch to the Browne School in the afternoon, while still another 288 would begin their day at Webb and study at Browne in the afternoon.

The six-hour, full-time schedule for the 1146 pupils is somewhat reduced, in practice, by the fact that the Webb School is 14 blocks from the junior high school, while the Blow School is 8 blocks away.

Some 680 students are still on a part-time basis, according to the new schedule set up by the Browne School.

Short of Equipment

A visit to the annex schools yesterday revealed that each has eight classrooms, four on each of two floors. No equipment is provided for such studies as science or business classes. One classroom, a science and geography room at the Webb school, is a former kindergarten room and does not have a blackboard.

There were no pupils in the geography class scheduled for that room early yesterday afternoon, and the teacher spent her time filling out absentee reports in triplicate. If she had a class, she would have mimeographed her material for lack of a blackboard.

No lockers or closets in which to keep classroom equipment are provided at the Webb School. Teachers needing such equipment have to carry it from the Browne School and back. Miss Emily Dyson, assistant principal of Browne who is in charge of the two annexes, said. Chalk, erasers, paper and pencils are kept at the school.

Pupils at both the former elementary buildings have hooks on which to hang their coats.

Teachers Also Shuttle

The teachers—32 of whom are shuttling among the three schools in the same way the children are—have no place to retire at the Blow building. At the Webb School, there is a ladies' room. Male teachers use the boys' lavatory in the basement.

Both the girls' and boys' lavatories in the basement of the Blow building may be entered from side doors of the school building on 19th st., as well as from the first floor. An iron bar has been placed on the side door leading to the girls' lavatory so it may not be opened from the outside.

Hot-air coal furnaces provide heat in both the annexes through a vent in each classroom, placed in the wall opposite the windows. Though the weather was warm yesterday and thermometers in several of the classrooms registered 80 degrees, and in one case 85, teachers kept windows closed for the most part, citing instructions to do so.

Blackboards in two Blow classrooms were broken, while a third room has a canvas blackboard which was ripped in spots.

A basement lunchroom in that building was not being used and was unheated. It provided one sink, two gas stoves with two jets apiece and a number of long board tables. Those pupils who do not go home to eat are sent to the Browne School for lunch.

At the Blow School, a few window panes were broken in two classrooms, while at the Webb School, broken panes have recently been repaired, according to G. T. Preston, who is temporarily in charge.

Preston, counselor at the Browne School, said he believed one of the greatest drawbacks to the use of the two former elementary school buildings was the reaction of the junior high school students themselves.

"Going to junior high school is a pretty important thing," he said, "and it hurts their pride when they have to go to elementary schools for their classes."

Some Playing Hookey

At the Browne School, Principal William B. Stinson was receiving a number of calls from parents. To those who called for advice, he said their children were losing educational training by not attending school, and he emphasized that teachers were on hand for every class regardless of the pupil attendance. Some pupils, he noted, were taking advantage of the strike by playing hookey without their parents' knowledge.

Acting on instructions of the school administration, Stinson had all teachers send questionnaires to parents of absent pupils asking for the reason for their absence.

While a few women picketed the two annex schools, a separate Negro group, led by Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro Council, visited Speaker Martin of the House to present a request for a special House committee investigation of Negro school conditions here.

Martin referred the group to Chairman Dirksen of the House District Committee and said he would arrange an appointment with him. He said he was "much concerned with this problem of seeing that every child gets equal treatment under the law," particularly in the Nation's Capital.

Needless Delay Charge Denied By Rent Chief

Defending his office against charges of unnecessary delays in the handling of landlords' rent rise petitions, District Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell yesterday declared:

"Much of the so-called 'delays' which Mr. Rufus Lusk (secretary of the Building Owners and Managers Association) criticizes are required by the District Rent Control Act itself, and Mr. Lusk claims he helped draft much of that act."

Lusk recently proposed a rent-raise processing formula which would take five days with rent boosts based on exact increases since 1941 of real estate taxes, water, fuel and day-to-day services. This revision is possible under the District Rent Control Act, Lusk declared, and would result in average increases of 7.7 per cent, which he said is less than the average resulting from inclusion of other higher costs to the landlord.

Work Load Increased

"Our volume of work has increased tremendously in the past six months," added Cogswell. "If rent control is extended here, we'll have to ask for additional help," he added.

Requests for a straight 10 per cent increase in rents for 123 apartment units of the Washington House at 2120 16th st. nw., were made at a rent hearing yesterday before Examiner William H. Clark.

Mark Winkler, manager of the apartment house and part owner, declared that if the full request is granted rents will be "frozen through 1948." Rents there now range from $55 for one room, kitchen and bath to $132.50 for two bedrooms, living room, kitchen and two baths, he said.

Protest Hike Request

In another hearing, about 30 tenants and an attorney, W. Byron Sorrell, who said he represented 99 tenants, appeared to protest requested rent increases for 128 furnished apartments on Galveston pl. sw.

The management, Madison Housing Corp., seeks to raise rentals on the 3½-room apartments there from the present $85 to $100. David Lester, treasurer of the corporation, stated that management costs of $49,059.22 in 1945 will rise to an estimated $73,505 in 1948. The tenants, including many servicemen, complained of "poor service" and said the property is "run down."

In a third case, a reduction in services was sought by the Club Shannon, which operates units of rooming and boarding houses in the 2700 and 2800 blocks of Connecticut ave. nw., with 142 tenants. Charges for monthly board are $28, with varying room charges. Accoring to testimony, most tenants agreed to a request to eliminate Sunday meals, but opposed elimination of telephone switchboard service. Examiner James G. Tyson indicated he would approve a compromise on the telephone costs which would maintain that service.

Building Trades Apprentices Are Graduated

The Washington Post

JOURNEYMEN NOW—Seventy-three building trades apprentices, graduated as journeymen in the past two months, were awarded certificates, issued jointly by the Federal Committee on Apprenticeship and the District of Columbia Apprenticeship Council, at the Washington Building Congress' luncheon yesterday. William F. Patterson, director, Appreticeship Training Service, United States Department of Labor, is shown here presenting certificates to (left to right) Peter Cleland, 3004 Gainesville st. se., stonemason; Melvin Kiliam, Fredericksburg, Va., carpenter, and George M. Man Given Jail Despite Wife's Plea

Beaten Woman Begs Court to Stay 60-Day Sentence For Her Spouse

A wife's tearful pleading that her husband be released of charges that he beat her up proved futile yesterday afternoon in a Municipal Court drama here.

Judge Armond W. Scott sentenced the defendant, Brady Bishop, 42, construction engineer, of 67 New York ave. nw., to 60 days in jail, terming him "a veritable brute, when drunk."

The wife, Mrs. Alice Bishop, collapsed in the arms of court attendants as she was being led, semi-hysterical, from the courtroom after the sentencing.

Husband Admits Guilt

At a preliminary hearing, the husband had pleaded guilty to charges that he assaulted his wife in an argument at their home on November 24. Sentencing was deferred until yesterday pending report of the probation office.

"Don't lock him up! Don't lock him up!" she pleaded yesterday, between sobs. "There will be no one left to take care of things at home."

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Scott declared he could not be governed by her wishes, since a probation office report showed that Bishop had broken her jaw in a previous altercation, causing hospital bills totaling $1500.

In other assault cases yesterday, George Merkelson, 40, of 119½ Schott's ct. ne., was ordered held under $2000 bond pending grand jury action on charges he assaulted his wife with a dangerous weapon.

Speaks From Wheelchair

The wife, Mrs. Rosie May Merkelson, testified from a wheelchair that her husband threw acid on her legs and hit her with a chair at their home, last Thursday. She was treated for burns on both legs at Gallinger Hospital.

Norman H. Smith, 43 of 809 4th st. nw., was similarly held under $1000 bond on charge of assaulting a friend, Bertha Hayes, 33, of 531 New Jersey ave. nw., at his home, November 28. She testified he struck her over the head with a bottle then, but had broken both her arms in two previous quarrels.

A jury trial on January 14 was set for Chester F. Pryor, 32, of 1721 12th st., Arlington, Va., on charge of simple assault. Pryor was charged with assaulting two policemen last Friday night in an argument in the 100 block of Eye st. nw.

Parents Held In Delinquent Children Case

New Law Invoked To Curb Wayward In Prince Georges

A new Prince Georges County law was invoked yesterday when six Hyattsville, Md., parents were charged with "contributing to the delinquency" of their children by allowing them to roam Hyattsville streets at late hours.

The children were picked up by Hyattsville Policemen Kenneth Moureau and Elmer Thompson early Sunday morning in a diner on the Baltimore blvd. They were taken to Hyattsville Police Station and held until their parents arrived.

Probation Officer Roy Bright directed warrants be issued against the parents.

Hearings are scheduled for Thursday afternoon before Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens in Prince Georges County Juvenile Court at Hyattsville. The new law carries a maximum penalty for conviction of two years imprisonment and $500 fine.

The children included three sisters, ages 11 to 14; two other sisters, ages 14 and 15, and a 14-year-old boy.

Lost Tricycle Plea Makes Offers 'Roll'

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

"BUTCH" MacDONALD

The parents of 3-year-old Douglas (Butch) MacDonald were somewhat bewildered yesterday by the flood of calls from persons offering Butch a new tricycle.

It seems Butch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. MacDonald, 336 8th st. nw., lost his tricycle Sunday morning. A neighbor, noticing Butch's tears as he searched for his lost vehicle, telephoned Radio Station WGAY.

No sooner had Announcer Chuck Dulane told about Butch's loss than the station's telephone began to ring. A second broadcast had to be made to stop the offers.

Butch's parents, amazed at the offers, said they had already had a new tricycle on order for Butch for Christmas, but the station meanwhile, decided to give Butch the first tricycle offered, which came from an anonymous.

Second Cabbie In 2 Days Prey Of Con Man

Herbert Rollins, 40, a cab driver with faith in his fares, yesterday complained to police that he had loaned $4 to a passenger and that both had disappeared.

Second cab driver to fall victim to a con man in two days, Rollins, who lives at 24 De Frees st. nw., said a passenger whom he drove to 19th st. and Florida ave. nw. identified himself as a bellhop and needed cash to buy whisky. The passenger promised to repay the driver when they drove back to the former's hotel.

Hortense Benton, 15 M st. nw., told police her pocketbook containing $49 and a pearl pin was snatched from her arm by a youth as she was walking near her home.

Radio Station Theft

Theft of $150 from a filing cabinet in the offices of radio station WQQW, 2627 Connecticut ave. nw., was reported by Robert Rogers.

Some 70 cartons of cigarettes as well as soft drinks and chocolate valued at more than $100 were stolen from a Safeway trailer truck parked in the 1800 block of 4th st. ne., Elmer M. Knight, warehouse manager reported.

Mrs. Beatrice Colton, 1245 Neal st. ne., told police her savings amounting to $160.50 were stolen from a metal container hidden in a kitchen cabinet.

Jean Mavis, secretary of the ICC Equipment Co., 805 G st. nw., said 352 chair casters boxed in two cartons and valued at $250 were taken from the firm's office.

Cleaner Cleaned

Two heating units worth $100 were reported by Bessie Wendell as stolen from a shed at the rear of 1203 G st. ne.

Stolen by housebreakers from 3511 Texas ave. se., according to a report made by Alice Ganey, were a radio valued at $15 and $100 in cash.

James B. Ward reported his cleaning store at 206 G st. ne. was broken into and that $8 worth of whisky and $20 in cash were missing.

Automobiles were reported stolen by Helen C. Bemas, 1301 Massachusetts ave. nw.; Janie Ragland, 1240 5th st. nw.; Capt. Ford H. Hall, 1602 Isherwood st. ne., and Meyer Bessoff, 4812 Fort Totten dr. ne.

Arlington Democrats Favor Voting Machines

The Arlington Democratic Club favors purchase or rental of voting machines in future Arlington County elections, the club resolved at a meeting Thursday at the Lyon Park Community House.

Charles R. Fenwick, Arlington lawyer, was elected club president; Kenneth Laird, first vice president; Leonard Hilder, second vice president, and Charles Ladson, the committee also had considered third vice president.

Hilder, chairman of the club's voting machine committee, said the advantages of a card index system.

Tickets Show Traffic 'Fix' Decline for Third Week

Tenth Precinct Reports Biggest 'Warning' Drop In Adjustments

The number of traffic tickets, "fixed" by police, nose-dived again last week, with the week's total reported yesterday at 123 as compared to 145 the week before and 177 the week ended November 23.

This week marks the third consecutive week that statistics on ticket adjustments have been published following a controversy which ended with a corporation counsel ruling that they are public record.

The decrease in adjustments has fallen in the number of warnings rather than cancellations. Warnings dropped to 100 last week as compared to 123 the week before while cancellations increased from 22 to 23.

The Tenth Precinct, which again had the largest number of adjustments, reported the biggest drop in warnings, with only 18 issued last week as compared to 32 the week before.

Following are totals for the traffic and harbor divisions and the precincts:

Harbor Division—No warnings, no cancellations.
First Precinct—6 warnings, 4 cancellations.
Second Precinct—7 warnings, 1 cancellation.
Third Precinct—10 warnings, no cancellations.
Fourth Precinct—8 warnings, 1 cancellation.
Sixth Precinct—10 warnings, no cancellations.
Seventh Precinct—4 warnings, 2 cancellations.
Eighth Precinct—4 warnings, 2 cancellations.
Tenth Precinct—18 warnings, 3 cancellations.
Eleventh Precinct—1 warning, 4 cancellations.
Twelfth Precinct—2 warnings; no cancellations.

Traffic Division

Rosalie Maletz, 27, of 3808 Jenifer st. nw., parked 7 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. Warned—good record, no previous violations.

Robert E. Marsh, 52, of 4000 47th st. nw., parked in alley. Warned—electrician, The Washington Post, emergency.

Emmanuel C. Decides, 24, of 3621 Newark st. nw., no parking anytime. Warned—no previous warnings.

Stuart Schwartz, 22, of 3355 16th st. nw., no parking anytime. Warned—emergency stop.

John D. Hermann, 31, of Baltimore, Md., parking overtime. Warned—ranger in city.

Ellis F. Moon, 45, of 136 Rhode Island ave. nw., parked 4 to 6 p. m. Warned—taken ill, had to park.

Harry Zetlin, 28, of 2820 Pennsylvania ave. se., parked 7 a. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Sickness Pays For Winner in Jingle Contest

A week in bed with an attack of influenza paid dividends for C. E. Howard of 3419 Quebec st. nw., who yesterday was named winner of the Traffic Advisory Board's jingle contest.

Howard

Howard, who is 52, has been driving since 1925 and has never had an accident or received a traffic summons. His winning entry, which nosed out 1800 others and won him a radio, was:

Give the walker the right of way,
And the right to walk another day.
Our safety rules are fair and square,
So curb your speed and drive with care.

The table model radio will be presented to Howard today at 11 a. m. in the Municipal Center by Arthur J. Sundlun, board chairman, and Howard M. Starling, member of the board's committee for education and public information. Howard is employed in the Land Planning Section, Federal Housing Administration.

Safety certificates will be presented to five other entrants. They are Edmund B. Montgomery, RFD 1, Alexandria; Eunice Guill, 206 E. Glendale ave., Alexandria; Mrs. E. R. Johnson, 2100 N st. nw.; Carlton F. Steep, 1223 Queen st. ne., and Arnold Gross, Park View School.

Dusk plays tricks on drivers' eyes.

Entries should be sent to Room 1008, Municipal Building, by midnight Sunday.

TODAY ON WINX

Area News in Brief

Mail Truck Driver Fined for Speeding

A truck driver was fined $5 yesterday in Municipal Court for apparently taking too much to heart the Postoffice slogan "Neither snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

Charles Wiggins, 28, of 1318 22d st. nw., was driving his truck over Highway Bridge last Friday, trying to catch a mail plane, he told police, who charged he was driving more than 40 miles an hour.

Said Judge John P. McMahon, "Just because you work for Uncle Sam doesn't give you the right to violate our laws."

Military View 2-0-2

The Martin 2-0-2, first high-speed, postwar airliner, will be demonstrated to aviation officers of the military services at National Airport this week, the Glenn L. Martin Co. announced yesterday.

Designated the 2-0-2 because it is the 202d Martin-designed aircraft, the twin-engine plane seats from 36 to 40 passengers and has been approved by the CAA for commercial airline use.

Plans for a military version of the 2-0-2 have already been announced by the Baltimore firm. Navy and Marine Corps air officers inspected the plane yesterday and demonstration flights are scheduled for the Air Forces and Air Transport Command later this week.

Britons at U. of Md.

The five British farmers who have been touring this country will be entertained by the 4-H Club of the University of Maryland at College Park today. The group will tour the campus under direction of Miss Joan Giddings, Nutwell, and William Baker, Frederick.

Engineer Booked

A Pennsylvania railroad engineer yesterday was booked on a technical charge of manslaughter after his freight train killed a man who was sitting on the tracks.

The victim, William H. Thomas, 45, of Bowie, Md., was killed instantly when the engine struck him about 1000 feet north of the Laurel-Bowie bridge Saturday night.

The engineer, Cullin B. Jones, 54, of 6002 Forrest rd., Cheverly, Md., was released on personal bond for hearing in Hyattsville police court December 18.

Bruce Quits VPI Board

Governor Tuck yesterday announced the resignation of David K. E. Bruce of Brookneal, Va., from the VPI board of visitors.

Bruce, a former member of the House of Delegates, is now Assistant Secretary of Commerce here. He asked to be retired from the VPI board because of the pressure of other business. Tuck said he had not appointed a successor.

Truck Blocks Traffic

Morning rush-hour traffic was blocked more than an hour yesterday when an oil truck, owned by M. I. O'Boyle & Sons, rammed a guard rail at Queens Chapel rd. and Hamilton st. in suburban Hyattsville, Md.

Wagstaff Goes to Jail

Joseph A. Wagstaff, 23, of 5506 Grove st., Bethesda, Md., yesterday surrendered himself to Montgomery County police and began a 30-day sentence in the Rockville Jail.

The medically discharged former sailor was convicted of destruction of private property and given the sentence after he broke into the home of a neighbor in the belief it was his own.

His attorneys said his appeal on the conviction had been dropped with the consent of county authorities.

School Plans Concerts

Takoma Park Junior High School, Piney Branch rd., Silver Spring, Md., will present a series of concerts during the Christmas season.

At a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association at 8 p. m. tomorrow the Boys' Melody Choir will present a program of sacred and secular music. On December 18, the school will have its annual Christmas assembly, with a musical program by the Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs and the Boys' Melody Choir. The series will be concluded with a band concert on December 19 at 9:10 a. m.

What Price Nevius Tract

The price the Federal Government must pay for the 25-acre Nevius tract in Arlington, originally sought for a veterans' hospital may be decided in February, the United States District Court in Alexandria.

Judge Sterling Hutcheson has set February 24, 25 and 26 as the dates for condemnation hearings on the tract for which the Government has offered $850.827.

Davis Heads Council

The United States Department of Agriculture council, composed of Federal agricultural agencies operating in Maryland, elected Edward Davis, State conservationist chairman at a meeting yesterday at College Park.

Anthony Madden, head of the crop insurance program, was elected secretary. The council completed a summary of the long-range agricultural program which was submitted to Congress by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson.

The program will be made available to Maryland farmers so they can be advised what is being planned on a national scale.

Priest Urges Nation to Set House in Order By Protecting Elementary Civil Rights for All

The Washington Post

IN PROCESSION—Part of the procession which opened the solemn pontifical mass at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Catholic University, yesterday. Shown here are Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, who pontificated (center); the Rev. Frank Cassidy (left), and the Rev. James Reilly, both doing graduate work in the University's Department of Religion. The page boy is Donald Callahan of Catholic University Campus School

Protection of civil rights in America was urged yesterday by the Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., as Greater Washington area Catholic parishes observed the Feast of the Immaculate Conception.

Preaching at a solemn pontifical mass at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Catholic University, Father Stanford declared:

"Within the confines of our own country we need to put our house in order. We need to examine our own consciences, to doubly scrutinize our own actions in order that elementary civil rights be denied to none of our citizens on racial, religious, economic or other grounds."

Reminding of "serious internal problems" in America, Father Stanford referred to the Catholic hierarchy's recent indictment of secularism and he deplored a "rising tide of religious tensions." Father Stanford is superior of the Augustinian College at Catholic University.

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, pontificated at the mass, which opened with a procession of Catholic University faculty members, nuns, students and others.

Since yesterday was a holy day of obligation for Catholics, attendance at mass was obligatory. Catholic schools were closed and Catholic University classes were dismissed for the day—the patronal feast day of the institution.

General Surles died late Friday night at Walter Reed Hospital after an illness of several years. He was retired for phyical disabilit yin 1946, but returned to service as an adviser to the Chief of Staff.

Assigned to head the Bureau of Public Relations several months before America's entry into World War II, General Surles developed, despite his failing health, a public information program that has won the praise of both the press and the Army.

Eisenhower Will Attend Butler Rites

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—Callers were admitted for two hours today to the Morningside home where the body of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president emeritus of Columbia University, lay, awaiting tomorrow's funeral service in the campus chapel.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Columbia's president-elect, was among the prominent Americans who indicated today they will attend the simple services at 11 a. m. in St. Paul's Chapel.

President Truman, former President Herbert Hoover and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada were among those who sent messages in tribute to Dr. Butler and his distinguished career in the field of education and public life.

Dr. Butler died early Sunday after an illness of less than two weeks. He was 85 but, although blind, had continued to take an active interest in world affairs after his retirement as president of Columbia in October, 1945.

He was admitted to St. Luke's Hospital on Thanksgiving Day with a digestive disturbance. Later he contracted bronchial pneumonia.

Luncheon to Aid European Children

Members attending the luncheon meeting tomorrow of the Air Force Officers' Club have been asked to contribute warm clothing in good condition for children in Europe. Sizes may range from infants to 12 years and shoes are especially needed. Unboxed and wrapped in plain paper, the articles will be turned over to the post chaplain for shipment overseas.

The meeting will be held at 12:30 at the Bolling Field Officers Club and luncheon reservations should be made with the club by noon today.

In Beautiful Venice

American Group to Aid Restoration of 900-Year-Old Cathedral of San Marco

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

IN HAPPY prewar days most American tourists made a bee-line for Venice. Canals, gondolas, the Lido were integral parts of the romantic picture, but star attraction was the fantastically beautiful Cathedral of San Marco. Venice, declared an open city, escaped bombings and obvious war damage, remains an enchanted oasis in troubled, rubble-strewn Europe. But San Marco is in desperate straits. Its "new" structure, now 900 years old, was not repaired during the war and today's bankrupt Italy can spare no funds for artistic rehabilitation. In the thirteenth century, after Venice cleaned up in the Fourth Crusade, all sorts of Near East ornaments, heavy marble capitals, columns, walls were added to the building which rests partly on mud, partly on wooden piles. This extra weight imposed tremendous burden on ancient construction; columns have split, arches sag, pilasters, filled with settled rubble, no longer support the vast, mosaic covered walls. If deterioration continues, San Marco, like Venice's Campanile, may collapse. But, unlike the structurally simple tower it can never be rebuilt. Before the war a force of artist workmen were employed the year 'round. To effect the difficult expensive repairs a similar group must be recruited and maintained for a minimum of five years. Their wages come to a minimum of fifty thousand dollars annually. In all a quarter of a million dollars will be needed to complete the restoration, and to raise this sum a committee called "Pro San Marco, Inc." has been formed.

Honorary president of the Venetian Committee is His Eminence Cardinal Piazza, Patriarch of Venice. Honorary chairmen include the Italian Ambassador to Washington and our Ambassador to Rome, James Dunn. Treasurer and hardest worker for the fund is Washington's Mrs. Truxtun Beale, who spent part of last summer in Venice. Restoring San Marco will not only preserve an irreplaceable work of art, but save a place of worship where the Christian religion has been practiced uninterruptedly for nine centuries.

The cathedral has provided a living for many artist workmen and their families. These specialized workmen are among the first to be hit, the last to be employed during wartime. The committee is hoping for a number of large contributions, but because so many love San Marco, it is even more hopeful of receiving countless smaller gifts.

Another Honor for Msgr. Hemmick

NEWS HAS just reached Washington that the Rt. Rev. Monsignor William A. Hemmick has just been appointed Ecclesiastical Counselor for the Order of the Knights of Malta. He is the first American to receive this honor, which entails diplomatic privileges of ambassadorial rank at the Holy See. Monsignor Hemmick was also the first American to be appointed as a Canon of St. Peter's in Rome. The Knights of Malta, an international welfare order, has many high-placed, non-Catholic members, such as Field Marshal Alexander, and did a wonderful job during the war.

Later it helped our military government in all sorts of tasks, including the distribution of food. Both Monsignor Hemmick and his brother, Christian Hemmick, were well-known figures in Washington in the 20's.

Tickets in Kamchatka?

WOMEN who conjure good jobs for themselves are always interesting to this department. Take Mrs. Higginson Rogers, for instance—right now she's up to her eyebrows combining two projects, Public Opinion Engineers and the Lafayette Ticket Mart. The Lafayette Ticket Mart, in the Hotel Lafayette at I and 16th sts., snags any kind of ticket here or in New York or, for all we know, Kamchatka, for the theater, sports events, concerts. And, on the side, the Mart does a brisk trade in flowers. Public Opinion Engineers handles a number of unusual accounts—the skiing resort at Aspen, Colo., a new club on Guana, one of the British Virgin Islands; the new Inter-Island Plane Service.

Guana, once owned by a retired British admiral, has been turned into a club—small cottages, a central eating-meeting place, every kind of sport. Mrs. Rogers, via her firm, can get you there and back, fix up the right people with memberships.

The inter-island unscheduled plane service is just debuting. Dr. and Mrs. Edward Van Maltzalm are setting it up at St. Thomas, in the Virgin Islands with three amphibian planes which take passengers anywhere they fancy in the Caribbean area, even drop you down on the waves for a spot of fishing because the ships conveniently unbutton down the front!

Mrs. Van Maltzalm is a licensed mechanic, no less, plus being a Sorbonne graduate and a Near East expert. Her husband is a nephew of General Freyburg and their pilots are straight from the RAF.

Nine Higginson Rogers, daughter of the late Francis Higginson, one-time partner in Lee, Higginson & Co., stepped out of Boston, eventually found a job in the Department of Agriculture, then switched to the War Department where she set up an information service for Negro troops.

Working through the press section, she provided Negro newspapers with press releases, did all all sorts of public relations work. Later she took on a full time nurse's aid job, relaxed a bit after the war, then with a pal who acted as Army liaison on Admiral Nimitz's staff, went into business and has been extraordinarily successful.

Concert at Polish Embassy Attracts Diplomats, Officials

POLAND'S outstanding pianist, Stanislaw Szpinalski, gave a concert at the Polish Embassy last evening. Many top diplomats and officials attended. The Ambassador and Mme. Winiewicz received in the drawing room, and after the concert there was a buffet supper.

Throughout the evening Mme. Winiewicz was assisted by Mrs. Lucian Borepszo of Chicago, Ill., a guest of the embassy this week. Mme. Winiewicz was gowned in violet crepe, and Mrs. Borejszo wore brown velvet. Red and white roses placed around the drawing room carried out the colors of Poland.

Programs were distributed by Miss Betty Teczer, who was dressed in the native costume of Cracow Province—white organdy bouffant and purple velveteen bodice.

Diplomatic guests included the Ambassador of Brazil and Mme. Martins, the Ambassador of the Philippines, Joaquin M. Elizalde; the Ambassador of Austria and Mrs. Kleinwaechter, the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Espinosa de los Monteros, the Ambassador of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Slavik, the Ambassador of Yugoslavia Sara N. Kosnovic, the Bulgarian Charge d'Affaires and Mme. Athanassov and many others.

From the State Department came Llewellyn Thompson, C. Burke Elbrick, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Willard Thorp, Chief of Protocol and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Muir. Senatorial guests included Senator and Mrs. Elbert D. Thomas and Senator Arthur Capper.

Smith Club to Hear Talk on Europe

"Prospects for European Recovery" is the subject of a talk to be given before the Smith Club, when it meets for luncheon Friday at the Parrot Restaurant. Luncheon will be at 12:30 o'clock, and the speaker will be John H. Ferguson, an executive director of the Committee for the Marshall Plan to aid European recovery.

Guests of members, including husbands, are cordially invited. Reservations must be made before December 11 with Mrs. Francis I. McGarraghy, 1202 Portner rd., Alexandria; Temple 8649.

On the Club Front...

The Italian Federation of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs has sent to the United States Business and Professional Women's Clubs a marble urn containing a bag of sod from graves of members of the Army Nurse Corps who gave their lives at Anzio Beach. The gift carries with it a request that a Latin scroll accompanying the urn be presented to President Truman. Announcement of the gift was made last night by Dr. Irma Gene Nevins, president of the District of Columbia Business and Professional Women's Clubs, at a business meeting.

To show its appreciation of the moral and material assistance received from its sister organization in the United States, the Italian Federation participated in a ceremony honoring American soldiers who died at Anzio. At the close of the ceremony, mothers of Italian soldiers knelt at the grave of an American Army nurse, took up a handful of soil and placed it between two small American and Italian flags. Dr. Insabato, president of the Italian national federation, deposited the token in the antique urn donated by the City of Rome, which was given by the Museo Antiquarium of Rome. Found at Anzio, July 27, 1941, the urn is a rare specimen of about 50 B.C.

Dr. Nevins said that the national federation will request that the urn be placed in an appropriate spot in Washington when President Truman receives the scroll.

Asks AAUW to Support Labor Education Bill

Miss Hilda W. Smith, chairman, National Committee of Labor Education, yesterday called upon the members of the Washington branch, American Association of University Women, to support a pending congressional bill for extension of labor education and services.

Guest speaker at the group's weekly afternoon tea, she said that Bill S-1390 calls for services to industrial and salary wage earners, similar to that which the United States Department of Agriculture gives to the farm groups. Other provisions of the bill would establish college and university courses for industrial workers in specialized fields such as management-employer relationships, wages, salaries plus closer cooperation between labor groups and the communities in which they live.

Miss Smith, former dean of Bryn Mawr College, said that workers are eager to learn all possible about how they can participate in community affairs. Also they want to understand the problems within their own factories.

Occasion was a tea given by Mrs. Truman for members of the organization.

Helping Hand Still Needed By Europeans

If foreign help were dithdrawn from Europe, the people again would be as hungry and miserable as under the German occupation. So declared Dr. A. H. Philipse, Commercial Counselor of the Netherlands Embassy in a luncheon address yesterday at the Woman's National Democratic Club.

He said that Europeans don't expect to be fed and clothed indefinitely by more fortunate countries but they want to be able to work and work out their own destinies. "But they can't work unless they have food and tools," he explained.

He told how the Netherlands lacked all raw materials except a little coal in the south and had to make up its income by giving services such as shipbuilding, air transportation, insurance, foreign investments to other countries.

Dr. Philipse said that no ensible European would want to restore German's war potential but that the economic restoration of Germany is essential to the economic recovery of Western Europe. He cited the need for Ruhr coal imports by France, as well as by the Netherlands and other countries.

He termed the division of Europe into east and west, "an economic monstrosity" and pointed out the necessity for removal of tariff barriers among European countries to create free trade.

Town Club Holds Christmas Luncheon

When members of the Town Club held their Christmas luncheon yesterday at the home of Mrs. D. F. Lady, they brought toys for the underprivileged children at Thomson School. Over 45 books, dolls, guns and other toys were collected at the festive event and will be distributed to the youngsters before the holidays begin.

A musical program was given by Mrs. Elizabeth Ecerett, soloist and pianist, Mrs. Elma Bergman, violinist, and Mrs. Wood. The program was arranged by Mrs. Clinton Raynor and Mrs. Ernest Colvin, who also gave several musical numbers.

Cocktail Party 'With a Purpose' Aids CARE

HAVE a drink and help hungry Europe.

No, that's not a paradox. Just a new idea for a cocktail party—like the one Mr. and Mrs. Weir Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Koch gave Sunday afternoon at the former's home, 2513 Quebec st. nw.

About three weeks ago the following invitations went out to friends of the two couples: "This year on December 7, Come and Remember Europe. Have a drink with us and contribute to CARE (Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe) at our party."

More than 100 guests showed up at the Browns' house Sunday. Instead of flowers, the living room, dining room, library and basement were decorated with CARE posters. A food and a blanket package were on display and a desk was covered with literature of the organization. Mrs. Beatrice Schalet, director of CARE's Washington office, was on hand to answer questions and a large crystal bowl was conveniently located to receive contributions. Some of the guests deposited envelopes which had been enclosed with their invitations.

At party's end the bowl contained more than $800 and checks are still being received by mail, report the two attractive young hostesses.

"So many people are really anxious to give," declares Mrs. Brown, "but many just don't know how to go about it . . . or they need a little impetus."

With food saving in mind, only tidbits the hosts served with their cocktails and highballs were potato chips, pretzels, popcorn and peanuts.

Some of the contributors handed in names of people to receive packages. Dr. George Beauchamp, leader of the Ethical Society here, suggested a list of names of members of the society in Vienna, Austria. Other packages will go to France, England, Czechoslovakia and Italy. The packages will be delivered during the Yuletide season . . . that is, before Twelfth Night, January 6.

Both the hosts are with the Federal Reserve Board. Mrs. Brown is employed by the State Department and last year collected CARE contributions from her office. Mrs. Koch is in the publications office of the American Red Cross.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Former Teacher, Mother of Two Small Sons, Worries Because Elder, Now in First Grade, Runs Crying From Bullies Rather Than Fight

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband and I have two sons. The elder, I'll call him Paul, is a sturdy lad, taller than the average and generally considered quite a manly little fellow.

However, I am increasingly aware of his fearfulness in situations which might demand that he fight for his rights. He has been taught, of course, never to strike a girl or a smaller child and not to pick fights, so he tends to be protective of little tots. But now I realize he would make almost any concession to avoid a scuffle.

He is now in his first year of school and he comes home crying with papers torn and clothes disheveled, and I can tell from his versions of each episode that children sense he won't fight back and therefore enjoy picking on him—as they wouldn't do if they felt he had no fear.

She Lectures Lad On How to Behave

ALL MY ADULT life I've handled children, as playground instructor and school teacher, and was always considered understanding and resourceful in dealing with them. But Paul has me stumped. I tell him he is as strong as any child his age and that, while it's wrong to start fights, you have to fight back—as the soldiers did in the war—if someone destroys your belongings or jumps on you. But it does no good.

I don't mean he is everybody's goat, always picked on. He does have pals and is well liked, but when there is mischief afoot he is one of the candidates for abuse and there is one little bully on our street who has him terrified. He doesn't even feel safe in our yard, but retreats into the house if the bully appears.

Father Disapproves Mother's Philosophy

WE'VE ALWAYS given Paul independence and never babied him unduly; and my husband is very companionable with him as time permits, taking him to airports, action pictures, rodeo shows and similar events. Occasionally he wrestles playfully with Paul, but thinks I'm "all wrong" in wishing to give him encouragement to fight.

He says, "That will come in time," and thinks I should be thankful he doesn't start fights. Incidentally, my husband is a tall well-built man, from a family of big fellows, all "regular guys" in sports, etc., when young.

However, I'm worried. A cousin of mine was this way; and now, a grown man, he is afraid to open the door at night and is no good as a protector to his wife and mother. I always felt he got wrong training; and I am hoping you can tell me how to help Paul, and also how to prevent his baby brother from developing the same fears.

D. B.

Mother's Crossed Up Boy's Instincts

DEAR D. B.: The trouble is you. You crossed up all the wires in Paul's natural being long before he reached the age of reason, and without giving him a fighting chance to formulate, integrate and solidify such positive traits of personality as might have been indigenous to his genes.

And this you did, unwittingly, by premature exhaustive "teaching" emphasis on the A-B-C's, the P's and Q's, the ins-and-outs and importance to mother of the so-called gentleman's code,—a smothering treatment of Paul's personality that still goes on.

Trying to make him mother's dream-man from start to finish, you very early and insidiously beat down the impulses he surely felt to "fight" your perfectionist requirements and be himself—the lusty primitive that any healthy male child is.

Fighting Reaction Blocked at Roots

INDUBITABLY that thwarting experience backfired in his lower depths, so to speak, creating an utterly unsuspected complex of brooding, baffled rage and ingrained anticipation of defeat at the hands of opponents.

You've rendered him almost impotent on the score of fighting self-assertiveness; unconsciously as much afraid of his own potentials of destruction or aggression, were they ever loosed, as he is afraid of "fight" in others. On the unconscious level he is desperately conflicted, ever troubled, hence always vaguely haunted by nameless terror—as other children instinctively sense.

To undo the damage you've done and avoid worse blunders, you've got much to learn about child psychology, and my advice is to take the problem to a specialist in that field. The best I can do at this writing is to give you a push in the right direction.

Your Baby and Mine

Regular Meals Are Natural For Schedule

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

The three-meal schedule need not be an artificial program thrust upon the baby. It should come about naturally when the baby begins to show a distaste for that afternoon bottle.

Beginning at about 7 to 8 months of age, the baby who is on four meals will tend to follow a routine similar to the following—which is that of a real baby this age.

The baby wakens any time from 7 to 7:30 and drinks thirstily 8 ounces of milk and eats several teaspoonfuls of a prepared baby cereal.

Orange at 9 A. M.

At 9 o'clock there is the juice of an orange or two, depending on the size of the oranges, and the daily doses of vitamin D; in this case six drops of a concentrated oil.

At 11:30 she is hospitable to about half a can of sieved vegetables, using alternately several varieties; one or two teaspoons of meat, a half can of custard and 8 ounces of milk. She takes all the milk on some days, on others she wants only from 5 to 6 ounces. No attempt is made to force more than she wants.

At 3 p. m. she is offered another 8 ounces of milk. This is the meal at which her appetite is most capricious. If she took less than 6 ounces at 11:30 she may drink the 8 ounces without a whimper. More often she cares little for it. At this hour her mother offers an ounce or two by cup. If she is in the mood she drinks this last as easily as she does her glass of morning orange juice. Just as often she pushes it away.

At 6 p. m. she gets egg, or banana, or meat and vegetable soup, or chicken and vegetable soup, or baked potato or another serving of custard. With any of these she gets at least a half can of sieved fruit, her favorite being pear and apple with peach and prune lagging behind.

Supper May Be Early

Sometimes, if that midafternoon bottle has been repudiated, the night meal has to come as early as 5:30. Strangely enough this does not cause the baby to waken any earlier in the morning. If she isn't sleepy, right after her dinner, she doesn't get put to bed until an hour or so later.

It is important, when the child is on three meals, that these meals be generous ones, with the baby getting all he or she wants to eat and not offered just measured amounts determined by the parent. Then satisfaction is just as great as when four meals are served.

Susie Q

Cord Treatment

In using and storing appliance cords do not kink or bend them sharply, says the General Electric Consumers Institute. Detachable cords should be wound loosely around two round hooks or pegs. Attached cords should be looped in the places provided for them—but never wrapped around hot appliances.

Your Questions on Homemaking

The chairs in our dining room set are apparently not solid maple and have chipped. Can you suggest a way to touch them up?
R. K. B.

Nicks and breaks in the chair finish can be filled with stick shellac, resembling sealing wax. You can buy this at paint stores to match the wood colors. Apply it with a heated tool, such as a cheap screwdriver. Use it to soften the shellac and carry it to the break, then work in with the finger. Apply more than enough and remove the excess, when hard, by shaving away with a chisel or razor blade. Smooth the surface with sandpaper and polish. If the chip isn't deep enough to need filling, you can touch it up with maple stain, perhaps even with diluted iodine.

Do you suppose any of your readers know where I can buy odd pieces of Haviland china in the Apple Blossom pattern? I understand that this pattern is no longer manufactured, and I especially need some dinner plates, breakfast plates, salad plates, soup plates, and dessert dishes. A. M. H.

Can anyone help A. M. H. in finding Apple Blossom china?

Is there any way that I could re-dye several leather articles at home from brown to black? The leather is still good, but the color is fading and spotty. I have a purse and suitcase in mind. G. G.

Purchase one of the several leather dyes on the market and follow the directions on the package. After dying, and when the leather articles are well dried, buff well with a soft cloth to remove all surplus dye. It would be wise to give the articles a wax treatment before use. Apply a very light coat of liquid wax (the same wax you use on your furniture) and polish well. Repeat this wax application and polishing to build up a good coat of wax and the dye will not rub off.

To P. E. S. and V. R.: Plant specialists say the best way to remove mealy bugs from African violets is to put a bit of cotton on the end of a toothpick, dip it in very strong soapsuds, and touch the mealy bugs with it. The solution will be strong enough to make them curl up and die, and they can then be removed from the plant.

I'm looking for a recipe for a Southern-type biscuit made with a "starter." Any information you can give me about beginning the starter, preserving it, and incorporating it into future batches of biscuits will be appreciated. What is the life of the starter, and how often does it have to be replaced? I enjoyed the biscuits while visiting in Nashville, Tenn. However, the person who made them was reluctant to give up her recipe and merely hinted that they were "baking powder" biscuits made with a "starter." I've always understood starters to consist of yeast basis and can't understand how to reconcile her statement. L. M. A.

Fairly exhaustive research on this subject has failed to turn up exact information about the type of bread you describe. As you say, starters were usually yeast mixtures. However, old-fashioned Southern cooks sometimes used to drop left-over biscuit dough in a glass of milk and keep it in a cool place overnight, incorporating it in fresh biscuit dough the next day. It usually developed a yeasty flavor and quality in the process. Starters were used at a time when modern, convenient forms of yeast weren't available and they often collected quite a number of unpleasant bacteria while they were sitting around. Modern yeast is much easier to use and gives uniformly better flavor.

Can you tell me to whom I may send woolen clothes for distribution abroad? I would really prefer sending them direct to individuals. Who can supply me with names and addresses of individuals or the name and address of an agency which will distribute them so that they will be put to the best possible use? M. B.

CARE, Inc., 1344 Connecticut ave. nw., maintains a list of names and addresses of people overseas who are in need of clothing. This list, which includes only thoroughly investigated cases, is maintained primarily as an accommodation for various relief agencies. However, you can obtain some names from it by contacting the CARE office. Church World Service, New Windsor, Md., is one of the most active organizations engaged in overseas relief and will welcome a gift of clothing from you. This can be sent direct to the New Windsor address.

If you drop them a card, they'll send you a bag for mailing the clothing to them.

I have an enamelware baby sterilizer which was first used in a section of the country where the water is extremely hard. The interior of the sterilizer and the aluminum rack are heavily incrusted with a lime deposit now. What can I do to remove this deposit before using the sterilizer here? M. J. W.

Such a deposit can often be removed by boiling a cream of tartar solution (2 teaspoons cream of tartar to each quart of water) in the utensil for a few minutes. Another way to get rid of it is to boil vinegar in the utensils or water with cut lemon in it. Boil for about 15 minutes before scouring.

Christmas is approaching and I'd like to know how to fireproof our tree. Can you help me? J. M. R.

A flame-proofing solution which can be prayed on Christmas trees is sold by several local stores now. It's said to be valuable in various ways as a treatment for the tree. It keeps it from catching fire and, being a sort of liquid plastic, keeps the moisture in so that the tree lasts longer and doesn't shed many needles. It also brings out the color of the tree. Manufacturers say that, in laboratory tests, trees treated with this solution have lasted in good, blaze-proof condition for 6 or 7 weeks.

Once I saw in your department where you could send Christmas cards. Will you give that address again? We have several beautiful ones. E. B. S.

Two addresses to which used Christmas, birthday and other cards can be sent have been printed in the column. They are: Maine Sea Coast Missionary Society, 24 Ledgelawn ave., Bar Harbor, Me., and Mrs. Henry Hummer, 5825 5th st. nw., Washington 11, D. C. Mrs. Hummer uses them to make scrapbooks and note pads for patients in hospitals.

Can you tell me how to remove a cigarette burn from a solid maple table? The spot is black and I think the finish has blistered. R. K. B.

Try removing the burned spot by rubbing with a paste made of rotten-stone or powdered pumice and linseed oil. Do not get the paste into the surrounding areas and rub with the grain of the wood. Wipe dry with a clean soft cloth and polish the entire surface.

Another way of improving the appearance of the spot would be to rub away the burned wood with steel wool wrapped around a stick, again being careful not to mar the surrounding area. Scrapings should then be brushed away and turpentine applied with a soft lintless cloth. After it dries, take a fine paint brush and carefully apply a coat of white shellac. After this dries additional coats can be added until the desired color is obtained and the hole left by the burn filled up. However, if the burn is deep and the area around it unsightly, it might be best to refinish the whole table top.

To B. A. and C. A. Y. both of whom have asked about removing the brown discoloration on the top of enameled stoves:

Old stains penetrate below the surface of the enamel, burn there and are all but impossible to remove. However, there is a chance the stains might be bleached away. Saturate a heavy cloth with household bleach and leave over the stain for several hours or over night. If possible, cover the cloth with a pane of glass so that the pad will stay moist as long as possible. If this treatment lightens the stains, but doesn't remove them entirely, it can be repeated.

What is the best way to clean a pair of gray suede gloves, wool lined? They get dirty very quickly and I would appreciate a home method for cleaning them. G. G.

The best and really the only sure way to clean your wool lined suede gloves is to send them to a professional dry cleaner. By washing, the dye in the wool may run and of course, that would ruin the appearance of the suede. Also, if they have ever been dry-cleaned, it is not wise to wash them.

Time Your Christmas Lights

To make sure your Christmas lights are turned on and off, plug the cord into an automatic 12-hour electric timer clock, suggests the General Electric Consumers Institute. You can pre-select the hours of the day you desire the lights, and the clock will do the rest—turning them on at nightfall and off when you go to bed.

Sociologist Named Head of Hood College

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., Dec. 8.—The board of trustees of Hood College here today announced the appointment of Dr. Andrew G. Truxal of Dartmouth to become third president of the school.

Truxal

Truxal, 47-year-old sociologist, will succeed Dr. Henry I. Stahr, 67, who is retiring in July, 1948, after 14 years as president.

A native of Greensburg, Pa., the president-designate received his A. B. and A. M. from Franklin and Marshall College, and D. B. from Eastern Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church in the United States, Lancaster, Pa.

He received his Doctor of Philosophy from Columbia University, and in 1928 joined the faculty of Dartmouth College as an instructor in sociology. Since 1935 he has been professor of sociology and head of the department.

He is coauthor with Francis E. Merrill of Dartmouth of "The Family in American Culture" and a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Psi, and the American Sociological Society.

Hood College is affiliated with the Evangelical and Reformed Church, and was founded in 1893. The school has an enrollment of 525 and a faculty of 55.

New School Bids Awaited At La Plata

La Plata, Md., Dec. 8.—Revised bids in Charles County's $800,000 school construction program will be submitted to the special building commitee at La Plata High School at 1 p. m. tomorrow.

Thomas B. R. Mudd, chairman of the committee, today said a bid of $715,209 was submitted by William F. Sutter of Nescopeck, Pa. He pointed out that the committee had a maximum of $600,000 to spend on school construction here, and would have to get a bid under that amount.

Under the present construction plan, he said, some items could be omitted and added at a later date when additional funds are available. The construction contemplated includes a gymnasium, auditorium and industrial arts building at the high school and additional classrooms in both the high and elementary schools.

"We will have to juggle the funds as much as we can," he said, "we have to have something immediately." He stated that if they receive a bid within the $600,000 a contract may be awarded tomorrow.

Mudd said that the program is part of a county-wide $800,000 school improvement program. Of the total amount, $181,000 is to be spent for improvement of Negro schools at Bel Alton and Pomonkey. An additional $19,000 will be spent on smaller improvement programs in the county.

Proposed construction will be financed by an $800,000 bond issue authorized by the 1947 General Assembly. Mudd said that in order to keep interest charges down bonds will not be issued until funds are needed.

Girl Sentenced For Manslaughter In Infant's Death

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 8 (AP).—Dorothy McCarty, 24, of Hancock, Md., convicted by a jury two weeks ago of manslaughter in the death of her infant child, was given an indeterminate sentence today of not exceeding three years in the Maryland Reformatory for Women.

The attractive red-haired girl, mother of a 5-year-old son, burst into sobs after sentence was imposed by Judge Joseph D. Mish.

"I hate to do this," Misch said, "but it's the kind of case where sentence has to be imposed. These things can't be allowed to happen."

Miss McCarty was charged with strangling her baby shortly after its birth last July 30, and placing its body in a shoe box which she put in the adandoned C. & O. Canal.

She denied harming the infant and asserted that it was dead at birth. She said she hid the body because "I was afraid."

Va. SCC Studies Phone Rate Boost

Richmond, Va., Dec. 8 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission today took under advisement an application of Harrisonburg Telephone Co. for rate increases for the area in which it operates.

During a two-hour hearing this morning G. Fred Switzer, president of the company, told the SCC that his expenses had increased all along the line and out of every dollar taken in by the concern at least 38 cents went to pay operaters' wages.

The increases asked by the phone company would boost business phones in Harrisonburg on an average of $1 per month and residence phones 50 cents. In the rural areas the increase in business phone rates would average 75 cents a month and residence phones 25 cents.

Food Health Permits Law Adopted for Charles County

La Plata, Md., Dec. 8 (Spl.).—The Chares County Board of Commissioners here has announced the adoption of an ordinance requiring Health Department permits for all food and drink handling establishments.

Dr. William A. Harris, county health officer, said today that the regulation generally follows the recommendations of the United States Health Service. It sets up standards of cleanliness, preservation of food, and rodent control which must be met before an establishment receives a permit.

Harris said the ordinance will go into effect on the second Monday in January. Food handlers, he stated, will be required to pass physical examinations at the discretion of the health officer.

He said that any new establishment must be approved by the county department of health, which is also the county board of commissioners, before it receives a permit to open. Places which are refused permits will receive written recommendations from the Health Department.

Harris said that establishments already open are being inspected by the county sanitary officer at the present time. He added that it is expected that one man will be able to handle the job for the county.

Maryland to Consider Building Proposals

Baltimore, Dec. 8 (AP).—The Maryland Board of Public Works will meet tomorrow at Governor Lane's executive office to consider various building proposals for the State.

On the agenda is a request of Frederick County for $75,000 to make improvements in the county jail.

The question of building at the University of Maryland may again come before the board. At last week's meeting, the board informed Dr. H. C. Byrd, university president, that building at the university might not go forward until there was a sufficient cash balance on hand.

Berkeley Memorial Hospital Gets Priority

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Dec. 8.—Paul M. Hawkins, president of the Morgan County War Memorial Board, today announced that the proposed $18,000 hospital here has received a high priority for Federal aid. Funds would be issued on the basis of one dollar of Federal money for every two spent by the local unit.

'Push Button' War a Myth, President of VMI Declares

Staunton, Va., Dec. 8 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Richard J. Marshall, superintendent of Virginia Military Institute, declared here today that "no thinking military man will tell you that the next war, if there be one, will be a push button war."

The former chief of staff to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, speaking at a meeting of the Staunton Kiwanis Club just one day after the sixth anniversary of Pearl Harbor, said the "push button" war would not be feasible because "the atomic bomb has not been engineered to the point of overcoming armies, navies and air forces."

General Marshall, who was in Manila at the start of the war, told of the early days of that conflict when the Japs shoved the Americans out of the Philippines.

"God grant that we may never have to fight again," he said, adding that "we have not yet progressed to the point of eliminating war although there is every sane reason to do so."

Touching on the advancement made by scientific and technical leaders, he said the great task at present is to give the Nation "better leaders in order to insure ourselves of adequate military power."

Burglars Get 2 Safes Containing $615

Baltimore, Dec. 8 (AP).—Burglars broke into a chain grocery store and a union headquarters last night and lugged a safe from each for a total haul of more than $600.

Police said a small safe holding about $500 was taken from the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association office by burglars who apparently entered through a jimmied front door.

A two-by-three-foot safe also was taken from an American Stores grocery. It contained $115, police said.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

BARNABY

Blotto's atom yo-yo works fine, doesn't it, Mr. O'Malley? There was nothing left of the pile of rubbish Pop was trying to get rid of.
I, er, trust that your Dad will give me due credit . . .
And don't explain about Blotto, m'boy. So few people grasp the idea of Robot Warfare. Robots are terrifying things to people—
There's Jane! With a new comic book . . .
Hello, Barnaby. Where did your Fairy Godfather get that dopey old robot?
He hasn't even got a death ray attachment.
Hmmm.

TODAY'S RADIO HIGHLIGHTS

A NEW experiment in "international institutional promotion" will be dramatized tonight at 10:45 over WMAL on "Let Freedom Ring." The experiment, launched last month by the Westinghouse Electric International Co., will be further explained by William E. Knox, president of the company.

Also dealing with the international scene is tonight's "America's Town Meeting of the Air" 8:30 over WMAL. "How Can We Combat Anti-American Propaganda in Europe?" will be subject of a discussion by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Maj. Gen. William Donovan, formerly head of the OSS, and the Rev. William Howard Melish, associate rector of Church of Holy Trinity in Brooklyn.

Other highlights:

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

'New Look' Dominates Current Automotive Field

Nine-year-old Jimmy Roper of 11 Ridge rd. se. recently made a survey of the situation, aided and abetted by an 11-year-old relative of mine.

The survey shows that during the time the count was being taken, 118 cars drove past the boys. Of these, 54 were prewar models, and 64 were '46s or later.

Amazed to find such a high proportion of new cars, I took a poll of my own yesterday, tabulating 200 cars which passed through Post Square during the morning rush hour.

Unlike the boys, I found more old than new—104 prewar and 96 postwar.

My figures include taxis, and most of the cabs are new. This helped to swell the "postwar" total.

But, nevertheless, I think the boys have come up with a mighty interesting observation. There are so many late models on the streets these days that it hardly seems worthwhile to pay $1995 for a '39 any more.

ADD NAMES

Peggy Feyling of 812 K st. se. also has two strange and wonderful names to add, and says that if you look hard enough you'll find them both in Pennsylvania.

They're "Chastity" and "Seldom Seen," and of the latter Peggy adds:

"Seldom Seen is well named. It's little more than a crossroads country grocery store."

CAUSE AND EFFECT

My wife has grown so very fat,
Although she used to wasn't.
I guess the reason for it all
Is that she daily doesn't.
Jay Aitch

STREET SCENE

The well groomed matron in the late model coupe stopped for a traffic light, and two teenaged girls started to cross the intersection.

The lady in the car surveyed the girls with obvious interest. They were dressed in sloppy sweaters and blue jeans (rolled up to the knees, of course).

Bobby sox, flopping sandals, unkempt hair, and two wads of persecuted chewing gum completed the picture.

As the girls were about to pass in front of the car, it became apparent that they were aware of the lady's critical appraisal—and just as the girls came abreast, one of them barked to the matron:

"Aw—shut up."

ADD SIGNS

Phil Loube of the delivery section of the local postoffice wonders whether we've seen this one, outside a 7th st. sign shop of all places:

"I learned to make signs before I learned to talk."

(That's all right—I also had to read it twice before I got it.)

Harry Traub of 2743 N. Lorcom lane, Arlington, Va., writes:

"Since you appear to know your way around Cincinnati, how about this sign which I saw in a public park there? The park has a bandstand, surrounded by seats, and nearby is the sign which says:

" 'The seats are for the use of ladies. Gentlemen should make use of them only after the former are seated.' "

(That would be either Eden Park or Burnet Woods, Harry. Which was it?)

One of the funniest of our "sign" items was posted by an amateur, according to Gene McLaughlin of 1471 Irving st. nw.

"No Smoking. Remember the Chicago Fire."

Beneath it some wit has added:

"No Spitting. Remember the Johnstown Flood."

HE'S AN EARLY BIRD, NOT A NIGHT OWL

Harking back to a column of last week, J. M. Letcher of 3980 Langley ct. nw., wise cracks:

"Don't go shooting cannons down Pennsylvania ave. after midnight. You might hit the President while he's out for his early morning walk."

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—The legend of the coldness of first-night audiences, a current controversy between the theater producers and their press agents, was shattered at the Ethel Barrymore Theatre where Irene Selznick presented her first play, Tennessee Williams' "A Street Car Named Desire." When the season ends the tallies will show this to be the No. 1 hit . . . Elia Kazan's contract for directing the play gives him 20 per cent of the profits in addition to the customary directorial fee. This is the highest fee ever paid a Broadway director . . .

There will be no investigation of the rumors of Arabian bribes in the U. N. vote on Palestine. Even if bribery could be proved, there could be no prosecution because the U. N. has no laws governing crimes . . .

The Elliott Roosevelts, who have been uncommunicative farmers these past months, finally emerged to celebrate their third anniversary the other night at the Stork Club.

Louis Calhern reminisced of his football-playing days last night at Cafe Society Uptown, and told the story of a halfback who failed at a history exam and was declared ineligible. His teacher said he was guilty of copying from a scholar who received a 95% mark. "Their answer papers were exactly alike," the teacher explained to the football coach . . . "Maybe the other fellow was copying from him?" the coach suggested . . . "I thought of that. But see for yourself," said the teacher. The scholar's written answers to one question was "I don't know." The halfback's written answer was "I don't know either."

I. F. Stone, the Washington correspondent, wears a hearing device. He says that the Allied reverses in the early years of the war may have been caused by military secrets being shouted at him.

Rufino Tamayo, whose newest paintings will be exhibited at the Matisse Gallery next week, will have his first monograph published by Quadrangle Press.

William L. Bond, who was vice president of CNAC, will be named vice president of Pan American Airways in the Orient. Bond pioneered the flights over the Hump. And it was his airline in China which evacuated Generalissimo and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek from Hangkow.

Tom Ewell, who has been playing a leading role in "John Loves Mary" ever since its opening more than a year ago, phoned Judith Anderson, who recently opened in "Medea." Miss Anderson greeted him: "Darling, when did you get in town?"

Former Officers Get Fat Jobs

By Drew Pearson

In wartime, military security hushes up a lot of Army mistakes. In peacetime, people are usually too busy thinking about other things to safeguard against future mistakes. However, a few Congressmen, such as Representative George Bender, Ohio Republican, have persisted in pointing out Army faults in peacetime and demanding that something be done about them before Congress votes on military conscription.

Bender

Representative Bender, with the help of Lindsay Warren's efficient General Accounting Office, has unearthed the shocking fact that several Army officers who decided how much money the Government owed war contractors, thereafter went to work for those same contractors.

For instance:

Maj. George W. Parker was the Army's contracting officer assigned to the Howard Aircraft Corp. of St. Charles, Ill. He spent from August 19 to September 12, 1944, adjusting final payments under this contract. And just 12 days after he was discharged from the Army, Parker became general manager of Howard Aircraft.

Also, Maj. Herwin Hagerty was Army procurement planning and control officer at the North Western Aviation Corp., of St. Paul, from September 27, 1945, to March 21, 1946. After winding up this work, he left the Army and became vice president in charge of production.

Col. Forrest Smith of Cincinnati held a relatively minor job with a Cincinnati law firm before the war. During the war, he was not only the original contracting officer for the Army when it signed up with the Schwitzer-Cummings Co., of Indianapolis, but also terminated several contracts between that firm and the Government. This meant he had to decide how much the Army owed the firm. Less than a month after his discharge, Smith got a $15,000 salary with Schwitzer-Cummings.

Also Capt. G. I. Calvert was the Army's representative with Sheffield Steel of Houston, Tex. One of his jobs was to check on final inventories when the Army ended its contract to make airplane struts. Quitting the Army, Calvert got a nice job with the Sheffield Steel Co. as metallurgical engineer.

Corn, Oklahoma

This is the story of "Corn, Oklahoma," a little town of about 500 people near Route 66, a town so small that no railroad runs through it.

"There are only a church, four or five buildings and a grain elevator in the town," according to a neighboring flour miller who told me the story, "but the farmers of that community hauled five carloads of wheat to the grain elevator, which is 3000 bushels of wheat donated by the farmers of that little community to the Friendship Train.

"After they collected their wheat, they trucked it over to our mill and we are only too glad to enter into the spirit of the movement and are honored at the privilege of converting their wheat into flour. This is too big a thing for any manufacturer to seek publicity on and we ask that you not even mention the name of the town of —— where our mill is located.

"I am not a writer, Mr. Pearson, and I don't know how to express my thoughts relative to this spirit of Christianity at a time when the world seems turned upside down. But I think the story of the title town of Corn, Okla., should be told to the whole United States. I think it will help. Some may call them Oakies. I call them 'God's people.'"

Army Promotions

The Army has strange and mysterious ways of doing things. Witness the promotions of 100 of the top brass to be permanent generals.

Those who studied the list carefully couldn't escape the impression that the selection board is now giving a lot of weight to parlor politics. For instance: It's been an Army practice that no officer shall be promoted to the permanent grade of general unless he has seen overseas service in World War II.

However, high on the latest list of promotions to major general was Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons. Persons served right here in the Nation's Capital.

His job was to lobby with Congress, get Army appropriations passed, and generally keep Congress in a happy frame of mind. He did an excellent job. In return, he is now promoted to the permanent rank of major general.

Another general on the list is Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, chief publicity expert for the War Department. Eddy is an able officer and has seen combat service. However, he was No. 1 on the list—even ahead of several important lieutenant generals, including the famed combat officer, Lieut. Gen. Joe Collins who captured Cherbourg and who is now deputy chief of staff.

Rare Friend

It is no easy thing to find . . . A friend along the way . . . I mean the friend whose smile extends . . . Beyond a single day . . . Who does not merely shake your hand . . . And say a quick hello . . . Before he vanishes among . . . The little winds that blow . . . But on the more important side . . . I have in mind the one . . . Who thinks of you from early dawn . . . Until the day is done . . . Who has a word of cheerful praise . . . For everything you do . . . And when misfortune turns the tide . . . Is still a friend to you . . . The kind of friend whose attitude . . . Is never dark or cold . . . But who is always loyal and . . . Who has a heart of gold.
